Sartorial Mr. Weiss

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International Copyright and all other rights reserved.)

THIS DAY in New York has been dedicated to men's apparel, in the interests of the clothing trade, which reminds us that a recent poll of ladies at Palm Beach, designated Mr. Joseph E. Widener, of Philadelphia, as the best groomed man in America. Or, as the tailors would say, the best "turned out."

Mr. Widener, a stately, genial gentleman of perhaps sixty-odd, will probably be greatly surprised that his apparel has been the object of so much feminine attention. Still, he may be somewhat flattered, too, for after all the average man usually dresses his best for the ladies. Who else?

Some may argue that the Palm Beach ladies are taking in a lot of territory when they declare Mr. Widener the best dressed champion of America, but it happens that they are ladies who get around quite a bit, and they claim a wide observation of wellgroomed men all over the country.

They pronounce Mr. Widener their idea of a perfectly apparelled man from standpoint of taste, style, and appropriateness. They say he always dresses to suit an occasion, and that he is meticulous about small details to which the average man pays scant attention.

Having observed Mr. Widener under various sartorial circumstances, we are ready to agree with the ladies that he dresses right up the nines, as the saying is, but we think some

REORGANIZATION OF OIL COMPANY FAILS

NEW ORLEANS, April 10.—(AP)—A plan for reorganization of the Louisiana Oil Refining corporation of Shreveport failed today in the United States fifth circuit court of appeals.

Ruling that opposition to the plan by stockholders had not been given proper consideration, the court reversed a decision by United States Judge Ben C. Dawkins of the western Louisiana federal court which approved the plan.

Principal preferred stockholders resisting the reorganization, Joseph A. McCaleb, one of their attorneys, said, are insurance companies who owned 1,856 shares of the outstanding shares of preferred stock.

Honor Awarded During 'Play Day' Program At Northeast Center

More than 150 girls from 12 high schools in Northeast Louisiana participated in a "play day" program Saturday under auspices of the Women's Athletic association of Northeast Center of L. S. U. The event was the first of the kind ever held in this part of the state, and is designed to be given periodically.

A feature of the "play day" program was the fact that no competitive athletic contests were held.

The only event approaching a contest was the choosing of a "health queen." This award went to Louise Springer, student of Clarks High school, a pupil of Miss Alice Linebeck. The selection was made from

Thinks Country To See Real Prosperity When Labor Obstacles Removed

WAYS, Ga., April 10.—(AP)—Henry Ford met broadsides from C. I. O. leaders announcing plans to organize his plants with the terse statement today, "I have no fear of them, because they are wrong."

The declaration followed up an assertion by the Detroit automobile manufacturer that the Ford Motor company will demonstrate "wages, production and competition such as never seen before," when current strike troubles subside.

In an authorized interview at his winter estate here, Ford, nearing 74, charged that "finance and organizations" are retarding industry.

He suggested that workers judge labor unions by results, adding, "the worker ought to ask himself, 'what have I got out of the union in return for what I've lost?'"

Ford said annual income, not the daily wage, should be considered.

"The main thing to consider," he went on, "after all, is freedom. That's the foundation of America. The men in our plants are free and they are better off for it. There are thousands of things that could be produced cheaply today for the comfort and convenience of the common men except for control manifested by finance and organizations of one sort or another.

COLLEGE YOUTH'S DEATH MYSTERY

Suicide Or Heart Trouble Advanced As Most Likely Cause

SEWANEE, Tenn., April 10.—(AP)—Vice-Chancellor Benjamin F. Finney of the University of the South said tonight it had been impossible to establish the cause of the death of Percy Bell, Jr. 17-year-old freshman whose pajama-clad body was found late last night.

The body lay on Bell's bed at Sewanee inn, college dormitory, when discovered by Henry Manning, another student rooming just across the hall. Manning went to Bell's room on returning to his own quarters and finding pinned to the door a note saying:

"Come over and see me. P. Bell."

Bell's father, an attorney at Greenville, Miss., was expected here to accompany the body home.

Dr. Finney, asserting that "there is no suspicion of foul play," said there would be no autopsy and no inquest. "The only question," he said, "is, did the boy take his own life or die of heart failure?

"There is nothing to indicate which."

He added that Dr. R. M. Kirby-Smith, who examined the body, "said from the natural position in which it was lying the boy evidently died during his sleep." The physician was quoted as saying there was no evidence of convulsions.

Dr. Finney said that when Bell came to the university he told of having suffered from heart trouble. This prevented the youth, a boy of normal build, from taking part in athletics. Bell had had no scholastic difficulties of consequence, Dr. Finney said, add-

Night Marshal And Farmers Charged With Murdering Negro

SHREVEPORT, La., April 10.—(AP)—Earl Campbell, night marshal of Doyline, La., Webster parish, and three Webster parish farmers were brought to the Caddo parish jail here today and charged with murder by Sheriff T. R. Hughes of Caddo parish, in connection with the killing last night of a negro tenant farmer, T. C. Davis, 30, near Blanchard, 17 miles north of Shreveport.

The farmers charged were Milton, Louis and Alton McDowell, brothers. In addition Sheriff Hughes held Isaac Carter, negro tenant on the McDowell place, as an accessory to the crime and a material witness.

The prisoners were surrendered to the sheriff of Caddo parish by Sheriff O. H. Haynes, of Webster parish, adjoining, and were held without bond.

Sheriff Hughes said Davis was shot and killed in the farm house of James Dawston, negro, on the J. C. Powell place in Caddo parish during an attempt by the white men to force the wife of Carter, estranged from her husband, to return to the McDowell plantation in Webster parish.

The officers said she had come over to Caddo parish with six of her nine

Police Chief Frank Reitzell Well Pleased With New System

Chief of Police Frank V. Reitzell last night expressed himself well pleased with the result of the new one-hour parking law in the downtown district of the city which was enforced for the first time Saturday.

A total of 62 tickets were reported by the police as having been given to offenders of the one hour parking limit for the first eight hours. Tickets were pasted on offending automobiles bearing not only Louisiana license plates but plates from several other states, including New York and California. Most of the car owners from out-of-town reported at police headquarters and after being informed of the new regulations were released and admonished "to sin no more." They were treated with courtesy by the police, although many of those presenting themselves at police headquarters demanded to know why they had been tagged.

MILWAUKEE CORN MILL ALSO DAMAGED BY FIRE

Underpinning Of Two Neighboring Grain Elevators Wrecked

MILWAUKEE, April 10.—(AP)—At least two men were killed and more than 32 persons injured today in an explosion at the Charles A. Krause milling company. Firemen searched the ruins for six to 10 persons reported missing. The mill was destroyed.

The blast was believed to have been caused from accumulated dust in the corn mill, a five-story concrete and brick building.

The contents of the corn mill were ignited and a large grain elevator about 50 feet from the structure caught fire.

Rescuers dug at the ruins, searching for possible victims. Police said that estimates of the number working in the plant varied from 45 to 60.

The explosion threw debris over the neighborhood, hurled stones through windows over a large area and tore down trolley wires of a nearby car line. A 50-pound piece of concrete was tossed 150 feet.

Milwaukee, West Milwaukee and West Allis fire departments answered the alarm and fought the fire which burned fiercely in the thousands of bushels of grain stored in the mill. The corn mill was a five-story concrete and brick structure.

Police reserves were called to control the excited crowd which gathered at the scene and added to the confusion.

The repercussion was so great the underpinning of two neighboring grain elevators as well as the mill was wrecked, causing fear of a collapse. A steel storage shed behind the corn mill was blown apart.

CONTROL OF FLOODS TO GET ATTENTION

WASHINGTON, April 10.—(AP)—Recommendations regarding flood control will receive attention of the projects committee of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress when it meets here April 23 and 24, before the convention of the Congress itself on April 26 and 27.

Magnitude of the recent flood in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys will prompt control recommendations, some of which are expected to consist of arguments for greater federal appropriations for projects and for relief of states and localities in flood work.

Nearly every governor has appointed delegates.

Representative William J. Driver, of Osceola, Ark., is chairman of the projects committee, created by the Congress several years ago for consideration of individual projects.

Three Thousand Soldiers Trapped In University City Fight Desperately

By John Lloyd

MADRID, April 10.—(AP)—Government forces threw Madrid's besiegers 200 yards back from the Franceses bridge tonight, successfully holding their "cleaver line" between the insurgents' two main siege positions on the west of the capital.

The bridge, on the wooded western edge of the city, spans the Manzanares river where the three-day battle plunged into another night without signs of abating. The span has provided contact between strong insurgent garrisons in Casa de Campo park and University City, which it links.

Defense communiques said the forces of General Jose Miaja gained the vital territory in an intensive two-hour battle in which insurgent casualties were heavy.

Garabitas hill, key to the insurgents' Casa de Campo positions was bombed six times during the day. The El Aguila hill, on the north side of the former Royal Park, was reported taken by storm when defense troops surged forward and drove off their enemy in hand-to-hand conflict.

With the government troops hammering to pierce the siege lines on two sides, their almost solid hail of machine gun and rifle fire was aimed both at the El Aguila hill and at a

WOMAN ARRESTED ON FRAUD CHARGE

Ruston Resident Accused Of Passing Forged Checks At Local Stores

A smartly dressed woman who gave her name as Mrs. Margaret Clinton, 29, of Ruston, was in the Ouachita parish jail here last night following her arrest Friday afternoon by deputies of the sheriff's office on charges of attempting to cash a forged check at the Jitney Jungle store at North Fourth street and Stubbs avenue.

The alleged offense took place that afternoon when the woman was reported to have tried to pass a check payable to Mrs. L. R. Rhodes and signed with the name of A. H. Moyes.

The sheriff's department Saturday reported that the woman had cashed a forged check last Thursday at the Stanley Hodges store at Washington and North Sixth streets. The check was for $[illegible] and was made out in the name of [illegible] McClendon and drawn on the West Monroe state bank, a bank which closed its doors some time ago. She is alleged to have purchased groceries to the value of $[illegible], giving the check in payment and receiving $[illegible] in cash in return. She ordered the groceries delivered to [illegible] North Fifth street, but the occupants at that address told the delivery boy that they had not ordered the goods. Mr. Hodges reported the alleged fraud to the authorities and

The contents of the corn mill were ignited and a large grain elevator about 50 feet from the structure caught fire.

Rescuers dug at the ruins, searching for possible victims. Police said that estimates of the number working in the plant varied from 45 to 60.

The explosion threw debris over the neighborhood, hurled stones through windows over a large area and tore down trolley wires of a nearby car line. A 50-pound piece of concrete was tossed 150 feet.

Milwaukee, West Milwaukee and West Allis fire departments answered the alarm and fought the fire which burned fiercely in the thousands of bushels of grain stored in the mill. The corn mill was a five-story concrete and brick structure.

Police reserves were called to control the excited crowd which gathered at the scene and added to the confusion.

The repercussion was so great the underpinning of two neighboring grain elevators as well as the mill was wrecked, causing fear of a collapse. A steel storage shed behind the corn mill was blown apart.

CONTROL OF FLOODS TO GET ATTENTION

WASHINGTON, April 10.—(AP)—Recommendations regarding flood control will receive attention of the projects committee of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress when it meets here April 23 and 24, before the convention of the Congress itself on April 26 and 27.

Magnitude of the recent flood in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys will prompt control recommendations, some of which are expected to consist of arguments for greater federal appropriations for projects and for relief of states and localities in flood work.

Nearly every governor has appointed delegates.

Representative William J. Driver, of Osceola, Ark., is chairman of the projects committee, created by the Congress several years ago for consideration of individual projects.

Three Thousand Soldiers Trapped In University City Fight Desperately

By John Lloyd

MADRID, April 10.—(AP)—Government forces threw Madrid's besiegers 200 yards back from the Franceses bridge tonight, successfully holding their "cleaver line" between the insurgents' two main siege positions on the west of the capital.

The bridge, on the wooded western edge of the city, spans the Manzanares river where the three-day battle plunged into another night without signs of abating. The span has provided contact between strong insurgent garrisons in Casa de Campo park and University City, which it links.

Defense communiques said the forces of General Jose Miaja gained the vital territory in an intensive two-hour battle in which insurgent casualties were heavy.

Garabitas hill, key to the insurgents' Casa de Campo positions was bombed six times during the day. The El Aguila hill, on the north side of the former Royal Park, was reported taken by storm when defense troops surged forward and drove off their enemy in hand-to-hand conflict.

With the government troops hammering to pierce the siege lines on two sides, their almost solid hail of machine gun and rifle fire was aimed both at the El Aguila hill and at a

WOMAN ARRESTED ON FRAUD CHARGE

Ruston Resident Accused Of Passing Forged Checks At Local Stores

A smartly dressed woman who gave her name as Mrs. Margaret Clinton, 29, of Ruston, was in the Ouachita parish jail here last night following her arrest Friday afternoon by deputies of the sheriff's office on charges of attempting to cash a forged check at the Jitney Jungle store at North Fourth street and Stubbs avenue.

The alleged offense took place that afternoon when the woman was reported to have tried to pass a check payable to Mrs. L. R. Rhodes and signed with the name of A. H. Mayes.

The sheriff's department Saturday reported that the woman had cashed a forged check last Thursday at the Stanley Hodges store at Washington and North Sixth streets. The check was for $10.15 and was made out in the name of Maida C. McClendon and drawn on the West Monroe State bank, a bank which closed its doors some time ago. She is alleged to have purchased groceries to the value of $1.15, giving the check in payment and receiving $9 in cash in return. She ordered the packages delivered to 1018 North Fifth street, but the occupants at that address told the delivery boy that they had not ordered the goods. Mr. Hodges reported the alleged fraud to the authorities and Sam Handy, 405 Park avenue, was made happy over the week-end when he met, for the first time in 70 years, a cousin, Mrs. E. H. Hewlett, Austin, Tex. Mrs. Hewlett was accompanied here by her daughter, Mrs. O. R. Brame, Sherman, Tex.

Mrs. Hewlett is 84 years of age, while Mr. Handy is a few years younger. Although she was born and reared in Farmerville, she had not visited this section of the country since she was a young girl.

The cousins spent many hours discussing old times and scenes and the reunion was one never to be forgotten, Mr. Handy stated.

HOLLAND TO GIVE SENIORS' ADDRESS

Governor Leche To Present Degrees To State Normal Graduates

NATCHITOCHES, April 10.—(Special)—C. O. Holland of Minden, president of the Louisiana State Normal college alumni association, will deliver the fifty-third annual commencement address at the college here on Tuesday, May 25, it was announced today by President Albert A. Fredericks.

The new Governor Richard W. Leche library, recently completed on the state normal college campus, will be dedicated on the same date by Governor Leche, who will also confer the degrees on the graduates of the 1936-37 class.

The graduating class of more than 200 will be formally received into the alumni association by Dr. Joe Farrar of Louisiana State university, who is a member of the board of directors of the alumni association of the college.

Another feature of the annual commencement here next month will be a reception-dance honoring the graduating class, their guests and the alumni of the college. The reception-dance will be held in the social room of the college immediately after the graduation and dedication program.

President Fredericks will preside over the commencement and dedication exercises which are scheduled to be held on the academic court of the college. President Fredericks will read the honor roll and present the guest speakers.

Arrangements for the annual spring alumni home-coming program which is to be held jointly with the commencement exercises, are being formulated by Professor Leroy S. Miller of the college faculty, secretary of the alumni association.

The rector begins this Sunday o series of talks, or addresses on "The Church," founded upon "The Great Forty Days." The purpose of these 40 days was: First, to convince His disciples, especially the eleven, of the reality of His ressurrection and His identity; and, second, to speak to them of the things pertaining to the Kingdom of God, i.e., His Holy Church. The first address will be given this Sunday during the 11 o'clock service. The second Sunday after Easter is often called "Good Shepherd" Sunday, from the Gospel appointed for the day. The figure of the Good Shepherd has always been dear to Christians. It has been a favorite subject in Christian art from the first century catacombs unto the present day, and in poetry from the Psalms—"The Lord is my Shepherd,"—to our own church hymnal—"The King of love My Shepherd Is";—and it has been the familiar prayer of thousands of little children—"Jesus tender Shepherd lead me, bless Thy little lamb tonight." The thrifty way to travel First-class 1937 Ford V-8 owners pay less for their cars, pay less to run them, and travel first class all the time!

Basic reason is the V-8 engine. Eight cylinders give smoother performance. V-type construction is the most modern on land, sea, or in the air, and permits a much more compact power-plant. Space saved under the hood means more room in the body, and more comfort.

This year's V-8 engine is offered in two sizes. 85 horsepower for top-notch performance. 60 horsepower for rock-bottom economy. The latter, available in five body types, makes possible the lowest Ford prices in years and the greatest gasoline mileage in Ford history.

To this choice of V-8 engine sizes, add the other Ford first-class features—Center-Poise Ride, Easy-Action Safety Brakes, all-steel body, advanced design—and you'll realize why the Ford V-8 is the quality car in the low-price field.

CIVILIAN FLYERS TO TOUR STATE

Visits To Principal Cities To Further Interest In Aviation

SHREVEPORT, La., April 10.—(Special)—More than a score of civilian airplanes will stage a tour of principal Louisiana cities beginning Thursday at Shreveport and ending three days later at Monroe, according to announcement by Lake Littlejohn, department of commerce inspector for the Shreveport district.

The tour will be sponsored by the Louisiana state department of the National Aeronautic association, for the purpose of arousing interest throughout the state in flying.

Luncheon stops will be made at Lake Charles, Patterson and Baton Rouge.

Night stops will be made at Lafayette, New Orleans and Monroe.

At Patterson, there will be a luncheon, during which the fliers will pay tribute to two of Louisiana's outstanding air pioneers, now deceased, Harry P. Williams, former Louisiana governor for N. A. A., and James "Jimmy" Wedell, famous race pilot and airplane designer.

The fliers will honor Governor Richard W. Leche at a luncheon in Baton Rouge by presenting him an honorary membership to the National Aeronautic association.

Between 20 and 30 fliers are expected to participate in the tour. Many of them will come from Texas, Arkansas and Oklahoma. All will gather at Shreveport the day before the tour begins and will be entertained at a fliers' party the night before the start.

City officials and citizens have been urged to meet the fliers at the various stops.

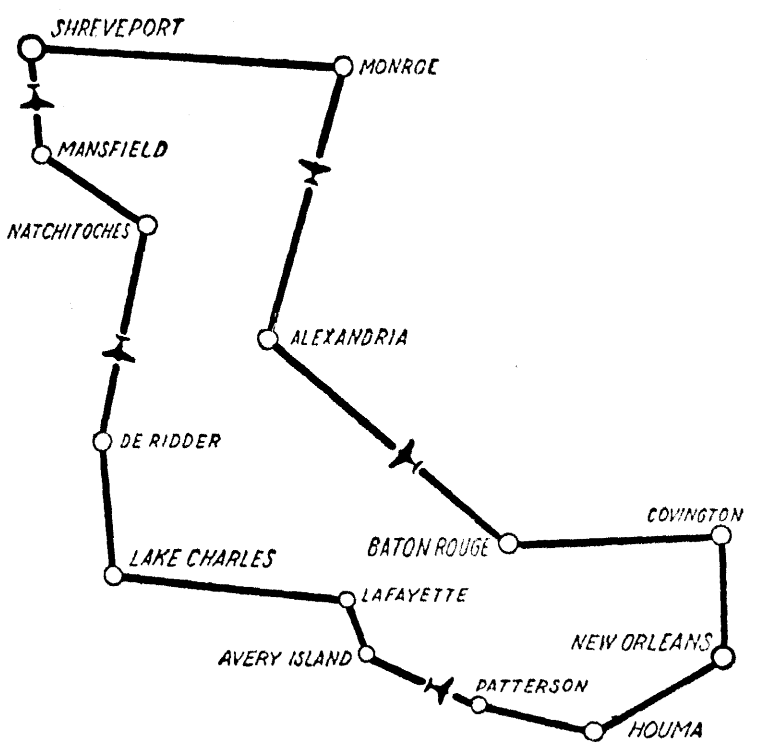
Following is the schedule of the tour:

Thursday—Leave Shreveport at 9:30 a.m.; arrive at Natchitoches, 10:15 a.m.; DeRidder, 11:25 a.m.; Lake Charles, 12:10 p.m.; Lafayette, 4 p.m.

Friday—Leave Lafayette at 9:30 a.m.; arrive at Avery Island, 9:55 a.m.; Patterson, 11:55 a.m.; Houma, 1:40 p.m.; New Orleans, 2:35 p.m.

Saturday—Leave New Orleans at 10:35 a.m.; arrive at Covington at 11:10 a.m.; Baton Rouge, 12:10 p.m.; Alexandria, 3:10 p.m.; Monroe, 4:30 p.m.

ITINERARY OF CIVILIAN FLYERS



Louisiana cities which will be visited by more than a score of civilian flyers who will take off from Shreveport Thursday morning, are shown in the above sketch. Near the end of their three-day tour, the flyers will arrive here at Selman airport Saturday at 4:30 p.m., and will remain in the city overnight, returning to Shreveport on Sunday.

STUDENTS MAKE APOLOGY FOR WAKING COMMUNITY WITH DYNAMITE, WHISTLE

RUSTON, La., April 10.—(Special)—Engineering students of Louisiana Tech, who rocked Ruston with dynamite explosions and blew a whistle loud and long at midnight to herald their fourth annual celebration here the other night, have offered their apologies for the disturbance and announced discontinuance of such bedlams in the future.

The noise, it is said, got many Ruston people out of bed "to go to the fire." Others flayed the prankish pandemonium because of the distress it dealt domestically, not only upon the babies but upon other attaches of the household. Even the student writers on the Tech Talk staff, admittedly "young enough to take it," had things to say in a light vein about the racket. A columnist for the paper complained that "our estimable poet laureate, Kelly the Kitty, was knocked off the back fence by the engineers' merry-making," and his poetry of the week was more "catty" than ever before. 'Twas awful.

But even as the last echo of the nocturnal noise died on the hilltops of Lincoln parish, the engineering students themselves felt the urge, "before anyone," to drop the noise-making from now on. A written statement signed by the engineering society reads, in part:

"First, it is our desire to apologize publicly to everyone who may have been disturbed by the noise made by the engineers in what we termed at the time 'ushering in Engineers' day.' The purpose of our annual Engineers' day is to create good will toward our department and we certainly do not want to do anything to create ill will and defeat our purpose before the start.

"Second, we want it publicly known that no one realized the mistake nearly so well as the engineers. It was only that we discovered a little too late that it was annoying.

"Other than the disturbance, we had a perfect day. The sun shone, everyone did his work well, and we had the most courteous and interested group of visitors we have ever had the privilege of entertaining."

So all will be quiet on the Tech front when the next Engineers' day rolls around.

CROSSETT COMPANY GETS LARGE ORDER

CROSSETT, Ark., April 10.—(Special—Order for 700,000 board feet of lumber to be fabricated in panels for use in erecting the boys scouts' national jamboree camp at Washington, D. C., next summer, was awarded to the Fordyce-Crossett Sales company, sales agency for the Crossett Lumber company.

The order requires 40 carloads of yellow pine lumber, most of which will be shipped from Crossett and the balance from Fordyce.

The Crossett Lumber company also furnished lumber for the camp in 1935, which was later called off on account of the epidemic of infantile paralysis.

TULLOS BAPTIST CHURCH WILL CONDUCT REVIVAL

TULLOS, La., April 10.—(Special)—A series of revival services will be opened at the Tullos Baptist church on Sunday, according to an announcement made by the pastor, Rev. E. A. Autrey. Four services will be held each day of the meeting, which is expected to continue for two weeks. Preaching services for the revival will be in charge of Dr. C. E. Autrey, pastor of the Temple Baptist church at Ruston. Dr. Autrey was formerly pastor of the Tullos charge and has many friends in this section.

LOUISIANA SOLON PASSES THE SALT

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 10.—(Special)—Congressman A. Leonard Allen is passing out chunks of salt in the raw to his colleagues these days. They come from a mine near his home town of Winnfield.

He has a large supply of it in chunks in his office for the edification of other congressmen, most of whom have never seen salt in that form and do not know it comes out of mines. Allen relates the magnitude of the mine and the purity of the salt with each sample—and he has interested audiences every time.

Most folks who are not familiar with the salt industry either have no ideas about where it comes from at all or think they get it out of Great Salt lake or some other place like it. Allen is surprising a lot of people around here when he shows them those samples, tells how salt comes out of the mines and goes into details over the magnitude of the business in Louisiana—and the money it makes.

Pennsylvania requires the payment of a state or county tax, which may imply ownership of taxable property, as a qualification for voters.

CIVILIAN FLYERS TO TOUR STATE

Visits To Principal Cities To Further Interest In Aviation

SHREVEPORT, La., April 10.—(Special)—More than a score of civilian airplanes will stage a tour of principal Louisiana cities beginning Thursday at Shreveport and ending three days later at Monroe, according to announcement by Lake Littlejohn, department of commerce inspector for the Shreveport district.

The tour will be sponsored by the Louisiana state department of the National Aeronautic association, for the purpose of arousing interest throughout the state in flying.

Luncheon stops will be made at Lake Charles, Patterson and Baton Rouge.

Night stops will be made at Lafayette, New Orleans and Monroe.

At Patterson, there will be a luncheon, during which the fliers will pay tribute to two of Louisiana's outstanding air pioneers, now deceased, Harry P. Williams, former Louisiana governor for N. A. A., and James "Jimmy" Wedell, famous race pilot and airplane designer.

The fliers will honor Governor Richard W. Leche at a luncheon in Baton Rouge by presenting him an honorary membership to the National Aeronautic association.

Between 20 and 30 fliers are expected to participate in the tour. Many of them will come from Texas, Arkansas and Oklahoma. All will gather at Shreveport the day before the tour begins and will be entertained at a fliers' party the night before the start.

City officials and citizens have been urged to meet the fliers at the various stops.

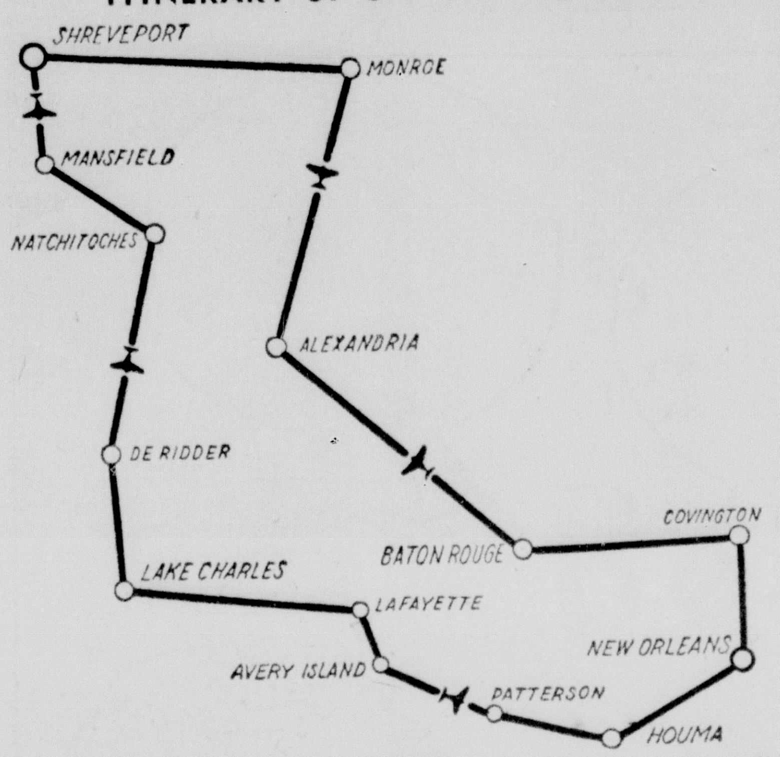
Following is the schedule of the tour:

Thursday—Leave Shreveport at 9:30 a.m.; arrive at Natchitoches, 10:15 a.m.; DeRidder, 11:25 a.m.; Lake Charles, 12:10 p.m.; Lafayette, 4 p.m.

Friday—Leave Lafayette at 9:30 a.m.; arrive at Avery Island, 9:55 a.m.; Patterson, 11:55 a.m.; Houma, 1:40 p.m.; New Orleans, 2:35 p.m.

Saturday—Leave New Orleans at 10:35 a.m.; arrive at Covington at 11:10 a.m.; Baton Rouge, 12:10 p.m.; Alexandria, 3:10 p.m.; Monroe, 4:30 p.m.

ITINERARY OF CIVILIAN FLYERS



Louisiana cities which will be visited by more than a score of civilian flyers who will take off from Shreveport Thursday morning, are shown in the above sketch. Near the end of their three-day tour, the flyers will arrive here at Selman airport Saturday at 4:30 p.m., and will remain in the city overnight, returning to Shreveport on Sunday.

STUDENTS MAKE APOLOGY FOR WAKING COMMUNITY WITH DYNAMITE, WHISTLE

RUSTON, La., April 10.—(Special)—Engineering students of Louisiana Tech, who rocked Ruston with dynamite explosions and blew a whistle loud and long at midnight to herald their fourth annual celebration here the other night, have offered their apologies for the disturbance and announced discontinuance of such bedlams in the future.

The noise, it is said, got many Ruston people out of bed "to go to the fire." Others flayed the prankish pandemonium because of the distress it dealt domestically, not only upon the babies but upon other attaches of the household. Even the student writers on the Tech Talk staff, admittedly "young enough to take it," had things to say in a light vein about the racket. A columnist for the paper complained that "our estimable poet laureate, Kelly the Kitty, was knocked off the back fence by the engineers' merry-making," and his poetry of the week was more "catty" than ever before. 'Twas awful.

But even as the last echo of the nocturnal noise died on the hilltops of Lincoln parish, the engineering students themselves felt the urge, "before anyone," to drop the noise-making from now on. A written statement signed by the engineering society reads, in part:

"First, it is our desire to apologize publicly to everyone who may have been disturbed by the noise made by the engineers in what we termed at the time 'ushering in Engineers' day.' The purpose of our annual Engineers' day is to create good will toward our department and we certainly do not want to do anything to create ill will and defeat our purpose before the start.

"Second, we want it publicly known that no one realized the mistake nearly so well as the engineers. It was only that we discovered a little too late that it was annoying.

"Other than the disturbance, we had a perfect day. The sun shone, everyone did his work well, and we had the most courteous and interested group of visitors we have ever had the privilege of entertaining."

So all will be quiet on the Tech front when the next Engineers' day rolls around.

CROSSETT COMPANY GETS LARGE ORDER

CROSSETT, Ark., April 10.—(Special—Order for 700,000 board feet of lumber to be fabricated in panels for use in erecting the boys scouts' national jamboree camp at Washington, D. C., next summer, was awarded to the Fordyce-Crossett Sales company, sales agency for the Crossett Lumber company.

The order requires 40 carloads of yellow pine lumber, most of which will be shipped from Crossett and the balance from Fordyce.

The Crossett Lumber company also furnished lumber for the camp in 1935, which was later called off on account of the epidemic of infantile paralysis.

TULLOS BAPTIST CHURCH WILL CONDUCT REVIVAL

TULLOS, La., April 10.—(Special)—A series of revival services will be opened at the Tullos Baptist church on Sunday, according to an announcement made by the pastor, Rev. E. A. Autrey. Four services will be held each day of the meeting, which is expected to continue for two weeks. Preaching services for the revival will be in charge of Dr. C. E. Autrey, pastor of the Temple Baptist church at Ruston. Dr. Autrey was formerly pastor of the Tullos charge and has many friends in this section.

LOUISIANA SOLON PASSES THE SALT

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 10.—(Special)—Congressman A. Leonard Allen is passing out chunks of salt in the raw to his colleagues these days. They come from a mine near his home town of Winnfield.

He has a large supply of it in chunks in his office for the edification of other congressmen, most of whom have never seen salt in that form and do not know it comes out of mines. Allen relates the magnitude of the mine and the purity of the salt with each sample—and he has interested audiences every time.

Most folks who are not familiar with the salt industry either have no ideas about where it comes from at all or think they get it out of Great Salt lake or some other place like it. Allen is surprising a lot of people around here when he shows them those samples, tells how salt comes out of the mines and goes into details over the magnitude of the business in Louisiana—and the money it makes.

Pennsylvania requires the payment of a state or county tax, which may imply ownership of taxable property, as a qualification for voters.

Doctor's Prescription Stops Craving For Liquor

A doctor's prescription successfully used for years in hospital treatment for those addicted to the use of alcohol, is now offered to the public for home treatment. It is harmless and can be taken in tea, coffee, food or any other liquid with or without the user's knowledge. Removes the craving for liquor and builds up the resistance. Many loved ones saved and brought back to a life of usefulness Proper results or money back. Write Western Chemicals, Inc., Dept. 101 B, Seattle, Washington, for a free trial and full particulars. It will be sent immediately in a plain wrapper. Do it today. (Adv.)

Conquering Self

A man who has conquered himself has done a large piece of work; but that achievement will not land him on the Isle of Golden Dreams or in the Valley of Contentment; for after a man has conquered himself, that self must actually be transformed into the kind of self he wants to be before he can be at peace with himself.

A person is never at peace with himself simply because he has overcome selfish inclinations and propensities. The old passions, the old desires, are simply submerged, held down and held back by sheer strength of will—to give thier conqueror anxious, painful moments; they are merely waiting for a chance to break loose.

Haven't you known people or seen people who had conquered themselves, yet who still were on the offensive against certain things in themselves? Every now and then the battle would break out anew, and you would know from their faces or their actions what was going on within them. There is no peace in that state of being. Only war—constant war.

A conquered something or other, even though it be oneself, is always liable to break out here and there unless a real transformation has taken place.

Trainers of great cats who merely conquer the beasts, can never trust them. They must always keep a watchful eye on them. They know they are taking chances every time they turn their backs on them. They are never at peace with them. One of the few animal trainers who seemed to be perfectly at peace with his charges was Karl Hagenbeck. He had not only conquered his fierce animals, but he had transformed them into over-sized house cats. He confidently moved among them, affectionately pushing them this way and that, exactly as if they were domestic animals; and sometimes when he patted their heads, they playfully took his hands in their big mouths as a kitten would take hold of your finger.

An animal act like Hagenbeck's is, of course, not so thrilling as one in which the trainer seems always about to be torn to pieces by his ferocious beasts, but it is much more marvelous.

A conquered nation, too, can never be trusted. The smouldering desire to rebel and break loose is always there, unless they can be transformed into a satisfied, cooperative citizenry. Hitler and Mussolini can never be safe in their nations with their conquered peoples. They must transform their subjects into a different kind of subjects before contentment can reign in Germany and Italy—and Ethiopia. But before Hitler and Mussolini can transform their people, they must first transform themselves.

TIP FOR UNCLE SAM

In the current issue of a magazine, an able economist makes a few sage observations.

He maintains that the coming boom already is on the way. To those who don't care to be taken for a ride by it, he offers this advice:

"Buy tangible, useful, needed things. And lend as little money as you can, unless money-lending is your business."

This seems a bit of common sense that can be heeded profitably not only by John Public, but also by Uncle Sam. In the latter's case, however, the last sentence is probably needless, as brutal experience has taught him to ignore the outstretched palms of overseas neighbors.

He could, though, confine his purchases to "tangible, useful, needed things." This phrase, for instance, might apply to armaments, but only to such as are needed to defend his domain. Beyond that point, they may still be tangible, but since America intends to enter no more foreign wars, they are hardly useful and necessary.

CONSERVATION AID

A newspaper item reveals that most Americans are now within a day's motoring of one of the camping grounds and resorts in the national forests, beautiful natural locations in which they can swim, camp, and picnic. As fast as the demand grows, the forest service of the department of agriculture is developing other scenic spots and recreational areas.

The great value of any such program is obvious at a glance. To the vast majority of the people in our cities, whose horizon is bounded by constructions of man, conservation of natural resources can be hardly more than a phrase. It is only by visiting and luxuriating in a national forest that they can realize it is a sublime heritage, meant not only for them but for posterity.

The course of the forest service seems a splendid way to amass public opinion behind the drive for conservation.

The easiest way to start an argument is to express sympathy for one person in the hearing of another who feels equally deserving.

We are happy to report that for the first time in six years there is reason to complain of the smoke nuisance.

Travelers say that nobody has ever seen an elephant die a natural death, but you can say that about a fly.

RHYME AND REASON

NO ROOM FOR HATE

There is no room for hate in any heart!
The winter winds have stripped my apple tree,
But silently, with sympathetic art,
The buds of spring restore its symmetry.
The scarred boughs bloom with fragrant loveliness;
The birds sing madrigals to compensate
For ruthless winds, as if they must confess
That peaceful orchards have no time for hate.

There is no room for hate where roses thrust
New blossoms out for every ravished flower.
The garden bears no malice that we must
Weave our green garlands from its gracious bower.
New growth upon shorn field and shattered wood
Gives us a thought in spring! When sunbeams dart
Across a world with loveliness imbued,
There is no room for hate in any heart!

TARDINESS OF JUSTICE

By BRUCE CATTON

The supreme court did a number of things when it had that field day on decisions recently. One job which almost escaped attention in the rush of bigger things was its disposal of the case of Mr. George W. Norris, grocer, of Broken Bow, Neb.

The court's ruling in this case proved that it is possible, after all, to punish a man for perjury in this country—if you don't care how long it takes you or how much money it costs.

The fate of Norris as an individual is not particularly important. He was just a well-meaning man who was played for a sucker by the big boys and was left high and dry on a sandbar when the waters receded. First and foremost, it was his name that got him into trouble.

If you remember the case, you will recall that in the early summer of 1930 Nebraska's famous Senator George W. Norris was running for renomination in the Republican primary. The party big-wigs, who had been keeping a rod in pickle for Senator Norris for many years, hit on one of those ultra-slick ways of beating him—too slick, as it turned out.

They hunted around until they dug up this innocent grocer, George W. Norris, and they persuaded him to file for the senate. Thus, when the voter got to the polls, he would find two George W. Norrises on the ballot, and would have no earthly way of telling which was which. In that way Senator Norris' vote would be split and the "regular" candidate might slip in.

The people of Nebraska gagged at this bit of slickness, the state supreme court ruled Grocer Norris off the ballot, and Senator Norris went on to renomination and re-election.

Meanwhile the senate campaign committee began investigating. It held hearings in Nebraska and summoned Grocer Norris as a witness. Norris first told the committee that he received no money from anybody for offering himself as the sacrificial lamb; later, he changed his story and admitted that he had been paid $550.

For this he was indicted for perjury by a federal grand jury in June, 1931.

After long delay the case came to trial, and in the late fall of 1935 Grocer Norris was convicted of perjury, fined $100, and sentenced to three months in jail. Nearly a year later an appellate court reversed the conviction and ordered a new trial. The government took the case to the United States supreme court—and now, nearly seven years after the offense was committed, the supreme court has sustained the conviction and ordered Grocer Norris to take his medicine.

This little case tells you much about the tricks of American politics; it tells you even more about American criminal court procedure.

Perjury strikes at the very foundation stone of justice. If men can lie under oath and get away with it, the courts are crippled. Yet in an open and shut case, it took six and one-half years to convict a man of lying and make the conviction stick!

A BOOK REVIEW

AN OCEAN AUTOCRAT HAS HIS TROUBLES

The commander of a British warship in the great days of Nelson was an unquestioned autocrat, lord of all he surveyed; but he had his uneasy moments in the privacy of his cabin, nevertheless, for he knew that just one mistake would ruin his career as soon as the august lords of the admiralty back home found out about it.

Such a captain is the hero of C. S. Forester's new novel, "Beat to Quarters"—which, by the way, is as fine a story of action at sea as the whole spring is likely to bring forth.

This skipper is ordered, in the midst of the Napoleonic wars, to take his frigate around to the Pacific coast of what is now Nicaragua, contact a rebellious hacienda owner, and raise ructions with Spain's colonial empire. It is a dangerous and ticklish job; if he does it well he will be promoted, but if he fails his career will end, for the admiralty will accept no excuses. And he has no means aside from his naval pay.

Well, he gets there, does his job brilliantly—and then learns that Spain has unexpectedly come into the war on England's side, and that he now has to crush the rebellion he sailed half around the world to start. And when he finally winds up his job (after a gorgeous sea fight that is guaranteed to keep you on the edge of your chair), he learns that he must ferry back to England a snooty English lady who turns out to be a sister to the great Wellington.

Mr. Forester has a good deal of fun with his poor captain from here on. For the lady proceeds to fall in love with him. This, her charms apart, can be the making of him; one word from a woman of her station, in the England of those days, could raise a naval captain to unheard-of heights. But at the crucial moment the poor skipper remembers that he does have a wife—a pudgy and unsatisfactory creature, but indubitably a wife—and he virtuously spurns his fair passenger.

And Mr. Forester leaves you to figure out whether the spurned lady, back in England, will make him or break him.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK.—Diary: Up and hails by post from William Lyon Phelps, Carolyn Wells, Clare Boothe and Jerome Kern, which brightened the day. Also a note from John T. McCutcheon to visit him on his island in the Bahamas. So aboard for a cord to hang Percy Crosby's exquisite winter scene.

This day my wife came upon my gift to her on her 12th birthday, a game of tiddle de winks. And I told her how it cost a dime at The Bankrupt Store but, ever the gay deceiver, I penciled 50 cents on the bottom of the box, and we looked, and it was there. So to the Frank Cases' party for Mary Boland.

Driving to Greenwich to dinner and back too late to drop in at Lee Olwell's to join him, Bill Corum and John McClain for a fourth at quartetting and authors. So to bed reading Noel Coward's autobiography, "Present Indicative," and so absorbed I did not put it down until the cock's crow.

The Rialto hears its once daintiest queen of the high wire, Bird Millman, is coming back to the dazzle. She was long a vaudeville and Follies' headliner. In 1923 while with a Follies show she married a handsome young Harvard man, went to live in Brookline, and was widowed by a tragic accident the same year. Grief stricken, she went to a lonely ranch in the Colorado high country. Several months ago the old urge returned. She erected a wire, got out her pale pink tights and began to recapture the grace once hers. She is reputed to be the same elfin 100 pounds of floating loveliness and will attempt to thrill an audience, which has never seen her.

Newspapermen, too, have heard of a pleasing come-back of one of their tribe in Florida, Spearman Lewis, well known in Chicago. Arriving in Miami three years ago flat broke, he and his wife occupied a shack and their total assets were a broken down Ford and $20. They lived in one room. One day, surfeited with ennui, Lewis took $10 of their hoard and went to the dog races. In a sudden seizure of gambling desperation, he played a hunch and won on a daily double, $2,240. He phoned his wife and that day they bought a plot of ground. A banker loaned him enough to build three villas, which are today worth $60,000. A community grew up around him, known as Surfside, and he is the mayor. At odd times and for mere relaxation he now and then pecks out a short story. But the newspaper grind is far behind.

The Ella Boole influence: A regular old time saloon at 3rd avenue and 51st street is called Jean Elizabeth's.

Two society girls, surfeited with what Cholly Knickerbocker calls "ennui of the elite," licketty-split into success with a flower shop recently. And all because they were first past the post with cellophane delivery boxes that revealed the flowers to passers-by as perky Parisian looking midinettes delivered them. Cellophane millinery boxes, which I believe Peggy Hoyt introduced, have also caught the popular fancy. Ladies can look over their bonnets in their clostets without taking them out of the boxes. And from a number I've seen around and about a quick glance is quite enough. I think the best of the millinery mots was by Bob Burns who, after looking them over, said he thought it was now Queen Mary's turn to laugh.

Thingumbobs: Joe Louis's extravagance after each fight is to buy a new tailor made suit . . . Meredith Wilson, the orchestra leader, was once a trumpeter with Souza's band, touring the globe . . . Courtney Ryley Cooper has a Boston that will sneeze when he says "pepper." . . . Harlem now has a Bert Williams' cafe . . . The highest priced single dog act is Red Rust whose owner is paid $650 a week . . . This is the dog that makes himself go limp enough for a chorus girl to use him as a lady's fur neckpiece.

Big stuff: That story to end all ghost stories has become a little threadbare by constant repetition. The one where the two gentlemen were walking down the dark corridor of a lonely castle and No. 1 inquired: "Do you believe in ghosts?" The other responded "No, do you?" To which No. 1 replied "Yes" —and vanished. Yet I talked to a perfectly normal gentleman, a fellow of eminence, the other evening, who claims to have been riding in a bus along a lonely heath of Shropshire three years ago with a little old lady all in black as the only other passenger While he was eyeing her over a newspaper top she simply vanished. He had no theory. "I only know it happened," he said grimly, and somehow you believe him.

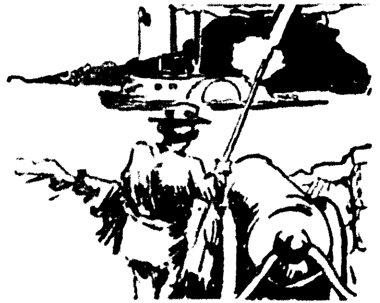
STAMP NEWS

By I. S. Klein



FOR six days and nights the Union bombing squadron under Commander David Dixon Porter hurled shells into Forts Jackson and St. Philip at the mouth of the Mississippi, until Farragut, commanding the west coast blockading squadron, was able to run his ships up the river. Porter followed, passing New Orleans, venturing past the batteries of Vicksburg and reaching Mound City, Ill. There he converted more than 120 river steamers into gunboats. With these he sailed down the river, and helped General Grant capture Vicksburg. By this daring action, Porter opened the Mississippi for the Union.

He was commissioned rear admiral, and after the war became superintendent of the naval academy at Annapolis. Later he was appointed vice admiral, then admiral on the death of Farragut in 1870. He died in 1891, at 78.

His portrait appears with that of Farragut on the new 3-cent navy stamp.

RUSTON WOMAN NAMED

RALEIGH, N. C., April 10.—(AP)—The Southeastern Arts association elected Miss F. Elizabeth Bethea of Ruston, La., as its president today and voted to meet in 1938 in Tampa, Fla. The elections ended the annual three-day convention, which brought delegates here from nine states.

BANK CASHIER DIES

KAPLAN, La., April 10.—(AP)—Denois J. Trahan, 28, assistant cashier of the Kaplan State bank, died today of pneumonia. Funeral services will be held at Holy Rosary Catholic church tomorrow, followed by interment in the cemetery here.

YOUR HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

(Editor Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine)

Pneumonia is thought generally to be one disease. Actually, however, the term embraces a group of diseases due to different causes, but all having as their main symptom inflammation of the lung tissue. The most common cause of pneumonia is a germ called the pneumococcus, but the disease may also be caused by various streptococci and by other organisms, including even the typhoid germ.

One form of pneumonia was called by Sir William Osler the "friend of the aged," because it so frequently is the final disease in old people.

Today pneumonia is the most common and fatal of all acute infections. The figures available are not altogether accurate, since the many varieties of pneumonia are not distinguished suitably in death reports. Indeed, it does not seem possible to say whether pneumonia is increasing or declining. Yet the condition is so prominent that campaigns against pneumonia now are being undertaken in many states, and the problem is being given special consideration by the United States public health service.

About 127 of every 100,000 people in the United States die each year of pneumonia. The disease attacks more men than women, and at all ages, being more dangerous, however, to the young and the old.

One of the most significant facts about pneumonia is the wide variety of pneumococcus germs. Many different types of the germ are recognized. The incidence of these germs differs in various portions of the United States. It is believed that types 1 and 2 cause about 65 per cent of the pneumonia in the United States; type 3 causes a lesser percentage and the group known as type 4 has itself been subdivided into 29 different types.

The recognition of these types is important because successful use of special pneumonia serums depends on definite identification of the kind of germ involved. Such identification is made by a new test called the Newfeld typing method, which may be performed without too much difficulty in any suitable laboratory. In this test, a small amount of sputum from the infected person is placed on a glass slide and brought into contact with serum from a rabbit which has been immunized against organisms of a specific type. If the infection with pneumococci is of the same type, the capsule of the germs will become swollen. Laboratories which undertake this kind of work have available special rabbit serums for making these tests.

In many severe cases of pneumonia, if opportunity or time is not available for using the typing test, physicians sometimes use the type one anti-pneumonia serum, because of the high percentage of infections of this type.

THREE DEAD AFTER BRUNDIDGE STORM

BRUNDIDGE, Ala., April 10.—(AP)—Brundidge's windstorm dead reached three today and at least two of 17 injured in Thursday's blow were in critical conditions at hospitals in nearby Troy.

Mrs. W. L. Crowley, 48-year-old mother of Fred Crowley, 13, who was killed outright in the storm, died today of multiple injuries.

Mrs. Clarence Crowley, 18-year-old daughter-in-law of Mrs. W. L. Crowley, succumbed to injuries yesterday, leaving an 18-months old child who suffered a broken leg.

A score of homes were wrecked by the sudden storm and property damage was counted in thousands of dollars.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—You are quite right if you think the present time is much too early to come to conclusions as to the question of Mr. Roosevelt in relation to the 1940 presidential campaign. But there is no law against speculation or discussion, and anyone may safely resign himself to hearing more and more about it from now on, unless Roosevelt emphatically rules himself out of the picture.

There will be polls deisgned to measure public sentiment for Roosevelt and for the other presidential possibilities. These polls will be watched with intense interest.

A peculiar situation will result if it turns out that the president is far more of a popular favorite to succeed himself than any other public man. If the polls do begin to pan out that way there will be a great howl for a declaration from Roosevelt himself.

The polls, in fact, already have begun. Fortune magazine has taken a poll on the question of whether public opinion favored a third term for F. D. R. It found that only 43.6 per cent opposed a third Roosevelt term, that 48.4 per cent favored it—nearly half on the proviso that his second term is successful—and 8 per cent didn't know.

Only 26 per cent declared against the idea solely on the ground that no one should serve more than two terms. It is easy to believe this section included many who would naturally oppose Roosevelt.

Only 7.4 per cent registered as opposed because of disapproval of F. D. R., and only 10.2 because of disapproval of both Roosevelt and third terms.

The Queen's Work, a national Catholic monthly, has been polling Washington correspondents on their predictions as to the 1940 Democratic nominee. Early returns were showing that two-thirds of the correspondents picked Roosevelt as the likeliest nominee, with Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace running second, but obviously not very strong.

Not Neutral At All

It was about time some strong advocate of "neutrality legislation" publicly admitted there was nothing neutral about it and credit for this frankness now goes to Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War and one of the nation's leading pacifists.

Libby says the new law should be called "non-participation legislation." The idea, he explains, is really to limit future wars, as one would limit a fire, to the smallest possible area. Obviously, the "cash and carry principle" favors the big nations which have cash, ships and control of the seas. No policy we adopt, Libby admits, would bear equally on all belligerents.

"Japan and Italy have successfully punctured the theory that the mere threat of combined action will overawe a potential aggressor," he continues. . . . "The charge that such reasoning ignores the moral distinction between an 'aggressor' and a 'victim' is an oversimplification of the facts in every conflict.'

Omit Civil Service

While debate rages over the Roosevelt supreme court plan, civil service is taking a licking. The president's proposal to extend the merit system "upward, outward and downward" is being made a pawn in the game.

Because the president isn't taking on any new fights, the crop insurance bill, passed by the senate with a provision exempting from civil service all officials and employes hired under the act, is likely to stand that way in the house.

The new Guffey coal bill passed by the house exempts a large number of clerks, attorneys, special agents, technical experts and examiners.

It's an ironic fact that Roosevelt, now being bitterly attacked for an attempt to grab power through his court proposal, offered in the civil service section of his reorganization program to surrender more power than any president had proposed to give up in many decades. Opportunity to appoint six new justices temporarily means a tremendous extension of executive power. But Roosevelt afterward would have no control over the six. Putting the entire government personnel under civil service, as Roosevelt proposed, would mean an abandonment of executive patronage power immeasurably valuable. But it's doubtful now whether congress will ever permit this abnegation.

8 MISSING AFTER BOAT GOES DOWN

CHESTER, Pa., April 10.—(AP)—Seven men and a high school girl, making her first river trip with her father, were believed to have perished today in the sinking of the tugboat Radiant in the Delaware river near Essington.

Captain Reuben S. Daisy, 57, master of the vessel for 12 years and his first mate, Anthony Clark, 50, both of Philadelphia, were the only survivors. Their cries for help were heard by a riverfront patrolman. They were found by a tugboat searchlight and pulled from the river 45 minutes after the vessel sank about midnight.

The missing are: Alfred Robinson, 38, first engineer, Camden, N. J.; Mary, 15, his daughter; John Hurley, fireman, Camden; Ira Robinson, 32, Camden, second engineer, brother of Alfred; Woodie Owens, 28, deckhand, Philadelphia; Emery Ralph, 45, deckhand, Philadelphia; L. Mitchell, fireman, Philadelphia; R. Calles, Japanese cook, Philadelphia.

Captain Daisy and Clark were rescued by the tug Harriet which put off from the E. I. duPont Denemours wharf at Thompson's Point on the Jersey side.

The 90-ton Radiant went down without warning, Captain Daisey, said. The 80-foot vessel, built in 1903, sank in about 25 feet of water 500 feet from the Jersey shore off the southern end of Tinicum island while towing the Gulf Refining company barge Oneida.

Conquering Self

A man who has conquered himself has done a large piece of work; but that achievement will not land him on the Isle of Golden Dreams or in the Valley of Contentment; for after a man has conquered himself, that self must actually be transformed into the kind of self he wants to be before he can be at peace with himself.

A person is never at peace with himself simply because he has overcome selfish inclinations and propensities. The old passions, the old desires, are simply submerged, held down and held back by sheer strength of will—to give thier conqueror anxious, painful moments; they are merely waiting for a chance to break loose.

Haven't you known people or seen people who had conquered themselves, yet who still were on the offensive against certain things in themselves? Every now and then the battle would break out anew, and you would know from their faces or their actions what was going on within them. There is no peace in that state of being. Only war—constant war.

A conquered something or other, even though it be oneself, is always liable to break out here and there unless a real transformation has taken place.

Trainers of great cats who merely conquer the beasts, can never trust them. They must always keep a watchful eye on them. They know they are taking chances every time they turn their backs on them. They are never at peace with them. One of the few animal trainers who seemed to be perfectly at peace with his charges was Karl Hagenbeck. He had not only conquered his fierce animals, but he had transformed them into over-sized house cats. He confidently moved among them, affectionately pushing them this way and that, exactly as if they were domestic animals; and sometimes when he patted their heads, they playfully took his hands in their big mouths as a kitten would take hold of your finger.

An animal act like Hagenbeck's is, of course, not so thrilling as one in which the trainer seems always about to be torn to pieces by his ferocious beasts, but it is much more marvelous.

A conquered nation, too, can never be trusted. The smouldering desire to rebel and break loose is always there, unless they can be transformed into a satisfied, cooperative citizenry. Hitler and Mussolini can never be safe in their nations with their conquered peoples. They must transform their subjects into a different kind of subjects before contentment can reign in Germany and Italy—and Ethiopia. But before Hitler and Mussolini can transform their people, they must first transform themselves.

TIP FOR UNCLE SAM

In the current issue of a magazine, an able economist makes a few sage observations.

He maintains that the coming boom already is on the way. To those who don't care to be taken for a ride by it, he offers this advice:

"Buy tangible, useful, needed things. And lend as little money as you can, unless money-lending is your business."

This seems a bit of common sense that can be heeded profitably not only by John Public, but also by Uncle Sam. In the latter's case, however, the last sentence is probably needless, as brutal experience has taught him to ignore the outstretched palms of overseas neighbors.

He could, though, confine his purchases to "tangible, useful, needed things." This phrase, for instance, might apply to armaments, but only to such as are needed to defend his domain. Beyond that point, they may still be tangible, but since America intends to enter no more foreign wars, they are hardly useful and necessary.

CONSERVATION AID

A newspaper item reveals that most Americans are now within a day's motoring of one of the camping grounds and resorts in the national forests, beautiful natural locations in which they can swim, camp, and picnic. As fast as the demand grows, the forest service of the department of agriculture is developing other scenic spots and recreational areas.

The great value of any such program is obvious at a glance. To the vast majority of the people in our cities, whose horizon is bounded by constructions of man, conservation of natural resources can be hardly more than a phrase. It is only by visiting and luxuriating in a national forest that they can realize it is a sublime heritage, meant not only for them but for posterity.

The course of the forest service seems a splendid way to amass public opinion behind the drive for conservation.

The easiest way to start an argument is to express sympathy for one person in the hearing of another who feels equally deserving.

We are happy to report that for the first time in six years there is reason to complain of the smoke nuisance.

Travelers say that nobody has ever seen an elephant die a natural death, but you can say that about a fly.

RHYME AND REASON

NO ROOM FOR HATE

There is no room for hate in any heart!
The winter winds have stripped my apple tree,
But silently, with sympathetic art,
The buds of spring restore its symmetry.
The scarred boughs bloom with fragrant loveliness;
The birds sing madrigals to compensate
For ruthless winds, as if they must confess
That peaceful orchards have no time for hate.

There is no room for hate where roses thrust
New blossoms out for every ravished flower.
The garden bears no malice that we must
Weave our green garlands from its gracious bower.
New growth upon shorn field and shattered wood
Gives us a thought in spring! When sunbeams dart
Across a world with loveliness imbued,
There is no room for hate in any heart!

TARDINESS OF JUSTICE

By BRUCE CATTON

The supreme court did a number of things when it had that field day on decisions recently. One job which almost escaped attention in the rush of bigger things was its disposal of the case of Mr. George W. Norris, grocer, of Broken Bow, Neb.

The court's ruling in this case proved that it is possible, after all, to punish a man for perjury in this country—if you don't care how long it takes you or how much money it costs.

The fate of Norris as an individual is not particularly important. He was just a well-meaning man who was played for a sucker by the big boys and was left high and dry on a sandbar when the waters receded. First and foremost, it was his name that got him into trouble.

If you remember the case, you will recall that in the early summer of 1930 Nebraska's famous Senator George W. Norris was running for renomination in the Republican primary. The party big-wigs, who had been keeping a rod in pickle for Senator Norris for many years, hit on one of those ultra-slick ways of beating him—too slick, as it turned out.

They hunted around until they dug up this innocent grocer, George W. Norris, and they persuaded him to file for the senate. Thus, when the voter got to the polls, he would find two George W. Norrises on the ballot, and would have no earthly way of telling which was which. In that way Senator Norris' vote would be split and the "regular" candidate might slip in.

The people of Nebraska gagged at this bit of slickness, the state supreme court ruled Grocer Norris off the ballot, and Senator Norris went on to renomination and re-election.

Meanwhile the senate campaign committee began investigating. It held hearings in Nebraska and summoned Grocer Norris as a witness. Norris first told the committee that he received no money from anybody for offering himself as the sacrificial lamb; later, he changed his story and admitted that he had been paid $550.

For this he was indicted for perjury by a federal grand jury in June, 1931.

After long delay the case came to trial, and in the late fall of 1935 Grocer Norris was convicted of perjury, fined $100, and sentenced to three months in jail. Nearly a year later an appellate court reversed the conviction and ordered a new trial. The government took the case to the United States supreme court—and now, nearly seven years after the offense was committed, the supreme court has sustained the conviction and ordered Grocer Norris to take his medicine.

This little case tells you much about the tricks of American politics; it tells you even more about American criminal court procedure.

Perjury strikes at the very foundation stone of justice. If men can lie under oath and get away with it, the courts are crippled. Yet in an open and shut case, it took six and one-half years to convict a man of lying and make the conviction stick!

A community grew up around him, known as Surfside, and he is the mayor. At odd times and for mere relaxation he now and then pecks out a short story. But the newspaper grind is far behind.

The Ella Boole influence: A regular ald time saloon at 3rd avenue and 51st street is called Jean Elizabeth's.

Two society girls, surfeited with what Cholly Knickerbocker calls "ennui of the elite," licketty-split into success with a flower shop recently. And all because they were first past the post with cellophane delivery boxes that revealed the flowers to passers-by as perky Parisian looking midinettes delivered them. Cellophane millinery boxes, which I believe Peggy Hoyt introduced, have also caught the popular fancy. Ladies can look over their bonnets in their closets without taking them out of the boxes. And from a number I've seen around and about a quick glance is quite enough. I think the best of the millinery mots was by Bob Burns who, after looking them over, said he thought it was now Queen Mary's turn to laugh.

Thingumbobs: Joe Louis's extravagance after each fight is to buy a new tailor made suit . . . Meredith Wilson, the orchestra leader, was once a trumpeter with Souza's band, touring the globe . . . Courtney Ryley Cooper has a Boston that will sneeze when he says "pepper." . . . Harlem now has a Bert Williams' cafe . . . The highest priced single dog act is Red Rust whose owner is paid $650 a week . . . This is the dog that makes himself go limp enough for a chorus girl to use him as a lady's fur neckpiece.

Big stuff: That story to end all ghost stories has become a little threadbare by constant repetition. The one where the two gentlemen were walking down the dark corridor of a lonely castle and No. 1 inquired: "Do you believe in ghosts?" The other responded "No, do you?" To which No. 1 replied "Yes" —and vanished. Yet I talked to a perfectly normal gentleman, a fellow of eminence, the other evening, who claims to have been riding in a bus along a lonely heath of Shropshire three years ago with a little old lady all in black as the only other passenger While he was eyeing her over a newspaper top she simply vanished. He had no theory. "I only know it happened," he said grimly, and somehow you believe him.

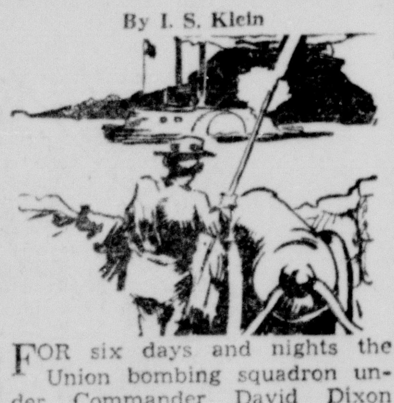
STAMP NEWS

By I. S. Klein



FOR six days and nights the Union bombing squadron under Commander David Dixon Porter hurled shells into Forts Jackson and St. Philip at the mouth of the Mississippi, until Farragut, commanding the west coast blockading squadron, was able to run his ships up the river. Porter followed, passing New Orleans, venturing past the batteries of Vicksburg and reaching Mound City, Ill. There he converted more than 120 river steamers into gunboats. With these he sailed down the river, and helped General Grant capture Vicksburg. By this daring action, Porter opened the Mississippi for the Union.

He was commissioned rear admiral, and after the war became superintendent of the naval academy at Annapolis. Later he was appointed vice admiral, then admiral on the death of Farragut in 1870. He died in 1891, at 78.

His portrait appears with that of Farragut on the new 3-cent navy stamp.

RUSTON WOMAN NAMED

RALEIGH, N. C., April 10.—(AP)—The Southeastern Arts association elected Miss F. Elizabeth Bethea of Ruston, La., as its president today and voted to meet in 1938 in Tampa, Fla. The elections ended the annual three-day convention, which brought delegates here from nine states.

BANK CASHIER DIES

KAPLAN, La., April 10.—(AP)—Denois J. Trahan, 28, assistant cashier of the Kaplan State bank, died today of pneumonia. Funeral services will be held at Holy Rosary Catholic church tomorrow, followed by interment in the cemetery here.

YOUR HEALTH

(Editor Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine)

Pneumonia is thought generally to be one disease. Actually, however, the term embraces a group of diseases due to different causes, but all having as their main symptom inflammation of the lung tissue. The most common cause of pneumonia is a germ called the pneumococcus, but the disease may also be caused by various streptococci and by other organisms, including even the typhoid germ.

One form of pneumonia was called by Sir William Osler the "friend of the aged," because it so frequently is the final disease in old people.

Today pneumonia is the most common and fatal of all acute infections. The figures available are not altogether accurate, since the many varieties of pneumonia are not distinguished suitably in death reports. Indeed, it does not seem possible to say whether pneumonia is increasing or declining. Yet the condition is so prominent that campaigns against pneumonia now are being undertaken in many states, and the problem is being given special consideration by the United States public health service.

About 127 of every 100,000 people in the United States die each year of pneumonia. The disease attacks more men than women, and at all ages, being more dangerous, however, to the young and the old.

One of the most significant facts about pneumonia is the wide variety of pneumococcus germs. Many different types of the germ are recognized. The incidence of these germs differs in various portions of the United States. It is believed that types 1 and 2 cause about 65 per cent of the pneumonia in the United States; type 3 causes a lesser percentage and the group known as type 4 has itself been subdivided into 29 different types.

The recognition of these types is important because successful use of special pneumonia serums depends on definite identification of the kind of germ involved. Such identification is made by a new test called the Newfeld typing method, which may be performed without too much difficulty in any suitable laboratory. In this test, a small amount of sputum from the infected person is placed on a glass slide and brought into contact with serum from a rabbit which has been immunized against organisms of a specific type. If the infection with pneumococci is of the same type, the capsule of the germs will become swollen. Laboratories which undertake this kind of work have available special rabbit serums for making these tests.

In many severe cases of pneumonia, if opportunity or time is not available for using the typing test, physicians sometimes use the type one anti-pneumonia serum, because of the high percentage of infections of this type.

THREE DEAD AFTER BRUNDIDGE STORM

BRUNDIDGE, Ala., April 10.—(AP)—Brundidge's windstorm dead reached three today and at least two of 17 injured in Thursday's blow were in critical conditions at hospitals in nearby Troy.

Mrs. W. L. Crowley, 48-year-old mother of Fred Crowley, 13, who was killed outright in the storm, died today of multiple injuries.

Mrs. Clarence Crowley, 18-year-old daughter-in-law of Mrs. W. L. Crowley, succumbed to injuries yesterday, leaving an 18-months old child who suffered a broken leg.

A score of homes were wrecked by the sudden storm and property damage was counted in thousands of dollars.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—You are quite right if you think the present time is much too early to come to conclusions as to the question of Mr. Roosevelt in relation to the 1940 presidential campaign. But there is no law against speculation or discussion, and anyone may safely resign himself to hearing more and more about it from now on, unless Roosevelt emphatically rules himself out of the picture.

There will be polls deisgned to measure public sentiment for Roosevelt and for the other presidential possibilities. These polls will be watched with intense interest.

A peculiar situation will result if it turns out that the president is far more of a popular favorite to succeed himself than any other public man. If the polls do begin to pan out that way there will be a great howl for a declaration from Roosevelt himself.

The polls, in fact, already have begun. Fortune magazine has taken a poll on the question of whether public opinion favored a third term for F. D. R. It found that only 43.6 per cent opposed a third Roosevelt term, that 48.4 per cent favored it—nearly half on the proviso that his second term is successful—and 8 per cent didn't know.

Only 26 per cent declared against the idea solely on the ground that no one should serve more than two terms. It is easy to believe this section included many who would naturally oppose Roosevelt.

Only 7.4 per cent registered as opposed because of disapproval of F. D. R., and only 10.2 because of disapproval of both Roosevelt and third terms.

The Queen's Work, a national Catholic monthly, has been polling Washington correspondents on their predictions as to the 1940 Democratic nominee. Early returns were showing that two-thirds of the correspondents picked Roosevelt as the likeliest nominee, with Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace running second, but obviously not very strong.

Not Neutral At All

It was about time some strong advocate of "neutrality legislation" publicly admitted there was nothing neutral about it and credit for this frankness now goes to Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War and one of the nation's leading pacifists.

Libby says the new law should be called "non-participation legislation." The idea, he explains, is really to limit future wars, as one would limit a fire, to the smallest possible area. Obviously, the "cash and carry principle" favors the big nations which have cash, ships and control of the seas. No policy we adopt, Libby admits, would bear equally on all belligerents.

"Japan and Italy have successfully punctured the theory that the mere threat of combined action will overawe a potential aggressor," he continues. . . . "The charge that such reasoning ignores the moral distinction between an 'aggressor' and a 'victim' is an oversimplification of the facts in every conflict."

Omit Civil Service

While debate rages over the Roosevelt supreme court plan, civil service is taking a licking. The president's proposal to extend the merit system "upward, outward and downward" is being made a pawn in the game.

Because the president isn't taking on any new fights, the crop insurance bill, passed by the senate with a provision exempting from civil service all officials and employes hired under the act, is likely to stand that way in the house.

The new Guffey coal bill passed by the house exempts a large number of clerks, attorneys, special agents, technical experts and examiners.

It's an ironic fact that Roosevelt, now being bitterly attacked for an attempt to grab power through his court proposal, offered in the civil service section of his reorganization program to surrender more power than any president had proposed to give up in many decades. Opportunity to appoint six new justices temporarily means a tremendous extension of executive power. But Roosevelt afterward would have no control over the six. Putting the entire government personnel under civil service, as Roosevelt proposed, would mean an abandonment of executive patronage power immeasurably valuable. But it's doubtful now whether congress will ever permit this abnegation.

8 MISSING AFTER BOAT GOES DOWN

CHESTER, Pa., April 10.—(AP)—Seven men and a high school girl, making her first river trip with her father, were believed to have perished today in the sinking of the tugboat Radiant in the Delaware river near Essington.

Captain Reuben S. Daisy, 57, master of the vessel for 12 years and his first mate, Anthony Clark, 50, both of Philadelphia, were the only survivors. Their cries for help were heard by a riverfront patrolman. They were found by a tugboat searchlight and pulled from the river 45 minutes after the vessel sank about midnight.

The missing are: Alfred Robinson, 38, first engineer, Camden, N. J.; Mary, 15, his daughter; John Hurley, fireman, Camden; Ira Robinson, 32, Camden, second engineer, brother of Alfred; Woodie Owens, 28, deckhand, Philadelphia; Emery Ralph, 45, deckhand, Philadelphia; L. Mitchell, fireman, Philadelphia; R. Calles, Japanese cook, Philadelphia.

Captain Daisy and Clark were rescued by the tug Harriet which put off from the E. I. duPont Denemours wharf at Thompson's Point on the Jersey side.

The 90-ton Radiant went down without warning, Captain Daisey, said. The 80-foot vessel, built in 1903, sank in about 25 feet of water 500 feet from the Jersey shore off the southern end of Tinicum island while towing the Gulf Refining company barge Oneida.

LEGION AUXILIARY HEAD WILL VISIT

Mrs. O. W. Hahn Will Be Guest Of Local Group On April 21

The L. B. Faulk American Legion auxiliary is busily engaged in making preparations for the visit here of Mrs. O. W. Hahn, national president of the auxiliary, at Hotel Virginia on the night of April 21. Legion and auxiliary members from all parts of the fourth and fifth congressional district are expected to attend as guests of honor.

Mrs. Hahn, whose home is in Wayne, Neb., was elected to head the American Legion auxiliary's 420,000 women during the year 1936-1937 at the auxiliary's national convention in Cleveland.

One of the auxiliary's most prominent members for years, Mrs. Hahn was the unanimous choice of the convention delegates for the organization's highest office. Her record was so outstanding that her candidacy was unopposed.

At the time of her election, Mrs. Hahn was directing the nation-wide activities of the auxiliary for the welfare of disabled World war veterans as chairman of the national rehabilitation committee and was completing her sixth year in an important national post. For two years she was chairman of the national trophies, awards and emblem committee and for one year chairman of the national membership committee. She was then elected national vice-president for the northwestern division, serving during the year 1933-1934. In 1934, she was elected national historian.

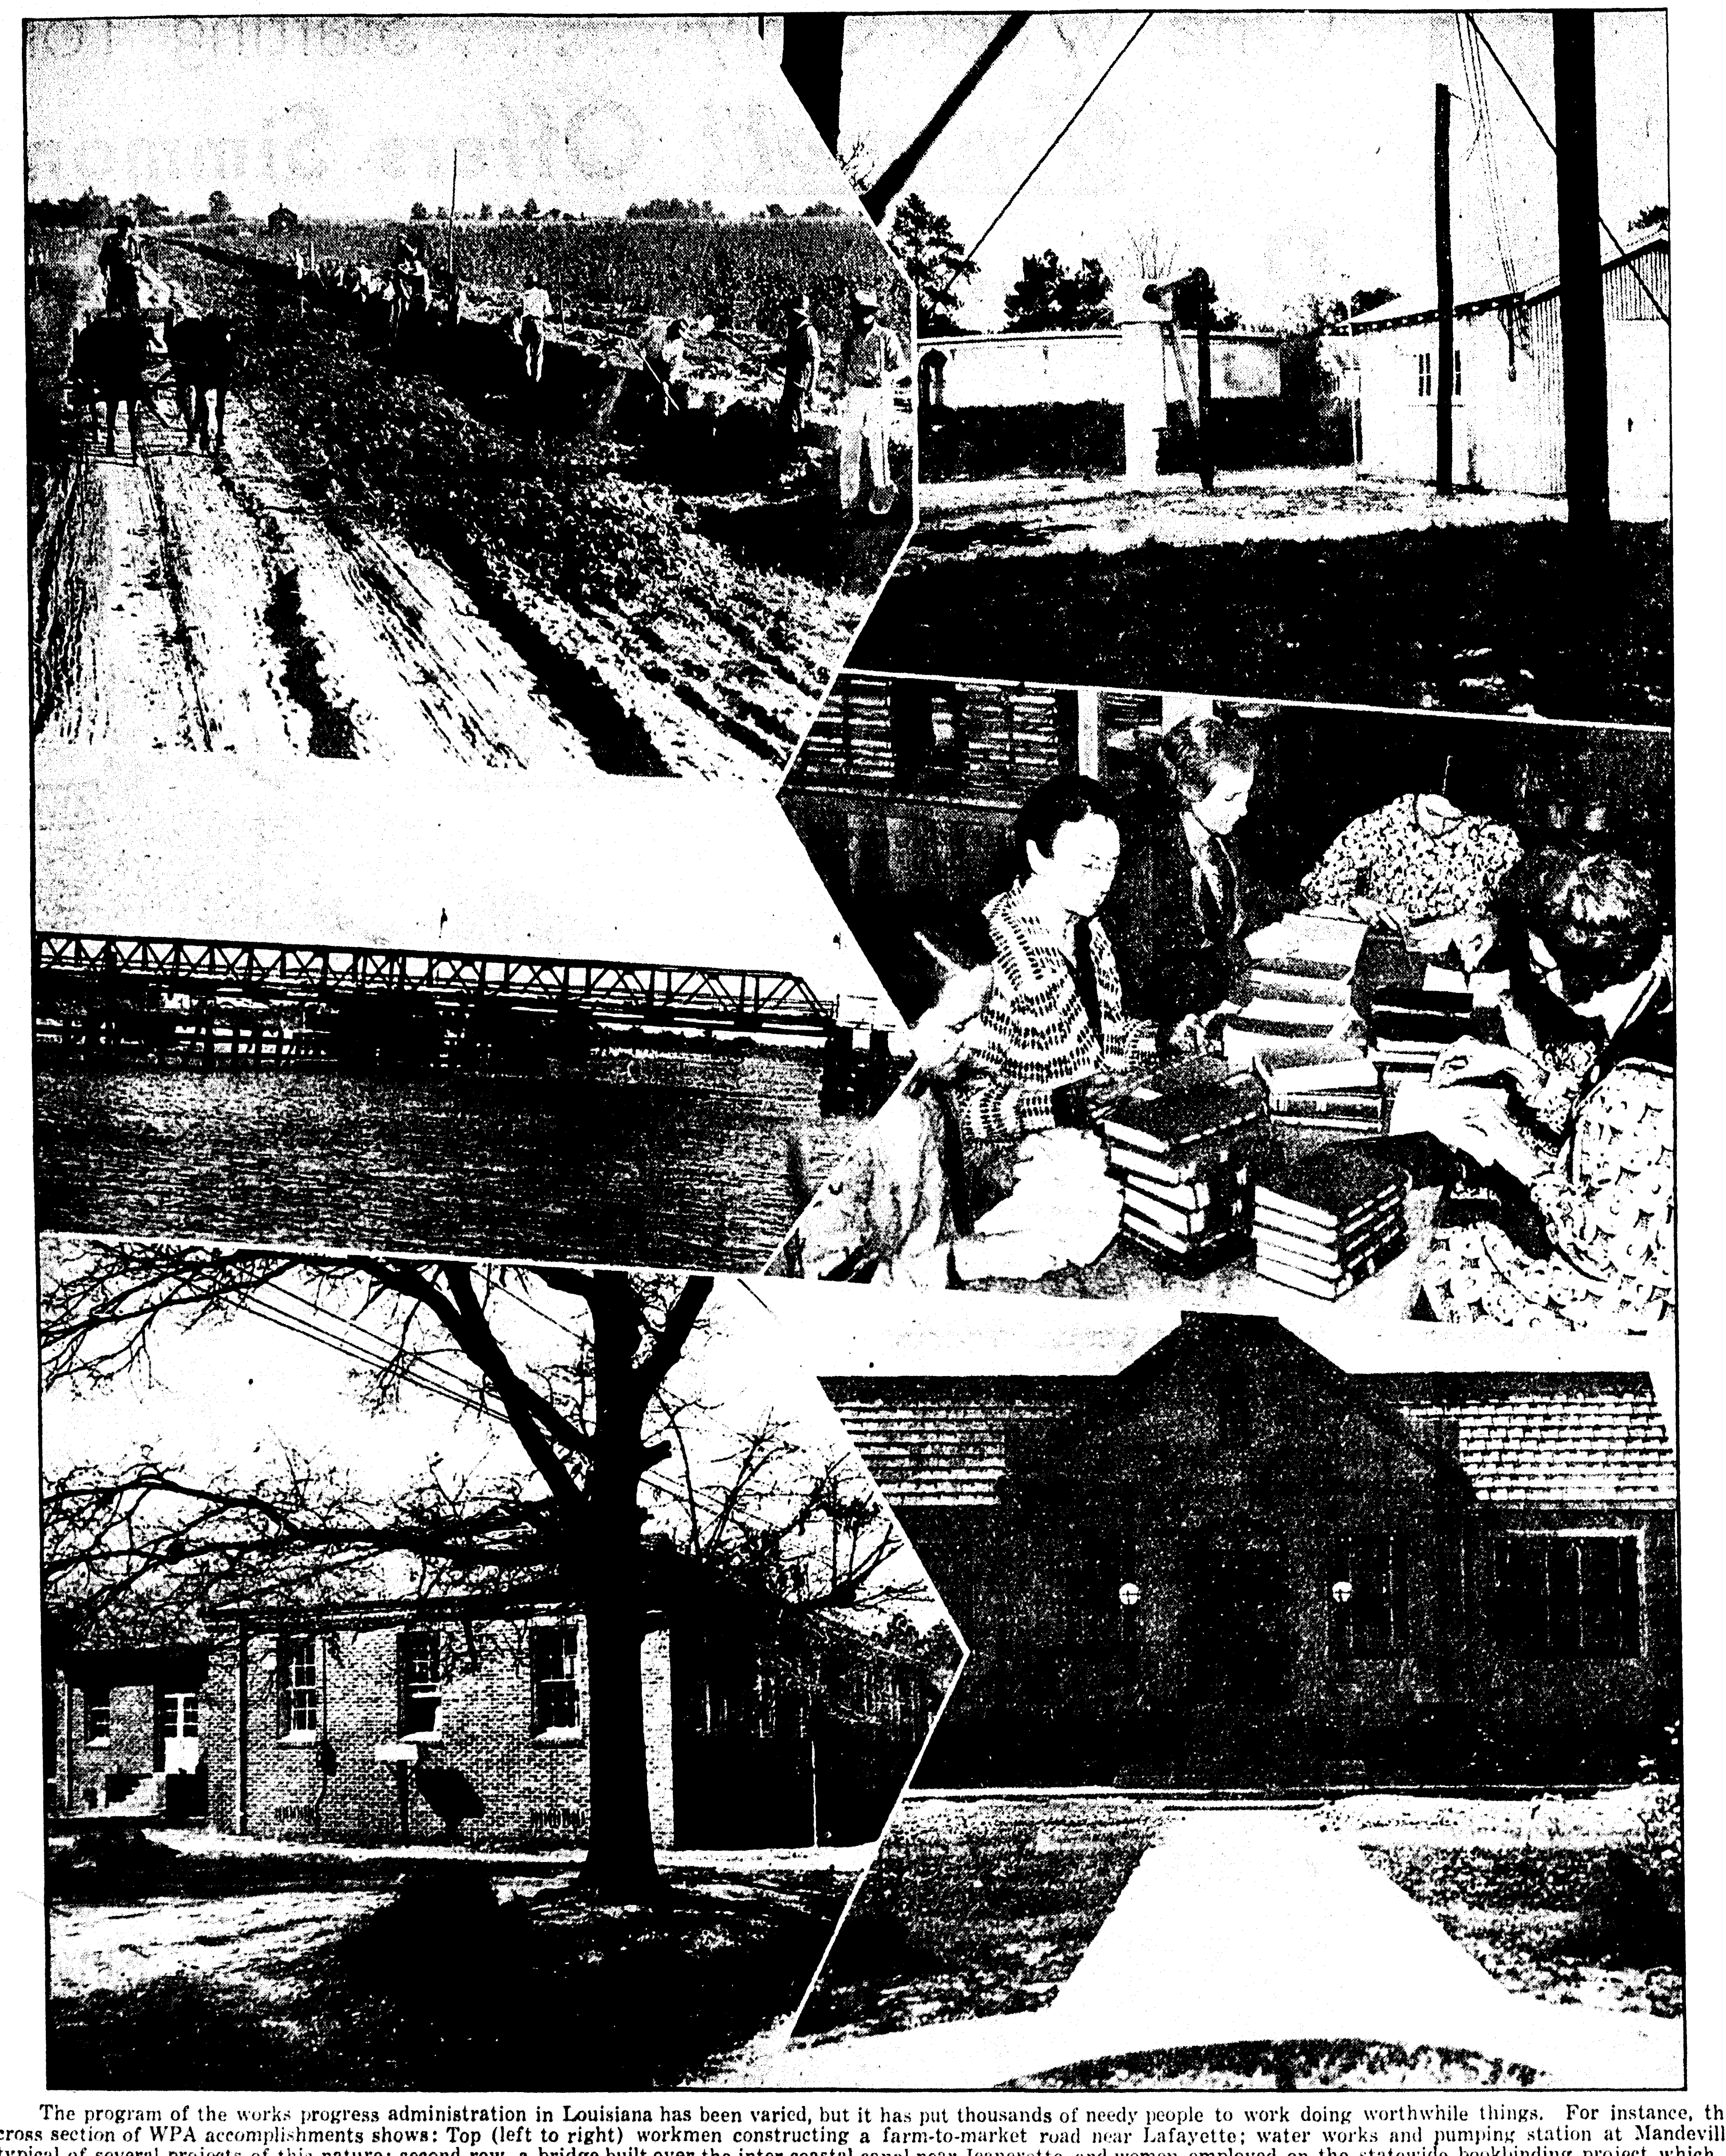
327 Construction Projects Completed By WPA In State This Year

Pictures Give Graphic View Of WPA Activities In State



The program of the works progress administration in Louisiana has been varied, but it has put thousands of needy people to work doing worthwhile things. For instance, this cross section of WPA accomplishments shows: Top (left to right) workmen constructing a farm-to-market road near Lafayette; water works and pumping station at Mandeville, typical of several projects of this nature; second row, a bridge built over the inter-coastal canal near Jeanerette, and women employed on the statewide bookbinding project which is salvaging thousands of dollars worth of school books for future use; bottom, two construction projects already completed, showing an agricultural building at Franklinton, La., and the city hall at Gueydan, La.

HOPKINS ISSUES REPORT ON WORK

$34,137,596 Spent in Louisiana Since Inception Of Federal Program

NEW ORLEANS, April 10.—(Special)—The results of less than a year of operation of the works progress administration—a review of the large volume of new construction and improvement projects placed into operation throughout the state of Louisiana and the nation—were disclosed today in a survey made public in Washington by Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator.

This survey of activities in this state was based upon figures sent to national headquarters by James H. Crutcher, administrator of the works progress administration in Louisiana who commented:

"I am gratified by Mr. Hopkins' report. I feel that it shows the WPA in Louisiana and throughout the nation is doing its part to find work for the able-bodied unemployed who are in need, and at the same time is accomplishing worthwhile things."

Later figures released by Mr. Crutcher reveal that up to March 20 of this year, the WPA had completed 327 construction projects throughout the state, not including the 85 non-construction projects employing approximately 15 per cent of the total relief load. At the present time there are 222 construction and 85 non-construction projects actually under way.

Mr. Crutcher revealed that the works progress administration has spent $34,137,596 in Louisiana since the inception of the works program in this state during October of 1935. Of this total amount, the federal government has spent $30,805,220, and the sponsors—actually the beneficiaries of the work accomplished—have contributed only $3,332,378, or 9.7 per cent of the grand total.

The construction thus far completed by the WPA in Louisiana consists principally of drainage, malarial control, farm-to-market roads, city and town street paving, sidewalks, sanitary collection systems and disposal plants, storm drainage systems and varied types of public buildings.

Non-construction projects include bookbinding, commodity distribution, emergency education, librarians, recreation, nursery schools, sewing, reindexing of parish records, air marking for aid to air navigation, and the soil and foundation survey.

Mr. Crutcher revealed that approximately 32,000 persons—the full quota allotted to the state at the present time—are now at work on construction and non-manual WPA projects.

Mr. Hopkins' detailed report of physical accomplishments through September 15 of last year, less than 12 months after the WPA went to work, shows that drainage and sanitation engineering projects featured the program in Louisiana.

WPA workmen in this state dug or repaired more than 250 miles of drainage ditches, affording drainage for 170,498 acres. Seven other projects serve 216 acres, and entailed laying or repairing 4,630 feet of pipe. Up to that time the WPA had built two new pumping stations and repaired two others, all four having a combined capacity of 36,824,525 gallons a day. The four new sewage treatment plants built during the period and the one that was repaired by WPA workmen handle 317,820 gallons of sewage daily. In this program, also, nearly 53 miles of water main was laid or repaired, and more than 2,100 sanitary toilets constructed.

New and reconditioned storm or sanitary sewer lines totaled more than 33 miles, and 14 miles of new trunk lines and more than 10 miles of new lateral lines were included.

The construction program during that period was featured by the erection of educational buildings, and of the 172 new or reconditioned buildings completed by the WPA, two-thirds were of an educational nature. The survey shows that 24 were administrative buildings, 109 educational, two were institutional, seven were garages, six were enclosed recreational buildings and 11 were open recreational buildings.

The schools erected by the WPA have a pupil capacity of 29,568 and cover 956,896 square feet.

Athletic fields and playgrounds also came in for attention in the WPA program, 17 new and improved athletic fields and playgrounds having been constructed over an area of 54 acres. The six parks and fairgrounds constructed cover 175 acres, and three swimming pools have a surface area of 37,300 square feet.

Of perhaps more general interest, however, is the report of the program on road construction. During the first year of operation in Louisiana, the WPA expended new and improved roads for more than 740 miles. The greater part of this program was for secondary or farm-to-market roads. Two hundred fourteen bridges were built or repaired for a total length of 7,239 feet; more than 400 new culverts were installed and 164 were repaired.

"Our program during that year was by no means centered on construction," said Mr. Crutcher. "Mr. Hopkins' report reveals that the 54 sewing rooms operating throughout Louisiana produced 269,853 garments, of which a total of 98,956 garments were distributed to the needy poor, who were also given more than 2,600 tons of foodstuff from the surplus commodity supplies."

In libraries throughout the state, WPA workers repaired more than 102,000 books and cataloged about 463,000 others. They served 538,614 hot lunches, and dental, medical and nursing assistants made 105,861 visits to the sick.

"A vast amount of similar work is not included in this survey," said Mr. Crutcher. "The purpose of the summary is simply to present an inventory of physical accomplishments in major types of projects after approximately one year of operation.

"For instance, the survey fails to touch upon flood control work in Louisiana during the past winter when the works progress administration stepped into the breech during that emergency, spending approximately $427,000 of the $600,000 allocated for the work."

Up to September 15, the building of canals and channels, levees and embankments, and grading and terracing constituted the main work on flood and erosion control projects. In that time 20 canals and channels were dug or repaired over a distance of more than 57 miles, the WPA workmen placing a total of 191,674 cubic yards of material, and rebuilding more than seven miles of levees and embankments.

On grading projects a total of 13,116 cubic yards was excavated and 27,276 cubic yards filled. One improved erosion terrace extended 26,650 feet over an area of 3,944,200 square feet.

With the winter floods along the Mississippi and its tributaries, however, practically the entire force of WPA workmen in the affected areas were set to the task of building protecting levee lines.

Some 10,000 workmen were taken from projects throughout the state and assigned to this work under the supervision of the United States and state engineers. They built 300 refugee shelters in the Alexandria district. They extended and raised levees wherever danger threatened and they engaged in sanitation and first aid work until the emergency subsided.

Throughout all this time the administrative forces of the district offices remained on duty day and night in order to coordinate the work being carried on throughout the state.

The Hopkins survey of the nation during the period which began with the inception of the WPA and ended September 15, disclosed that WPA workers throughout the United States had completed more than 29,000 miles of new roads, repaired or improved about 93,500 miles of existing roads, mostly of the farm-to-market type. They built more than 2,700 miles of hard surfaced roads and streets, and repaired some 4,380 miles of thoroughfare of a permanent nature.

By that date, also, work involving the new construction of 4,140 public buildings and the repair, modernization or improvement of 12,255 additional public buildings had been completed. This included the construction of 1,099 new educational buildings providing schooling facilities for nearly 160,000 pupils.

Many localities throughout the nation took advantage of the opportunity afforded by the WPA to improve sanitary conditions, a total of 1,155 sewage disposal plants being erected, ranging from septic tanks with a capacity of 1,000 gallons a day, to the larger plants with settling basins, having a capacity of 500,000 to 1,000,000 gallons per day.

Many non-construction projects were developed to meet the problem presented by the presence of large groups of women and professional workers in the ranks of the needy unemployed. Important among these developments were the production or repair of more than 60,000,000 articles of clothing in the 10,052 WPA sewing rooms scattered throughout the country.

NAZARENE CHURCH TO CONTINUE MEETING

Rev. G. M. Akin, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene, stated that the revival that has been in progress at that church for several weeks will be continued through this week.

The evangelist, Rev. Jack Frost, preached Friday from Jude 23. He said that sin is like fire, mysterious, two-fold in nature, attractive in effectiveness, destructive in its consequences, but that it can be handled if attacked in time.

Professor L. C. Messer, Oklahoma City, had charge of the music. Music is proving one of the most attractive features of the nightly services.

Two well-attended preaching services are anticipated today. The public is cordially invited to attend.

RED CROSS NURSE TO BE OBTAINED

Pauline W. Mathewson Will Aid Indigent Sick In Two Cities

Pauline W. Mathewson, Red Cross nurse who has just completed her duties in Memphis, Tenn., where she was assigned to duty in connection with the Mississippi valley flood, has been obtained by the Ouachita parish Red Cross as parish nurse. Her duties will start here on May 1.

Decision to employ her was determined at the April meeting of the Red Cross chapter held here on Friday afternoon.

Her duties will be to nurse the indigent sick, making short calls daily on such cases that are found in Monroe and West Monroe. She will also conduct classes in home hygiene and the care of the sick throughout the entire parish.

Plans were formulated for the holding of a first aid class preparatory to the opening of the second first aid station in Ouachita parish under the direction of the Red Cross chapter. The first station, already in operation, is located west of West Monroe, at Downing's tourist camp. The second station, soon to be established, will be located at Collins store, near Sterlington, on the paved Monroe-Bastrop highway.

A group from the Ouachita parish Red Cross chapter attended the opening of the first aid station in Alto, Richland parish recently.

Routine matters were considered at the chapter's meeting which was presided over by Judge W. M. Harper, chairman.

Could Not Realize Gly-Cas Efficiency Was So Remarkable

Mr. Davis' Ten Years' Suffering With Kidneys, Bowels, Indigestion Ended By New Herbal Remedy; Feels Best He Has In Years.

"For more than ten years before I learned of Gly-Cas, my kidney and bladder disorders together with a stubborn case of constipation and indigestion had wrecked my entire system," said Mr. J. E. Davis, 386 South Church street, Paris, Tex. "Rheumatism with its constant pain attacked me and settled in my knees, arms and shoulders. The pain was so intense at times that I thought I could surely never stand it. My stomach was so disordered that gas and bloating were with me almost continually, causing me constant discomfort. Severe headaches and dizzy spells added to my distress and I was gradually growing worse. I was tired and worn out most of the time as a good night's sleep was next to impossible since the too frequent action of my kidneys would not allow me a moment of peace at night. But that was before Gly-Cas was brought to my attention and I gave it the opportunity to show its distinct difference from all the others.

MR. J. E. DAVIS

"Gly-Cas seemed to go directly to the source of my health troubles and I was able to see a great change being brought about in my condition almost immediately," he continued. "My kidneys are in the best condition they have been in years, bowels are functioning properly and those poisons which had been accumulating in my system have been eliminated in a most natural way. I enjoy full nights of energy-giving sleep and rest since my nerves have been quieted and I am no longer bothered with night risings. That awful rheumatism has been almost entirely eliminated and I really have been made to feel like a different person. Gly-Cas has given me results I had previously thought impossible and I cannot find words to express the feeling of gratitude I have for such a meritorious remedy."

Gly-Cas is sold by Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard St. and by all leading drug stores in surrounding towns.

327 Construction Projects Completed By WPA In State This Year

$34,137,596 Spent in Louisiana Since Inception Of Federal Program

NEW ORLEANS, April 10.—(Special)—The results of less than a year of operation of the works progress administration—a review of the large volume of new construction and improvement projects placed into operation throughout the state of Louisiana and the nation—were disclosed today in a survey made public in Washington by Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator.

This survey of activities in this state was based upon figures sent to national headquarters by James H. Crutcher, administrator of the works progress administration in Louisiana who commented:

"I am gratified by Mr. Hopkins' report. I feel that it shows the WPA in Louisiana and throughout the nation is doing its part to find work for the able-bodied unemployed who are in need, and at the same time is accomplishing worthwhile things."

Later figures released by Mr. Crutcher reveal that up to March 20 of this year, the WPA had completed 327 construction projects throughout the state, not including the 85 non-construction projects employing approximately 15 per cent of the total relief load. At the present time there are 222 construction and 85 non-construction projects actually under way.

Mr. Crutcher revealed that the works progress administration has spent $34,137,596 in Louisiana since the inception of the works program in this state during October of 1935. Of this total amount, the federal government has spent $30,805,220, and the sponsors—actually the beneficiaries of the work accomplished—have contributed only $3,332,378, or 9.7 per cent of the grand total.

The construction thus far completed by the WPA in Louisiana consists principally of drainage, malarial control, farm-to-market roads, city and town street paving, sidewalks, sanitary collection systems and disposal plants, storm drainage systems and varied types of public buildings.

Non-construction projects include bookbinding, commodity distribution, emergency education, librarians, recreation, nursery schools, sewing, reindexing of parish records, air marking for aid to air navigation, and the soil and foundation survey.

Mr. Crutcher revealed that approximately 32,000 persons—the full quota allotted to the state at the present time—are now at work on construction and non-manuel WPA projects.

Mr. Hopkins' detailed report of physical accomplishments through September 15 of last year, less than 12 months after the WPA went to work, shows that drainage and sanitation engineering projects featured the program in Louisiana.

WPA workmen in this state dug or repaired more than 250 miles of drainage ditches, affording drainage for 170,498 acres. Seven other projects serve 216 acres, and entailed laying or repairing 4,630 feet of pipe. Up to that time the WPA had built two new pumping stations and repaired two others, all four having a combined capacity of 36,824,525 gallons a day. The four new sewage treatment plants built during the period and the one that was repaired by WPA workmen handle 317,820 gallons of sewage daily. In this program, also, nearly 53 miles of water main was laid or repaired, and more than 2,100 sanitary toilets constructed.

New and reconditioned storm or sanitary sewer lines totaled more than 33 miles, and 14 miles of new trunk lines and more than 10 miles of new lateral lines were included.

The construction program during that period was featured by the erection of educational buildings, and of the 172 new or reconditioned buildings completed by the WPA, two-thirds were of an educational nature. The survey shows that 24 were administrative buildings, 109 educational, two were institutional, seven were garages, six were enclosed recreational buildings and 11 were open recreational buildings.

The schools erected by the WPA have a pupil capacity of 29,568 and cover 956,896 square feet.

Athletic fields and playgrounds also came in for attention in the WPA program, 17 new and improved athletic fields and playgrounds having been constructed over an area of 54 acres. The six parks and fairgrounds constructed cover 175 acres, and three swimming pools have a surface area of 37,300 square feet.

Pictures Give Graphic View Of WPA Activities In State

be "fixed" ruefully declared that it was his duty to enforce the law and found himself in the role of a violator. He explained that he was stopping only a few hours in the city. The police explained the provisions of the new traffic rule and tore up his ticket.

A number of local residents appeared at police headquarters with various excuses for violating the law. These were told that they could not be excused, as sufficient notice had been given to people living here and therefore their tickets could not be "fixed." The offenders were fined a nominal amount and cautioned to observe the new law.

Ten officers under Police Captains F. S. Pettit and J. D. Busby were on duty in the district where the one-hour parking rule is now in force from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. They were armed with chalk-tipped batons and systematically made their rounds, marking the wheels of all parked cars. At the end of an hour they returned to the start of their beat and cars which were still parked and bore a chalk mark on a wheel, were decorated with a ticket. A number of car owners, in a hurry to go home, attempted to "fix" their tickets with the officers in charge but the latter courteously, but firmly, told the ticket holders to "see the desk sergeant." Those who failed to pay their fines yesterday must appear in the city court Monday morning and "tell it to the judge."

The downtown district yesterday was noticeably free from the congestion of traffic which heretofore has marked Saturdays in Monroe. Shoppers had ample opportunity to find parking spaces for their automobiles as the law was generally well observed. Comments on the one-hour parking rule were universally faforable and many shoppers expressed their satisfaction with the new conditions which permit them to find parking places. Prior to the enforcement of the one-hour parking law, it was almost impossible to find a parking place in the downtown district after offices and business establishments opened for business.

Chief of Police Reitzell announced yesterday that a zone at the intersection of Harrison and St. John streets and extending on the side of the Ouachita National bank will be marked off, and no parking will be permitted in that zone which will be used only by trucks servicing the bank. The alley between the bank building and the Monroe Building and Loan must be kept clear of cars at all times, Chief Reitzell said.

WOMAN IN ORLEANS HELD FOR MURDER

NEW ORLEANS, April 10.—(AP)—A 34-year-old woman was booked with the murder of Robert Lee Richards, sportsman, who died today of a gunshot wound of the abdomen as police prepared to perform a fourth blood transfusion.

Best known as Mildred Andrews, the woman was booked under four names which she has used here. The others are Marie Andree, Marietta Andree and Marie Ramsey. She denied shooting Richards, who police said was her frequent companion.

Investigating officers early Friday found the wounded man sitting on a curb in the French quarter, slumped forward on his knees, and the Andrews woman standing beside him.

They held as evidence a revolver which they said was taken from the pocket of her fur coat after the shooting. Two cartridges were freshly discharged. The woman denied ownership of the weapon and said she did not know how it got into her pocket.

Police said Richards, who was found in front of the boarding house where the Andrews woman lives, escorted her on a round of night clubs and returned with her to her room before the shooting.

The woman, they said, appeared in a dazed condition today in her police cell. They quoted her as saying: "I don't remember anything about that guy at all" when told Richards had died.

Richards, who was 33, was married and was the father of a three-month-old child.

moved and industry is liberated, everything will improve. We will see a real prosperity."

The Detroit manufacturer reiterated charges that war-seeking financiers are backing labor unions. He asserted also his company has been "holding down production so as not to take advantage" of strike-beset competitors.

Ford said Wednesday he never would recognize the United Automobile Workers association or any other union for collective bargaining. He declined comment today on announced plans of the U. A. W. A. to unionize his plants despite this statement.

"When this strike mess is over," Ford said, "we'll demonstrate some real competition in quantity production with new methods that will call for more skill, higher wages, and a larger number of employes."

Ford would not say whether he has a definite plan at this time to boost his minimum wage, now at $6 per day. He recalled that his minimum wage was $7 per day at one time, prior to the depression.

"Labor union organizations are the worst thing that ever struck the earth because they take away a man's independence," Ford said. "Financiers are behind the unions and their object is to kill competition so as to reduce the income of workers, and eventually bring on war."

Discussing the relationship between employer and employes, Ford said, "We're all workers together, the men and I."

"There shouldn't be any bargaining or dealing necessary. Our company pays the best wages it can and always has. We keep a surplus on hand so as to be independent of financiers, but our surplus has not increased. We can pay more when we increase the quantity of our production."

ened by a terrific crash which shook the entire house, broke windows and chinaware. Leaving the house he found Johnson lying unconscious in his automobile, which was badly damaged, and called an ambulance.

Johnson is said to have been driving west across the new traffic bridge. Mr. Fife's residence stands at the west corner of the intersection of Bridge street, which is really a continuation of the traffic bridge and extends for about 600 feet, and Cypress street. A person crossing the bridge from the east can see Mr. Fife's house directly in front. Johnson, who it is claimed was driving at a high rate of speed, failed to take the right hand turn into Cypress street, but continued straight ahead and smashed into the corner of Mr. Fife's house. It is said that he applied his brakes when about 90 feet from the house and that the car literally jumped the last 30 feet before striking the house.

Mr. Fife reported that a front bedroom, the bathroom and the kitchen were smashed in, and the house itself knocked off its foundation.

named, with police finally concentrating on Irwin, the eccentric sculptor and divinity student.

"The man is stark mad," commented Lyons. "In my opinion, he will be judged insane and placed in an institution. It makes no difference whether he commited three or 30 murders as far as the state is concerned."

He added he considered Irwin "a danger to the citizens of the community, wherever he might be."

A one-time voluntary inmate of a hospital for the insane, Irwin may be headed for the west coast, Lyons said.

Reports were received at police headquarters that a motorist had identified a photograph of Irwin as that of a hitchhiker en route to Indianapolis or Terre Haute. The man was seen near Collinsville, Ill.

Highways in western Pennsylvania and West Virginia were watched on receipt of a report that an automobile in which Irwin was said to be riding had been seen near Coudersport, Pa., and had then headed west toward Erie and Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Joseph Kudner, Veronica's married sister, was granted letters of administration yesterday for the estate of her mother, Mary, valued at $19,500, all in real estate.

PARKING TICKETS

be "fixed" ruefully declared that it was his duty to enforce the law and round himself in the role of a violator. He explained that he was stopping only a few hours in the city. The police explained the provisions of the new traffic rule and tore up his ticket.

A number of local residents appeared at police headquarters with various excuses for violating the law. These were told that they could not be excused, as sufficient notice had been given to people living here and therefore their tickets could not be "fixed." The offenders were fined a nominal amount and cautioned to observe the new law.

Ten officers under Police Captains F. S. Pettit and J. D. Busby were on duty in the district where the one-hour parking rule is now in force from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. They were armed with chalk-tipped batons and systematically made their rounds, marking the wheels of all parked cars. At the end of an hour they returned to the start of their beat and cars which were still parked and bore a chalk mark on a wheel, were decorated with a ticket. A number of car owners, in a hurry to go home, attempted to "fix" their tickets with the officers in charge but the latter courteously, but firmly, told the ticket holders to "see the desk sergeant." Those who failed to pay their fines yesterday must appear in the city court Monday morning and "tell it to the judge."

The downtown district yesterday was noticeably free from the congestion of traffic which heretofore has marked Saturdays in Monroe. Shoppers had ample opportunity to find parking spaces for their automobiles as the law was generally well observed. Comments on the one-hour parking rule were universally faforable and many shoppers expressed their satisfaction with the new conditions which permit them to find parking places. Prior to the enforcement of the one-hour parking law, it was almost impossible to find a parking place in the downtown district after offices and business establishments opened for business.

Chief of Police Reitzell announced yesterday that a zone at the intersection of Harrison and St. John streets and extending on the side of the Ouachita National bank will be marked off, and no parking will be permitted in that zone which will be used only by trucks servicing the bank. The alley between the bank building and the Monroe Building and Loan must be kept clear of cars at all times, Chief Reitzell said.

a group of girls representing all the high schools participating. Miss Springer won the honor on points of physical development.

The variety entertainment program of the day began with the forming of six teams, each team having an individual color to distinguish it, and school identification being disregarded. Then followed games of baseball, volleyball, archery, tennis and horseshoe pitching, and folk dancing.

Following the luncheon and rest periods at noon, a program of songs and cheers was held, followed by relays, stunts and games.

An interesting program of tap dancing, clogging, ballet dancing and a sports parade, together with songs and music presented with acrobatic dancing and a dance on skates, brought the program up to 4 p.m., when tea was served.

The day was thoroughly enjoyed by the girls, who expressed enthusiastic appreciation to Miss Ada Bess Hart, physical education instructor of Northeast Center, and members of the Women's Athletic association.

High schools represented at the "play day" program were those of Calhoun, Forest, Bernice, Farmerville, Collinston, Winnsboro, Bonita, Clarks, Waterproof and Monroe, the latter city being represented by Ouachita Parish High school, Neville High school and St. Matthew's Parochial school.

ing that in certain subjects, notably English, he was "brilliant."

"His brother, Charles, who was graduated from the University of Virginia last year, is a Rhodes scholar at Oxford, England," Dr. Finney said, "and his father also is a brilliant man."

Dr. Finney said Bell had suffered occasionally "from periods of depression."

WOMAN IN ORLEANS HELD FOR MURDER

NEW ORLEANS, April 10.—(AP)—A 34-year-old woman was booked with the murder of Robert Lee Richards, sportsman, who died today of a gunshot wound of the abdomen as police prepared to perform a fourth blood transfusion.

Best known as Mildred Andrews, the woman was booked under four names which she has used here. The others are Marie Andree, Marietta Andree and Marie Ramsey. She denied shooting Richards, who police said was her frequent companion.

Investigating officers early Friday found the wounded man sitting on a curb in the French quarter, slumped forward on his knees, and the Andrews woman standing beside him.

They held as evidence a revolver which they said was taken from the pocket of her fur coat after the shooting. Two cartridges were freshly discharged. The woman denied ownership of the weapon and said she did not know how it got into her pocket.

Police said Richards, who was found in front of the boarding house where the Andrews woman lives, escorted her on a round of night clubs and returned with her to her room before the shooting.

The woman, they said, appeared in a dazed condition today in her police cell. They quoted her as saying: "I don't remember anything about that guy at all" when told Richards had died.

Richards, who was 33, was married and was the father of a three-month-old child.

NEGROES HELD UP

Amos Brown and Wadell Roberson, negro delivery boys employed by Collens Five-Points pharmacy, were held up last night by two negroes and robbed of one quart of wine, three packages of cigarettes and $8.71 in cash. The hold-up took place east of the Oak street crossing of the Illinois Central railroad and one of the hi-jackers is said to have flourished a pistol at the boys while the other kept watch.

moved and industry is liberated, everything will improve. We will see a real prosperity."

The Detroit manufacturer reiterated charges that war-seeking financiers are backing labor unions. He asserted also his company has been "holding down production so as not to take advantage" of strike-beset competitors.

Ford said Wednesday he never would recognize the United Automobile Workers association or any other union for collective bargaining. He declined comment today on announced plans of the U. A. W. A. to unionize his plants despite this statement.

"When this strike mess is over," Ford said, "we'll demonstrate some real competition in quantity production with new methods that will call for more skill, higher wages, and a larger number of employes."

Ford would not say whether he has a definite plan at this time to boost his minimum wage, now at $6 per day. He recalled that his minimum wage was $7 per day at one time, prior to the depression.

"Labor union organizations are the worst thing that ever struck the earth because they take away a man's independence," Ford said. "Financiers are behind the unions and their object is to kill competition so as to reduce the income of workers, and eventually bring on war."

Discussing the relationship between employer and employes, Ford said, "We're all workers together, the men and I."

"There shouldn't be any bargaining or dealing necessary. Our company pays the best wages it can and always has. We keep a surplus on hand so as to be independent of financiers, but our surplus has not increased. We can pay more when we increase the quantity of our production."

Mr. Fife reported that a front bedroom, the bathroom and the kitchen were smashed in, and the house itself knocked off its foundations.

named, with police finally concentrating on Irwin, the eccentric sculptor and divinity student.

"The man is stark mad," commented Lyons. "In my opinion, he will be judged insane and placed in an institution. It makes no difference whether he committed three or 30 murders as far as the state is concerned.

He added he considered Irwin "a danger to the citizens of the community, wherever he might be."

A one-time voluntary inmate of a hospital for the insane, Irwin may be headed for the west coast, Lyons said.

Reports were received at police headquarters that a motorist had identified a photograph of Irwin as that of a hitchhiker en route to Indianapolis or Terre Haute. The man was seen near Collinsville, Ill.

Highways in western Pennsylvania and West Virginia were watched on receipt of a report that an automobile in which Irwin was said to be riding had been seen near Coudersport, Pa., and had then headed west toward Erie and Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Joseph Kudner, Veronica's married sister, was granted letters of administration yesterday for the estate of her mother, Mary, valued at $19,500, all in real estate.

Copies of world famous paintings, owned by the Louisiana library commission, are available for clubs and individuals of the state for exhibit purposes. They may be obtained by writing the commission offices in Baton Rouge.

A check of the 675 students at the Missouri College of Agriculture disclosed representatives of three foreign countries, 10 states and more than 100 Missouri counties.

"Since the purchase of my Willys, I have driven 4,000 miles and have averaged 34 miles to a gallon of gasoline," says Mr. Chris Margraf, Jr. who is Assistant Manager of the Bay City Country Club. He further states, "The enjoyment of its riding is a feature of great importance, and the large roomy seats afford comfort on long trips. I am convinced that Willys is the real car for a young man to own."

Young folks are not the only ones who have discovered the New Willys. Such features as all-steel top and body—large luggage space—2 to 4 inches wider front seat than next three cars—two large parcel compartments—safety glass all-around—and oversize brakes are showing thousands new motoring enjoyment at far less cost. Let us show you how Willys can save you up to $270 the first year—ask us for a trial ride.

CHAPTER I

". . . In sickness and in health . . . for better, for worse, till death do us part. . . ."

The solemn words fell into the stained glass hush of church on a warm September afternoon. Mrs. Pettingill, who had known Gypsy Morell since childhood, sniffed and wiped her eyes quite openly. Mrs. Pettingill always cried at weddings. There was something . . . she didn't know . . . sad about them. Even when the bride was young and slim and lovely and pliant, as was Gypsy, who lived up to her name, from her crown of alive, curling brown hair to the soles of her dancing feet.

It was over now. Gypsy and Tom Weaver, the bridegroom, tall and fair-haired and grave, were turning away from the altar. The little church was filled to overflowing. Everybody craned necks to smile at the pair. Gypsy's dress, Mrs. Pettingill said to herself, mournfully, was "real sweet." No one would suspect she had made it herself, from a Paris pattern. It was demure, high-necked and full-skirted. She could wear it, later, as a dinner dress . . . trust Gypsy to think of that. Her veil was of tulle, fine and soft and billowy, but the cap that crowned it was of old, rare lace. Gypsy's great-grandmother, a delicate, aristocratic French girl who had married a seagoing Morell in 1851, had brought it with her to the little New Jersey town.

Tom Weaver was real good-looking, reflected Mrs. Pettingill, solemnly, putting her handkerchief away and preparing to follow the newly married pair to the vestry, where they would see their friends. She had been invited to the church, of course, but only a few people beside "the immediate family" would go on to the Morell house, a big, shabby, rambling frame structure on Upper Dean street. Mrs. Morell was "poorly" and there would be no reception, as such. Tom and Gypsy would slip away, later, in the shining little two-seated car which was Gypsy's wedding present from her bridegroom. Dear knows why, Mrs. Pettingill muttered to herself. They were going to live in New York City, the young Weavers. It was expensive to keep a car there, ruinously so. What the good lady did not know (and she knew almost everything of interest that had happened in Blue Hills) was that Tom and Gypsy intended to leave the car at "Mother's," using it only for week-ends.

It was strange, but everybody seemed to say the same thing. "Congratulations! You looked just lovely . . . never saw a prettier bride." Gypsy stood, looking small and childlike, at Tom Weaver's side. Her smile was good to see. She was 22, gay, buoyant, gallant. Tom, some people said to each other, was a lucky fellow. Tom's people sniffed and said Gypsy was the lucky one.

Mrs. Pettingill pumped the bridegroom's hand and kissed Gypsy with the thoroughness she bestowed on everything she did.

"I hope you'll be as happy as Mr. Pettingill and I have always been," she said, sentimentally. She beamed at them from behind her strong glasses. She was always one for young folks, she told herself. They gave you hope . . . something to go on. It was a pity she and Henry never had children. Gypsy was almost like one of her own, though, living across the street, as she did. Why, from the time she was that high . . . Mrs. Pettingill measured the space half-way up the umbrella she carried . . . Gypsy had been in and out of her house as if it were her own.

She went on, smiling and sighing, nodding to the neighbors. Gypsy saw everyone, had a word for them all. The dressmaker who had made her mother's beige crepe. The children from the nursery school in Upper Dean street, where she had taught last year. All her mother's old friends. Then the young ones clustered around. Sue and the Blake twins, Margie, and Tip and Jack Ferris and all the others. It was fun. Gypsy was enjoying her own wedding.

"All right, darling," Tom thought they ought to go now. The ice cream would be melting in the dishes up at her mother's house. How odd that she should think of home in those terms already—well, she was a wife, and she would have an establishment of her own very soon, her own chairs and tables and books and beds. It was a thrilling thought.

They ran through aisles of laughing people to the taxi which stood waiting. One of the station taxis. The driver was a ruddy-faced man who had known Gypsy since he had driven her to dancing school at the age of 10.

"Wish you luck," the man murmured, shamefacedly, slamming the door after them. Tip and Jack threw rice. The last Gypsy saw of them all was a sea of smiling faces. Then she was alone with Tom.

"Darling, darling!" He turned her hand about, so, and put a kiss into the upturned palm. Dear Tom, how serious he was about all this! Gypsy's face was bright with smiles, her eyes fairly danced.

"Wasn't it all beautiful? Didn't it go well?" she exulted, settling herself into the curve of his arm. "I suppose it would have been better, as you suggested, to slip away and be married quietly . . . just ourselves. But this was fun, wasn't it? The church . . . and all the old friends, and everything?"

Tom stopped all this chatter in the most sensible possible way, with a kiss. It was like Gypsy to rattle on in this excitable fashion. Privately, he thought that while the ceremony itself had been memorably beautiful, it was dreadful to have all those hordes of people gaping and sighing over one. Now they would have an hour . . . maybe two hours . . . of handshaking and embracing, before he and his wife (how strange the word sounded) could slip away quietly together.

The porch of the gabled brown house had been made brave with flowers . . . hydrangeas in tubs, some red roses. But nothing, Gypsy thought, with a quick sigh and frown for the intrusion of this thought on the perfection of the afternoon, nothing could hide the shabbiness of the old basket chairs, nor disguise the fact that paint was peeling from pillar and ceiling. Father had wanted to have the house painted for the wedding—darling Father! But of course, he hadn't been able to manage it. It was just one of those daydreams in which the happy-go-lucky Morells occasionally indulged themselves. SOME DAY WE'LL HAVE THE HOUSE PAINTED was the name of that particular dream.

As if it mattered, cried Gypsy to herself, rushing up the steps . . . as if anything mattered on this day of days, her wedding day!

Clytie, the colored woman who had cooked and scrubbed and nursed the Morells for some 20-odd years, ever since Gypsy's adorable and turbulent babyhood, appeared in the doorway. Clytie had a new pale green uniform, but her apron straps were crooked and her cap awry, as usual. Not even Gypsy's wedding day could make Clytie completely tidy. She rolled her eyes at them both in welcome as she swung the screen door wide.

"Bes' wishes, Mis' Gypsy," she cried sonorously. "Congratulations, Mist' Weaver."

In three minutes the old house was buzzing with noise and excitement. Gypsy, her veil tossed back, stood to cut the huge cake, of Clytie's baking at a dining room table heavy with embroidery and yellowed lace. Mrs. Morell, a slender, melancholy lady in her early 50's, with the resigned expression of the chronic invalid, watched her only daughter anxiously. Gypsy was "so flighty," all the relatives said. Maybe marriage would "settle her," although in 1932 marriage wasn't any too likely to achieve such results. And she was young to marry—22. Mrs. Morell herself had been 28 at the time of her own marriage, and 30 at the time of Gypsy's birth. Later—eight years later—had come the twins, Bertram and Beatrice. Mrs. Morell said to herself she'd never been really well since. But Gipsy—well, marriage would be different for her. Girls nowadays took it in their stride. Gypsy—fancy that!—was going to keep her job. She taught in a settlement house over in New York City. Her mother wondered gloomily just how long that state of affairs would last. Gypsy was such a child about everything, such an optimist. She thought it would be a larke to manage home, husband and job as well.

"A lot she knows," murmured Mrs. Morell darkly to herself.

The slices, dark and rich, fell away under her daughter's knife.

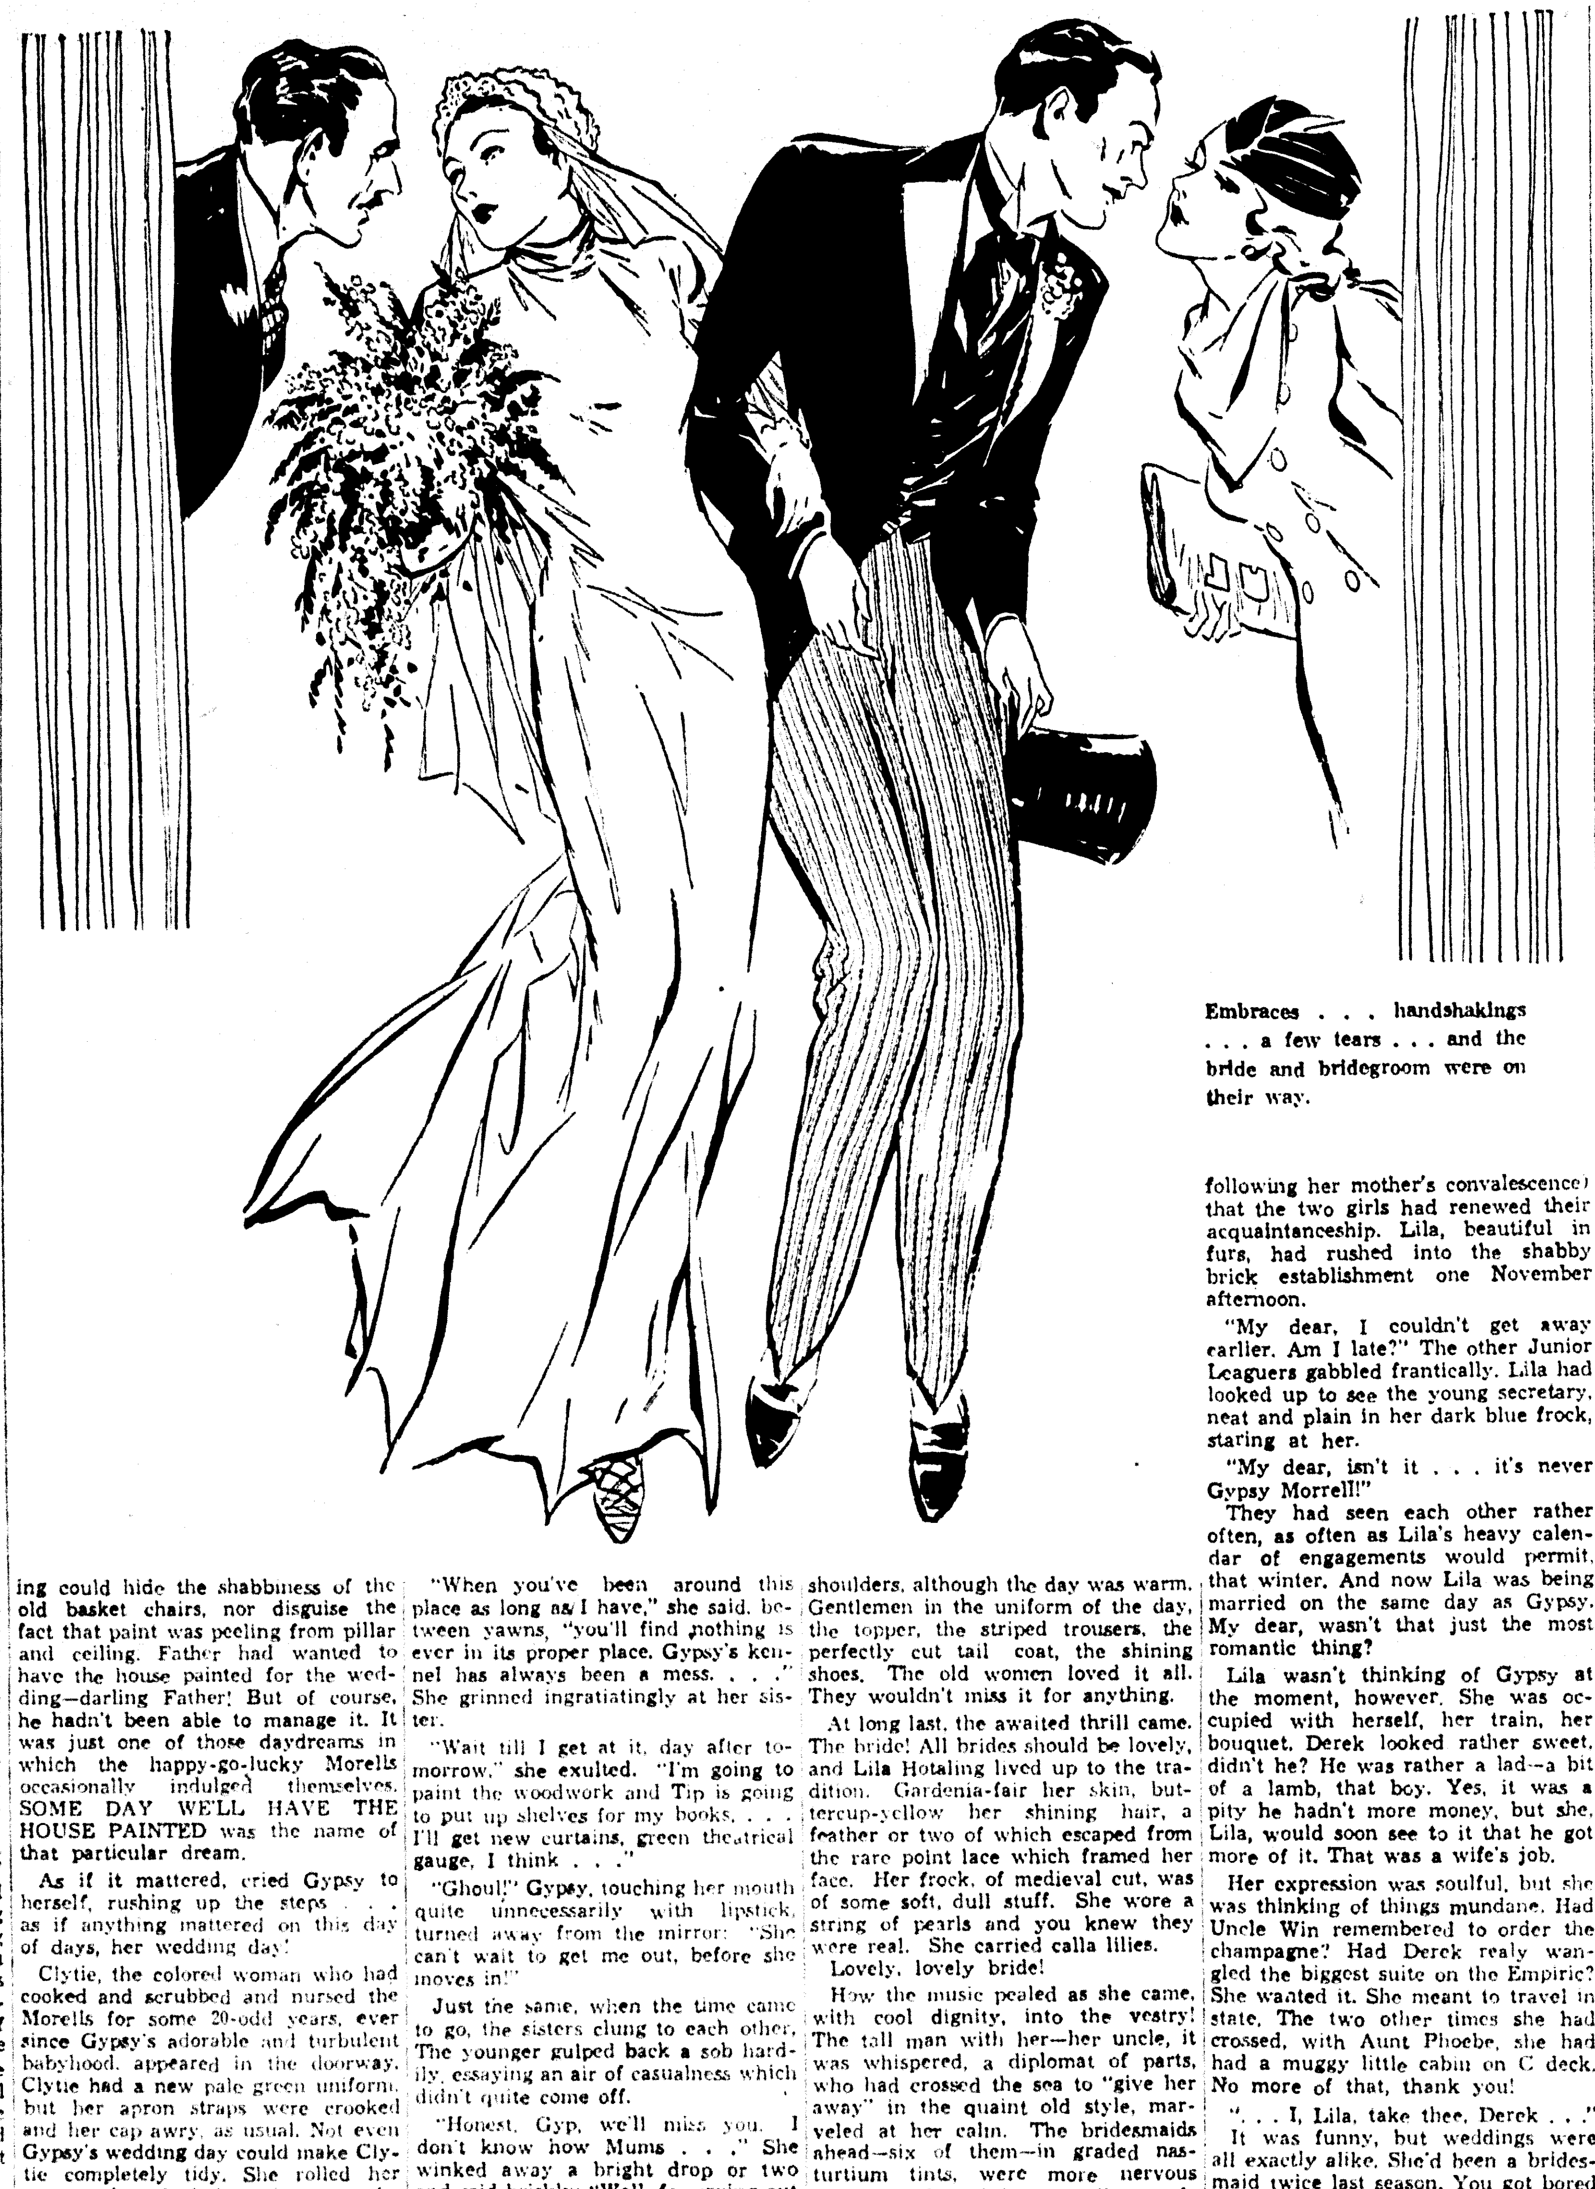
"Mummy! The first for Mummy!" Mrs. Morell came alive, smiling and sighing. Why, she was just a baby. She thought life was all roses and sunshine. . . .

The shadows lengthened outside. Upstairs, in the big corner bedroom, Gypsy was folding her wedding dress into its tissue and slipping into the beige tweeds which were her traveling costume.

"My dear, it's simply stunning!" This was Sue Canavan, her bridesmaid. Sue, still in the delphinium blue chiffon which brought out the color of her own long-lashed eyes. Sue after a long hunt found her gloves for her, her hat, her printed linen handkerchief. Beatrice, the 14-year-old twin, all arms and legs and tawny hair, worn in a Janet Gaynor bob, sat cross-legged on the bed.

"Bee, you're not a scrap of help," Sue flung at her in exasperation. "You're like a Chinese idol, sitting there and staring."

Beatrice rolled over on the bed and regarded the ceiling with bored eyes.



Embraces . . . handshakings . . . a few tears . . . and the bride and bridegroom were on their way.

"When you've been around this place as long as I have," she said, between yawns, "you'll find nothing is ever in its proper place. Gypsy's kennel has always been a mess. . . ." She grinned ingratiatingly at her sister.

"Wait till I get it all, day after tomorrow," she exulted. "I'm going to paint the woodwork and Tip is going to put up shelves for my books. . . . I'll get new curtains, green theatrical gauze, I think . . ."

"Ghoul!" Gypsy, touching her mouth quite unnecessarily with lipstick, turned away from the mirror. "She can't wait to get me out, before she moves in!"

Just the same, when the time came to go, the sisters clung to each other. The younger gulped back a sob hardily, essaying an air of casualness which didn't quite come off.

"Honest, Gyp, we'll miss you. I don't know how Mums . . ." She winked away a bright drop or two and said briskly: "Well, for crying out loud, if this isn't a fine way to speed the happy pair! I'll be mumbling in my beard, first thing you know."

"Bee, Bee, such dreadful slang," mourned Mrs. Morell, primly.

"So out of date, too," crowed Sue, glad of anything to break the tension of the moment.

There were more embraces, more handshakings, a few tears, and then the young Weavers got into the bright and shining little car which Tip Barrington, Tom's best friend, had tooled around from the garage.

"So long. . . . Toodle-oo . . . we'll be seein' you. Don't forget to send a postcard. Goodbye, darling . . ."

Harvey Morell, long-legged, dark-haired, with quizzical wrinkles at the corners of his fine eyes, took his wife's arm.

"Well, Louise, that's over. Makes a fellow feel a bit long in the tooth, eh?"

Mrs. Morell was frankly wiping her eyes. Her daughter was gone . . . of course, she still had Bert and Bee, but the house wouldn't be the same without Gypsy. Gypsy, flying in and out, slamming doors, running the bath water. Gypsy appearing in the doorway with an armful of blue iris. "Look what I picked up for you at the ferry tonight, Mums. Only a quarter . . ."

No, it would be different. Quite.

There was a striped red and white canopy outside St. Bartholomew's. The red carpet at the edge of the sidewalk was already dusty from the scuffling of many feet. Indoors an organ pealed sonorously. Shabby old women, who always seem to spring up like mushrooms after rain at a big city wedding, brooded murkily around the doorway, waiting for the big moment. More than once a frock-coated young man with sleek hair came to stare impatiently through the aperture.

"The bride's late . . . she's late . . ." The murmur ran from lip to lip. The old ladies sniffled and groaned, shifting from one preposterously shod foot to the other. Maybe she'd be real late. Maybe she wouldn't come at all, their sniffs said. Sometimes that happened . . . then it was real exciting . . . then a piece got into the papers about it. . . . Still and all, they hoped she would come." Without her, there would be no real drama.

Shining car after shining car slid up and deposited its well-dressed and scented wedding guests. Ladies in beige, in blue, in black, with expensive furs slung over their modish shoulders, although the day was warm. Gentlemen in the uniform of the day, the topper, the striped trousers, the perfectly cut tail coat, the shining shoes. The old women loved it all. They wouldn't miss it for anything.

At long last, the awaited thrill came. The bride! All brides should be lovely, and Lila Hotaling lived up to the tradition. Gardenia-fair her skin, buttercup-yellow her shining hair, a feather or two of which escaped from the rare point lace which framed her face. Her frock, of medieval cut, was of some soft, dull stuff. She wore a string of pearls and you knew they were real. She carried calla lilies.

Lovely, lovely bride!

How the music pealed as she came, with cool dignity, into the vestry! The tall man with her—her uncle, it was whispered, a diplomat of parts, who had crossed the sea to "give her away" in the quaint old style, marveled at her calm. The bridesmaids ahead—six of them—in graded nasturtium tints, were more nervous than she. One of them, a willowy redhead, trembled all over with every step she took. It must be her first wedding, thought Lila's uncle, gravely.

Necks were craned, there was a polite rustle all over the church. Scent of lilies, of hothouse roses, of La Vierge Folle, delicate and insinuating; sound of music, of traffic outside in Park avenue, of New York Central trains rumbling somewhere in the bowels of the earth.

"Here comes the . . ." The old women outside could hear the music. They were humming to themselves. They'd wait till she came out again. It wasn't every day you saw such a swell wedding. Gave you something to think about.

Derek Bliss, rather like a faun in morning clothes, a well-tailored faun with stormy dark brows and eyes flashing amber lightnings, stood waiting for his bride. Derek, who was everything that was eminently correct, from his college to his clubs, but who hadn't as much money as the Hotaling clan thought Lila might expect. Not that Lila's people were rich—far from it—but they had a tradition of money in their house. All the Hotaling women had expensive tastes and indulged them. Lila's father had died three years ago, exhausted from the strain.

Gypsy had been sorry she couldn't go to Lila's wedding. They had met, down on the Cape, every summer, in childhood. Gypsy's Morrell grandmother and Lila's had been friends. To the rambling old houses on the bleached shore they had gone, summer after summer. Of course, their lives, back home, had run along entirely different lines. Gypsy's lawyer father made just enough money to feed, clothe and house his brood.

Nothing was left over for expensive private schools, in Gypsy's childhood, while Lila had of course experienced what is known as 'the best" in that quarter. Lila had even had a year in Paris, when she was 19, while Gypsy's first college year had been cut short by Mother's operation. Gypsy had come home, just a trifle subdued, to keep house and manage Clytie, somewhat sketchily, and see that the twins washed behind the ears. While Lila had come out in state, had been presented at court in a train and three feathers, had learned the language of the smart world.

It was during Gypsy's year at the settlement house (she had managed a course in kindergartening in the year following her mother's convalescence) that the two girls had renewed their acquaintanceship. Lila, beautiful in furs, had rushed into the shabby brick establishment one November afternoon.

"My dear, I couldn't get away earlier. Am I late?" The other Junior Leaguers gabbled frantically. Lila had looked up to see the young secretary, neat and plain in her dark blue frock, staring at her.

"My dear, isn't it . . . it's never Gypsy Morrell!"

They had seen each other rather often, as often as Lila's heavy calendar of engagements would permit, that winter. And now Lila was being married on the same day as Gypsy. My dear, wasn't that just the most romantic thing?

Lila wasn't thinking of Gypsy at the moment, however. She was occupied with herself, her train, her bouquet. Derek looked rather sweet, didn't he? He was rather a lad—a bit of a lamb, that boy. Yes, it was a pity he hadn't more money, but she, Lila, would soon see to it that he got more of it. That was a wife's job.

Her expression was soulful, but she was thinking of things mundane. Had Uncle Win remembered to order the champagne? Had Derek realy wangled the biggest suite on the Empiric? She wanted it. She meant to travel in state. The two other times she had crossed, with Aunt Phoebe, she had had a muggy little cabin on C deck. No more of that, thank you!

". . . I, Lila, take thee, Derek . . ."

It was funny, but weddings were all exactly alike. She'd been a bridesmaid twice last season. You got bored with the ritual. Isn't it a pity there wasn't more kick to it? How solemn the clergyman sounded!

The organist crashed into the recessional now. She faced about triumphantly. She knew she looked her best. That photographer had kept her standing for ages, though, the idiot. She was just a wee bit tired. She could do with a cocktail this moment.

Down the aisle they went. Lila kept her eyes down. She didn't believe in this beaming-bride stuff. Demureness was more her style, anyhow.

No lingering outside here, as at Gypsy's wedding. Lila and Derek ran the gauntlet of old ladies and disappeared in the maw of a shining long-limbed car. The reception was to be at Sherry's. Lobster thermidor. Curved glasses brimming with golden bubbles. High, nervous laughter. An orchestra thrumming above it all.

"Come along, sweets, let's get out of this!" That was Derek, frowning, looking at his watch. "We're riding a bit close to the wind." Lila's laughter rose higher and higher. They must come—they must all come to see them off.

She vanished, reappearing in a dark blue costume which effectively showed off her slender, rounded figure. She had a knot of green orchids for her silver fox. Her makeup was a triumph. She looked flawlessly young, sophisticated, amused.

The suite was packed to the brim with roses, with telegrams, exotic fruit in tall baskets. Derek gloomed around, hands in pockets, waiting for the signal which would call the merry-makers ashore.

"Why not come along? Why not all of you . . ." Lila was forgetting the occasion was her honeymoon. She wanted to make it a wholesale cruise.

At last they drifted away and the two were left to hang over the ship's edge alone.

"Happy, dearest?"

Her voice was decidedly pettish. Nerves crept into it, now the excitement had died down and the audience had disappeared.

"I'm a wreck. Honestly. What a day!"

Her face was a white blur in the early dusk. He caught her hand.

"We're going to make a go of it, aren't we, sweets? Not like some of these others." If you listened closely, you might have caught a note of anxiety in his voice. It was as if he pleaded for reassurance.

"What? Oh, yes, of course!" Lila hardly listened. She had gone back into the brightly lighted room now, with its lamps and flowers and drawn silk curtains. A stewardess rustled past her.

"Beg pardon, madam!" There were more telegrams, more roses, more boxes. Derek was being tiresome, Lila decided, with all his solemn talk. She didn't see any sense to it.

The engines, far below, churned into life: a whistle brayed. Silently the big boat moved away from the pier. Life was beginning for Lila and Derek.

The ferry carrying Gypsy and Tom, in the shining little car, slipped through the warm September night.

"Look, Tom!" Their car had been the first one on the boat, so they had a splendid view of the harbor. "Look, that must be—yes, it is the Empiric. Lila's boat."

The majestic ship, a fairy cargo of twinkling lights, moved on its way. The ferry rocked a little in the wash. Tom said, lightly: "You ought to be going to London and Paris, too, instead of to a little shack on Long island."

"Why, you great big silly!" She widened her eyes at him. "As if I didn't love Wading Hallow! As if I'd give up our two weeks there for London or Paris."

"It's crude," Tom reminded her. "It's just dunes and scrub oak and water . . ."

Gypsy interrupted him to say ecstatically: ". . . and that delicious salty smell, and sunsets on the beach, and fish frys and lying for hours in the sun and being lazy . . . why, I love it, and you know it."

The young husband grinned at her. He was very likable when that smile crinkled up his sunbrowned face with its crown of fair, curling hair.

"So you're satisfied, woman, are you!"

"You're darn shouting I am." It was just as well Mrs. Morell wasn't around to hear her daughter's choice of words.

The ferry bumped into the slip and Tom drove expertly off into the downtown streets of the city. They would cross another bridge, and find one of the main arteries which led down Long island, and they would stop when they were tired, some hours later, at a pleasant little inn they knew, half way down, for dinner. They planned to reach the beach house before midnight. There everything had been put in readiness for them by Tom's elder sister, Rosina, who had a summer place several miles away. The Wading Hollow place, cabin and some acre or so of ground, was young Mr. Weaver's sole heritage. He had come into the property some years before on the death of a maiden aunt. Gypsy had spent several weeks there, the season before, under Rosina's chaperonage, and had fallen in love with the place.

"Rose said she'd put up new curtains," Tom said, cheerfully. "You won't know the shack, it's so dressed up for you."

"If you've changed one stick or stone of it," Gypsy warned him impressively, "I'll never speak to you again. It was perfect as it was."

Tom drove, one-handed fashion. His free arm held his small wife in its curve. They left houses behind, left the winking lights of villages, after their simple meal: they smelled the sweet scent of pine and salt water, of hay drying in the fields.

"Mmmmm . . ." That was Gypsy. "Don't you love it?"

"We're almost there."

They turned into the dirt road and bumped over it gallantly. The moon made a track on the waters just ahead.

"Home, Mrs. Weaver, ma'am."

The little house waited for them, dark and silent and welcoming.

Tom carried her over the threshold.

CHAPTER I

"... In sickness and in health ... for better, for worse, till death do us part. ..."

The solemn words fell into the stained glass hush of church on a warm September afternoon. Mrs. Pettingill, who had known Gypsy Morell since childhood, sniffed and wiped her eyes quite openly. Mrs. Pettingill always cried at weddings. There was something ... she didn't know ... sad about them. Even when the bride was young and slim and lovely and pliant, as was Gypsy, who lived up to her name, from her crown of alive, curling brown hair to the soles of her dancing feet.

It was over now. Gypsy and Tom Weaver, the bridegroom, tall and fair-haired and grave, were turning away from the altar. The little church was filled to overflowing. Everybody craned necks to smile at the pair. Gypsy's dress, Mrs. Pettingill said to herself, mournfully, was "real sweet." No one would suspect she had made it herself, from a Paris pattern. It was demure, high-necked and full-skirted. She could wear it, later, as a dinner dress ... trust Gypsy to think of that. Her veil was of tulle, fine and soft and billowy, but the cap that crowned it was of old, rare lace. Gypsy's great-grandmother, a delicate, aristocratic French girl who had married a seagoing Morell in 1851, had brought it with her to the little New Jersey town.

Tom Weaver was real good-looking, reflected Mrs. Pettingill, solemnly, putting her handkerchief away and preparing to follow the newly married pair to the vestry, where they would see their friends. She had been invited to the church, of course, but only a few people beside "the immediate family" would go on to the Morell house, a big, shabby, rambling frame structure on Upper Dean street. Mrs. Morell was "poorly" and there would be no reception, as such. Tom and Gypsy would slip away, later, in the shining little two-seated car which was Gypsy's wedding present from her bridegroom. Dear knows why, Mrs. Pettingill muttered to herself. They were going to live in New York City, the young Weavers. It was expensive to keep a car there, ruinously so. What the good lady did not know (and she knew almost everything of interest that had happened in Blue Hills) was that Tom and Gypsy intended to leave the car at "Mother's," using it only for week-ends.

It was strange, but everybody seemed to say the same thing. "Congratulations! You looked just lovely ... never saw a prettier bride." Gypsy stood, looking small and childlike, at Tom Weaver's side. Her smile was good to see. She was 22, gay, buoyant, gallant. Tom, some people said to each other, was a lucky fellow. Tom's people sniffed and said Gypsy was the lucky one.

Mrs. Pettingill pumped the bridegroom's hand and kissed Gypsy with the thoroughness she bestowed on everything she did.

"I hope you'll be as happy as Mr. Pettingill and I have always been," she said, sentimentally. She beamed at them from behind her strong glasses. She was always one for young folks, she told herself. They gave you hope ... something to go on. It was a pity she and Henry never had children. Gypsy was almost like one of her own, though, living across the street, as she did. Why, from the time she was that high ... Mrs. Pettingill measured the space half-way up the umbrella she carried ... Gypsy had been in and out of her house as if it were her own.

She went on, smiling and sighing, nodding to the neighbors. Gypsy saw everyone, had a word for them all. The dressmaker who had made her mother's beige crepe. The children from the nursery school in Upper Dean street, where she had taught last year. All her mother's old friends. Then the young ones clustered around. Sue and the Blake twins, Margie, and Tip and Jack Ferris and all the others. It was fun. Gypsy was enjoying her own wedding.

"All right, darling," Tom thought they ought to go now. The ice cream would be melting in the dishes up at her mother's house. How odd that she should think of home in those terms already—well, she was a wife, and she would have an establishment of her own very soon, her own chairs and tables and books and beds. It was a thrilling thought.

They ran through aisles of laughing people to the taxi which stood waiting. One of the station taxis. The driver was a ruddy-faced man who had known Gypsy since he had driven her to dancing school at the age of 10.

"Wish you luck," the man murmured, shamefacedly, slamming the door after them. Tip and Jack threw rice. The last Gypsy saw of them all was a sea of smiling faces. Then she was alone with Tom.

"Darling, darling!" He turned her hand about, so, and put a kiss into the upturned palm. Dear Tom, how serious he was about all this! Gypsy's face was bright with smiles, her eyes fairly danced.

"Wasn't it all beautiful? Didn't it go well?" she exulted, settling herself into the curve of his arm. "I suppose it would have been better, as you suggested, to slip away and be married quietly ... just ourselves. But this was fun, wasn't it? The church ... and all the old friends, and everything?"

Tom stopped all this chatter in the most sensible possible way, with a kiss. It was like Gypsy to rattle on in this excitable fashion. Privately, he thought that while the ceremony itself had been memorably beautiful, it was dreadful to have all those hordes of people gaping and sighing over one. Now they would have an hour ... maybe two hours ... of handshaking and embracing, before he and his wife (how strange the word sounded) could slip away quietly together.

The porch of the gabled brown house had been made brave with flowers ... hydrangeas in tubs, some red roses. But nothing, Gypsy thought, with a quick sigh and frown for the intrusion of this thought on the perfection of the afternoon, nothing could hide the shabbiness of the old basket chairs, nor disguise the fact that paint was peeling from pillar and ceiling. Father had wanted to have the house painted for the wedding—darling Father! But of course, he hadn't been able to manage it. It was just one of those daydreams in which the happy-go-lucky Morells occasionally indulged themselves. SOME DAY WE'LL HAVE THE HOUSE PAINTED was the name of that particular dream.

As if it mattered, cried Gypsy to herself, rushing up the steps ... as if anything mattered on this day of days, her wedding day!

Clytie, the colored woman who had cooked and scrubbed and nursed the Morells for some 20-odd years, ever since Gypsy's adorable and turbulent babyhood, appeared in the doorway. Clytie had a new pale green uniform, but her apron straps were crooked and her cap awry, as usual. Not even Gypsy's wedding day could make Clytie completely tidy. She rolled her eyes at them both in welcome as she swung the screen door wide.

"Bes' wishes, Mis' Gypsy," she cried sonorously. "Congratulations, Mist' Weaver."

In three minutes the old house was buzzing with noise and excitement. Gypsy, her veil tossed back, stood to cut the huge cake, of Clytie's baking at a dining room table heavy with embroidery and yellowed lace. Mrs. Morell, a slender, melancholy lady in her early 50's, with the resigned expression of the chronic invalid, watched her only daughter anxiously. Gypsy was "so flighty," all the relatives said. Maybe marriage would "settle her," although in 1932 marriage wasn't any too likely to achieve such results. And she was young to marry—22. Mrs. Morell herself had been 28 at the time of her own marriage, and 30 at the time of Gypsy's birth. Later—eight years later—had come the twins, Bertram and Beatrice. Mrs. Morell said to herself she'd never been really well since. But Gipsy—well, marriage would be different for her. Girls nowadays took it in their stride. Gypsy—fancy that!—was going to keep her job. She taught in a settlement house over in New York City. Her mother wondered gloomily just how long that state of affairs would last. Gypsy was such a child about everything, such an optimist. She thought it would be a larke to manage home, husband and job as well.

"A lot she knows," murmured Mrs. Morell darkly to herself.

The slices, dark and rich, fell away under her daughter's knife.

"Mummy! The first for Mummy!" Mrs. Morell came alive, smiling and sighing. Why, she was just a baby. She thought life was all roses and sunshine. ...

The shadows lengthened outside. Upstairs, in the big corner bedroom, Gypsy was folding her wedding dress into its tissue and slipping into the beige tweeds which were her traveling costume.

"My dear, it's simply stunning!" This was Sue Canavan, her bridesmaid. Sue, still in the delphinium blue chiffon which brought out the color of her own long-lashed eyes. Sue after a long hunt found her gloves for her, her hat, her printed linen handkerchief. Beatrice, the 14-year-old twin, all arms and legs and tawny hair, worn in a Janet Gaynor bob, sat cross-legged on the bed.

"Bee, you're not a scrap of help," Sue flung at her in exasperation. "You're like a Chinese idol, sitting there and staring."

Beatrice rolled over on the bed and regarded the ceiling with bored eyes.

"When you've been around this place as long as I have," she said, between yawns, "you'll find nothing is ever in its proper place. Gypsy's kennel has always been a mess. ..." She grinned ingratiatingly at her sister.

"Wait till I get at it, day after tomorrow," she exulted. "I'm going to paint the woodwork and Tip is going to put up shelves for my books. ... I'll get new curtains, green theatrical gauge, I think ..."

"Ghoul!" Gypsy, touching her mouth quite unnecessarily with lipstick, turned away from the mirror: "She can't wait to get me out, before she moves in!"

Just the same, when the time came to go, the sisters clung to each other, The younger gulped back a sob hardily, essaying an air of casualness which didn't quite come off.

"Honest, Gyp, we'll miss you. I don't know how Mums ..." She winked away a bright drop or two and said briskly: "Well, for crying out loud, if this isn't a fine way to speed the happy pair! I'll be mumbling in my beard, first thing you know."

"Bee, Bee, such dreadful slang," mourned Mrs. Morell, primly.

"So out of date, too," crowed Sue, glad of anything to break the tension of the moment.

There were more embraces, more handshakings, a few tears, and then the young Weavers got into the bright and shining little car which Tip Barrington, Tom's best friend, had tooled around from the garage.

"So long. ... Toodle-oo ... we'll be seein' you. Don't forget to send a postcard. Goodbye, darling ..."

Harvey Morell, long-legged, dark-haired, with quizzical wrinkles at the corners of his fine eyes, took his wife's arm.

"Well, Louise, that's over. Makes a fellow feel a bit long in the tooth, eh?"

Mrs. Morell was frankly wiping her eyes. Her daughter was gone ... of course, she still had Bert and Bee, but the house wouldn't be the same without Gypsy. Gypsy, flying in and out, slamming doors, running the bath water. Gypsy appearing in the doorway with an armful of blue iris. "Look what I picked up for you at the ferry tonight, Mums. The ferry carrying Gypsy and Tom, in the shining little car, slipped through the warm September night.

"Look, Tom!" Their car had been the first one on the boat, so they had a splendid view of the harbor. "Look, that must be—yes, it is the Empiric. Lila's boat."

The majestic ship, a fairy cargo of twinkling lights, moved on its way. The ferry rocked a little in the wash. Tom said, lightly: "You ought to be going to London and Paris, too, instead of to a little shack on Long island."

"Why, you great big silly!" She widened her eyes at him. "As if I didn't love Wading Hallow! As if I'd give up our two weeks there for London or Paris."

"It's crude," Tom reminded her. "It's just dunes and scrub oak and water ..."

Gypsy interrupted him to say ecstatically: "... and that delicious salty smell, and sunsets on the beach, and fish frys and lying for hours in the sun and being lazy ... why, I love it, and you know it."

The young husband grinned at her. He was very likable when that smile crinkled up his sunbrowned face with its crown of fair, curling hair.

"So you're satisfied, woman, are you!"

"You're darn shouting I am." It was just as well Mrs. Morell wasn't around to hear her daughter's choice of words.

The ferry bumped into the slip and Tom drove expertly off into the downtown streets of the city. They would cross another bridge, and find one of the main arteries which led down Long island, and they would stop when they were tired, some hours later, at a pleasant little inn they knew, half way down, for dinner. They planned to reach the beach house before midnight. There everything had been put in readiness for them by Tom's elder sister, Rosina, who had a summer place several miles away. The Wading Hollow place, cabin and some acre or so of ground, was young Mr. Weaver's sole heritage. He had come into the property some years before on the death of a maiden aunt. Gypsy had spent several weeks there, the season before, under Rosina's chaperonage, and had fallen in love with the place.

"Rose said she'd put up new curtains," Tom said, cheerfully. "You won't know the shack, it's so dressed up for you."

"If you've changed one stick or stone of it," Gypsy warned him impressively, "I'll never speak to you again. It was perfect as it was."

Tom drove, one-handed fashion. His free arm held his small wife in its curve. They left houses behind, left the winking lights of villages, after their simple meal: they smelled the sweet scent of pine and salt water, of hay drying in the fields.

"Mmmmm ..." That was Gypsy. "Don't you love it?"

"We're almost there."

They turned into the dirt road and bumped over it gallantly. The moon made a track on the waters just ahead.

"Home, Mrs. Weaver, ma'am."

The little house waited for them, dark and silent and welcoming.

Tom carried her over the threshold.

RULING AWAITED ON WAGNER ACT

Friends And Foes Of Court Reform Plan Watch Closely For Decision

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Friend and foe of the Roosevelt court reorganization bill alike looked forward tonight to the supreme court's verdict on the constitutionality of the Wagner act as a potentially deciding factor.

So close is the senate's alignment on the president's proposal to force "new blood" into the high court that both sides were quick to concede that the nature of the Wagner decision may determine the outcome of the controversy.

The supreme court will meet on Monday to announce decisions. Whether the opinion on the Wagner act will be included, none could say, but it was generally considered a probability. If not, a two-week court recess will intervene before the ruling can be announced.

The senate judiciary committee met today, but not to hear testimony on the court bill. It held an executive session on nominations, and approved the appointment of Robert Lee Williams of Oklahoma for promotion from the federal district court to the circuit court of appeals.

Williams is 68, two years below the 70-year age limit suggested for federal judges by the president. He wrote, some weeks ago, to Attorney General Cummings saying that he approved the court bill and plans to retire at seventy.

This stirred up a storm among opponents of the measure. Some of them, especially Senator Burke, Democrat, Nebraska, promised a fight against his confirmation. Burke was out of town today. The nomination was approved by the committee without objection.

Speechmaking on the court issue continued, with Secretary Ickes and Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, addressing a Chicago audience in favor of the proposal tonight, and Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, opposing it incidentally in a speech before the people's lobby here. Barkley said it was "necessary" to revitalize the courts because "over a period of nearly half a century an unfortunate series of decisions have been handed down which have rendered the people powerless to control the basic elements of their social and economic life."

Ickes said the committee hearings have "become only a repetitious filibuster," and declared the nation should not stand for a situation in which a single justice may hold the balance of power in decisions on fundamental issues.

"It is intolerable that in a period of social and economic change the adaptibility of government and the continuity of legal growth should rest upon the judgment and human frailty of a single justice," he said.

"And this is particularly true when one of the five justices whose minds are at all open has shown an unpredictable vacillation of mind—and while another of those five justices, although possibly less susceptible to economic predilections, is not always able to liberate himself from some strongly entertained political predilections."

Wheeler contended that the objectives toward which the administration is looking can be reached by taxation, by "a tax on bigness." He added that it "isn't necessary to make the supreme court conversant with the interstate commerce clause of the constitution" in order to stop the concentration of wealth.

When Poisons Clog KIDNEYS and Irritate Bladder

Flush Them Out For 35 Cents

Go to your druggist today and get this safe, swift and harmless diuretic and stimulant—ask for Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules and start at once to flush kidneys of waste matter saturated with acids and poisons.

That's the way to bring about healthy kidney activity and stop that bladder irritation which often causes scanty passage with smarting and burning as well as restless nights.

Remember, the kidneys often need flushing as well as the bowels, and some symptoms of kidney weaknesses are: Getting up once or twice during the night—puffy eyes—cramps in leg—backache and moist palms.

But be sure and get GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—the original and genuine—right from Haarlem in Holland—the price is small (35 cents), the good results will fulfill your expectations. (Adv.)

AUSTIN, Tex., April 10.—(AP)—A supporter of President Roosevelt's proposal to reorganize the supreme court led a field of eight candidates for the congressional seat of the late James P. Buchanan early tonight in first fragmentary returns from a special election in the tenth Texas district.

Mr. Young of Bunkie, who with four other friends was driving north along the highway and is said to have lost control of the car as it rounded a short curve. The car is reported to have slipped over the shoulder of the road and after it regained the highway drove directly toward Mr. Stough's automobile, which it hit squarely on the side. None in the car driven by Mr. Young was reported injured. Both cars were said to have been almost demolished.

An ambulance was sent from Monroe to LeCompte to return Mrs. Stough here last night.

RUNYON

credit should go to his valets, Nos. 1 to 4, inclusive.

MR. WIDENER is a rich man, who dabbles in finance, the turf, and art. He is the head of Hialeah park, in Florida, and a big stockholder in Belmont park. He races horses on two continents, and has one of the largest and finest collections of paintings in these United States.

The chances are that when it comes to dressing, Mr. Widener puts on just what the boys lay out for him. He does not strike us as a man who would engage in violent argument with valet No. 1 over the matter of a necktie, or with valet No. 2 about a pair of shoes.

So, in view of the fact that Mr. Widener is at all times a work of sartorial art that is admired by gents, as well as by the ladies, we must insist that the lads who set the designs, so to speak, get what's coming to them.

HOWEVER, the choice by the ladies of a gentleman who is not old, but certainly not young, is without doubt a triumph for Mr. Widener's contemporaries in middle age, and beyond, over the young blades who think they know how to dress. It is to be regretted that the old title "King of Dudes" lapsed when E. Berry Wall took it to France, or we could bestow it on Mr. Widener with loud huzzas.

E. Berry Wall was a famous figure in New York society in the gay nineties, and a terrific dresser, and he has continued to display considerable flamboyancy in apparel.

MR. WIDENER is always on top of the fashions, and generally a hop ahead of them. His only sartorial idiosyncrasy is a white starched collar that overlaps in front, but perhaps Mr. Widener likes his collars overlapping in front, so we will let it go at that.

One of the ladies involved in the poll has furnished us with the names of some of the other gentlemen who received votes, and we are not surprised to learn Mr. Larry Doyle was runner-up to Mr. Widener. Mr. Doyle is a chap who really can put out when it comes to clothes. He is young, and handsome, and preserves a figure that a tailor can drape without faking in here and there.

We used to have one of those figures, but of late years our Mr. Bill Vroom has been complaining that we are totally out of plumb in front. You cannot make clothes hang straight over a watermelon.

MR. SAILING BARUCH, SR., got many votes. The ladies who voted for Mr. Baruch are getting somewhat nearsighted, and they said they like Mr. Baruch's clothes because they can always see him coming without bothering to get out their lorgnettes.

Mr. Baruch is a man who fancies his clothes with sound effects, but he is accounted the head fellow in advanced sports apparel in this country. He always has whatever's new first.

OTHERS well up in the running include Mr. Jules Glaenzer, the dapper manager of Cartier's, in New York, Mr. Laddie Sanford, the polo player and turfman, and Mr. Woolworth Donohue, scion of the Five-and-Ten, and a nice kid, if anyone inquires.

Mr. William "Palmer House" Ryan, of Chicago, Mr. Seymour Weiss, of New Orleans, and Mr. George Preston Marshall, of Washington, all received votes. Mr. Ryan, a turfman, is noted for his blue serges, and starched white linens, while Mr. Weiss is famous throughout the southland for his white silks and white flannel clothes.

Mr. Weiss is accounted the best dressed man south of the Mason and Dixon line. He has been the titleholder in that region for years. The Palm Beach ladies got a load of him during the Florida race meetings.

Mr. Marshall is the celebrated Washington laundryman and sportsman, who recently married Miss Corinne Griffith, of the cinema. Mr. Marshall was formerly a veritable sartorial sunburst, and the plate of fashion for those who enjoy their apparel with a little tobasco in it, but since his marriage, Mr. Marshall has been wearing shirts all in the same tone, instead of with the collars and cuffs of different colors, and he has reduced the checks on his sports coats down to the size of half dollars.

This is practically mourning for Mr Marshall.

Sheriff Hughes said that on the second visit of the white men to Dawston's house the house was filled with negro men, women and children and that one of the white men fired a pistol during an argument and the bullets killed Davis, a tenant on the Powell place.

Deputy Sheriff Bert Stone said the McDowells told him that they did not know that anyone had been hit by the bullets.

Isaac Carter, Jr., 11-year-old son of Carter, was taken back to Webster parish by the white men after the shooting and was returned to his father, Sheriff Hughes said.

SHORT TAKES

Bill Windle and his Texarkana Liners left last night, after being the "home club" in the exhibition series here this spring. To Bill and his lads, we wish the best of luck. They're a swell bunch of fellows and we hope to see 'em in the playoff next fall.

Don Breitenmoser was in an automobile accident early Saturday morning. Fortunately Don was hit on the head and thus escaped uninjured.

Dick Burnett will have two brothers of major league pitchers when and if Kenneth Andrews, the holdout hurler from Cleveland, Miss., reports. Andrews is a brother of Ivy Paul Andrews of the Cleveland Indians mound staff. Bill Winford's brother is Jim Winford, who hurls for the Cardinals.

Best crack of the week: Henry McLemore, UP sports expert, wrote the Cardinals' new motto is "One for all and all against one—with spikes."

Your old friend from Jackson, Herschel Bobo, has been named manager of the Blytheville club of the Northeast Arkansas league. Blytheville is a New York Giants' farm.

Alexandria is all hopped up over the current edition of the Aces and they're expecting Art Phelan's youngsters to win again in the Evangeline league. "Gee, we wish Monroe was in our league," they told us down there Wednesday.

Governor Leche is a real baseball fan. He declared a holiday for New Orleans' opening next week and will close all state offices at Baton Rouge, 80 miles away from the Pelicans' park. Wish he'd do the same for Monroe.

Greenville, best baseball town per capita in the country, doesn't depend upon night baseball to pack the park. They're still playing day baseball over in Mitch McLaughlin's home town and they never have any trouble attracting the fans.

The California boxing commission will not permit fighters to go into the ring with stubble beards, such as Dempsey used to sprout. Soon they will be telling the boys to have a finger wave put in their hair before donning a perfumed dressing gown.

Charley Gehringer, second baseman of the Detroit Tigers, has played through six different American league campaigns without missing a game.

The latest word has it that George Gill, Monroe's contribution to the big leagues, will stick with the Tigers, for a month or so at least.

Wrigley field, home of the Chicago Cubs, holds a unique record. On May 2, 1917, it was the scene of a hitless duel between Jim Vaughn of the Cubs and Fred Toney of the Reds, neither of whom allowed a hit in nine innings. On August 25, 1922, the Cubs and Phillies engaged in a merry massacre of moundsmen in a jolly slugfest the Cubs won, 26 to 23.

NEGRO FIGHTERS IN PROGRAM AT STADIUM FRIDAY

Sandy Cheffie Meets Tiger Stewart In Main Event On 30-Round Card

Thirty rounds of boxing, featuring a main event between Sandy Cheffie, 149, of Monroe, and Tiger Stewart, 147, of New Orleans, for the negro welterweight championship of north Louisiana, will be presented at Roosevelt stadium next Friday night, Promoter Phillip Lisotta announced last night.

Lisotta announced that there will be no wrestling show Tuesday night.

Cheffie and Stewart will fight 10 rounds. There will be an eight-round semi-final match and three four-round preliminaries on the big program, Lisotta said.

Two brothers will be featured on the card in matches with stablemates. Son Cheffie, 151, a brother of Sandy Cheffie, will meet Kid Harris, clever New Orleans negro who weighs 150 pounds, in the semi-final. Harris and Stewart are from the same New Orleans stable of boxers.

The match between Sandy Cheffie and Stewart is being billed as a grudge fight. The two are rivals for welterweight honors at the stadium and Lisotta said both are anxious to win Friday night and thus claim welterweight laurels of this section.

Stewart is a hard hitter and a clever boxer and is likely to rule the favorite when the climbs into the ring against Cheffie, but the Monroe negro is a slugger who not only packs a terrific wallop but who can absorb plenty of punishment and still remain upright, if he takes a notion to stay in there and pitch.

Harris also should be the favorite against Son Cheffie in the semi-final but the fans may see an upset there. Chefffie can beat the yellow negro if he bears down and there are plenty of fans who believe he will do just that.

Lisotta said he had not completed the card but promised plenty of action in the preliminaries. He said he would announce the complete card not later than Wednesday.

The show is slated to get under way at 8:15 o'clock Friday night.

MATCHES PLAYED IN HANDICAP GOLF

Today Deadline For Second Round Play In Lakeside Spring Tourney

Nine second round matches have been completed in the annual spring handicap tournament at Lakeside Country club and seven remain to be played today, Winnie Cole, Lakeside pro, announced last night.

Results of matches played so far this week include:

J. E. Godfrey defeated J. M. Menefee, 2 and 1; Art Surguine defeated M. C. McDonald, 2 and 1; Robert Guerriero defeated R. R. Barfield, 2 and 1; J. S. Washburn and E. S. Girault were all square at the end of 18 holes and will play again today; J. L. Keenan defeated H. H. Reardon, one up; George Hyle defeated Will Washburn, 4 and 3; Wesley Shafto defeated J. L. Warren, 2 and 1; T. O. Bancroft defeated Jack Rogers, 2 and 1; Dr. T. A. Brulte defeated L. G. Frost, 2 and 1.

Matches to be played today are:

Morton Braswell vs. Dr. Nat Gaston, C. C. Boardman vs. S. L. Dogby, Jack Selig, Jr., vs. Freneau Surguine, B. Beasley vs. Albert Marx, Jack Masur vs. Ben Downing, Jr., M. S. Biedenharn vs. Guy Campbell, C. W. Wallace vs. Cramer Haas.

Two first round consolation matches also were played last week. J. H. Trousdale defeated W. L. James, one up, and B. Rickerson and H. T. Taylor were all even at the end of 18 holes and will play off their deadlock today. Other matches slated in the consolations today are H. A. McDonald vs. George Miller, L. E. Decote vs. S. M. McReynolds, R. M. McWilliams vs. Kenneth Brown, H. K. Touchstone vs. Harold Woods, A. B. Clarkson vs. Bobby Oliver and Rev. Ernest Holloway vs. Ben Downing, Sr.

HERMAN FAILS AGAIN TO SIGN WITH CINCINNATI

SPARTANBURG, S. C., April 10.—(AP)—Floyd "Babe" Herman made another futile effort today to interest Vice-President Warren Giles in signing him to a 1937 contract with the Cincinnati Reds.

In a lengthy telegram, the veteran outfielder stressed the argument why he believed a salary offer for $5,000 was too drastic a cut from his $14,000 top even in the face of a poor season last year.

He offered to sign for $8,000 and a bonus of $2,500 if he played regularly and batted .325. Herman batted .279 last season.

VALLEY LEAGUE MEETS THURSDAY

Schedule To Be Adopted And Final Plans Made For Opening Next Sunday

The Ouachita Valley league will meet Thursday night to make final plans for the opening of the season next Sunday, President T. O. Dent announced last night.

Mr. Dent said all six clubs are ready to go, and only last minute details remain to be ironed out before the league will be ready to function for the coming campaign.

The schedule has been drawn up by "Goody" Courtney, manager of the Swartz team, and Herb Steed, Brown Paper mill pilot, who constituted the schedule committee, and copies have been mailed all club managers. The schedule will be officially adopted at Thursday night's meeting. It is thought that few changes, if any, will be sought when the directors pass on the program.

President Dent said the Bastrop club, newest entry in the circuit, is ready to go. Other clubs in the league are Brown, Swartz, Crossett, Ark., Hodge and Ruston.

The six-club loop is expected to be faster than ever this season and officials are looking forward to a most successful year. With the addition of Crossett and Bastrop, who replaced Sterlington and Winnfield, there are four clubs operated by paper mills and the rivalry is expected to be keener than ever.

The Swartz club is backed by Carbon companies at Swartz, while the Ruston company is independently operated.

A full attendance is expected at Thursday night's meeting which will be held in the main studio of radio station KMLB at Hotel Frances.

NINE NEW LOOPS ORGANIZED IN '37

Minor Leagues Now Total 35, With Several Other New Cities Enrolled

COLUMBUS, O., April 10.—(AP)—Nine new leagues, boosting the roll of the minors to 35, and new clubs in 65 towns, hiking the player personnel by at least 1,000, were set today to parade under organized baseball's banner during 1937.

Joe F. Carr, promotional director of the minors and the "man behind the guns" in the placing of new loops in the diamond field predicted the national game was in for its greatest year.

Most of the new leagues, Carr said, are of class D rating, making it possible for hundreds of youths to have a starting point. The class D loops, the director said, give the sandlotters, semi-professionals and collegians their first training.

In addition to the nine new circuits which are ready to go, two others are expected to be in shape to start the season, Carr said.

The new leagues include:

Southeastern—Pensacola, Fla.; Meridian and Jackson, Miss.; Selma, Montgomery and Mobile, Ala.

North Carolina State—Shelby, Landis, Lexington, Mooresville, Newton-Conover and Cooleemee, N. C.

Arizona-Texas—Albuquerque, N. M.; El Paso, Tex., and Bisbee and Tucson, Ariz.

HICO HIGH NINE WHIPS LISBON EAGLES, 9 TO 1

HICO, La., April 10.—(Special)—The Hico High school baseball team defeated the Lisbon Eagles, 9 to 1, here this week with Houck, local hurler, turning in an effective job for Hico on the mound.

Lamar McCurry, Lisbon hurler, gave the locals plenty trouble but errors by his teammates proved costly. Denson Louis featured the game with a home run, and Roy Foster looked good at short stop for Hico.

TWINS HIT THREE HOMERS TO WHIP EVANGELINE CLUB

Liners Drop Hurling Duel To Cannibals; Teams Shift Activities Today

Monroe's Twins swung back into the win column yesterday by trimming the Lake Charles club of the Evangeline league, 15 to 7, as their camp-mates, the Texarkana Liners, dropped a 3-0 decision to the Longview Cannibals, also of the East Texas league, here. The game at Casino park was the last exhibition title of the schedule here.

The Twins finished their invasion of Evangeline league territory yesterday and last night headed for Marshall, Tex., where they start to work on the East Texas league clubs. They play in that territory until next Sunday, and will return to Monroe a week from tomorrow to prepare for the opening of the Cotton States season at Vicksburg on April 21.

The Texarkana club bid farewell to Monroe for good following their game with Longview. Manager Bill Windle and his squad left for Greenwood, Miss., immediately after the game. They will swing through Cotton States league territory for a week and then go to Texarkana to await their East Texas league opening there against Marshall on April 21.

The Monroe club teed off on Lake Charles' hurling choice for 15 safeties yesterday, including home runs by Kirk Haynes, Clifford Johnson and Clary Hack. The Monroe club scored three runs in the first inning, added two more in the second and another run in the sixth, and then romped home with four in the seventh and five in the eighth. Haynes drove in four runs, Cully Rikard three and Hack two.

Rikard, who played his first full game in center field for the Twins, led the batting attack with three hits. Hack, Haynes and Johnson each got two safeties.

Jack Van Orsdol, who underwent a tonsular operation here this spring, made his first start on the mound for Monroe. He hurled five innings and give up but four hits and two runs. Charley Robinson, the rookie righthander, relieved Van Orsdol at the start of the sixth and allowed 10 hits and five runs. Van Orsdol struck out four Lake Charles batsmen and did not issue a base on balls.

Fred Thompson and Dale Richardson were the Texarkana hurlers and although they gave up ten hits, air-tight support would have enabled them to go through without a score. In other words, the three Longview runs were unearned. In all, it was a fine exhibition of early-season pitching.

Governor Richard Leche has issued a proclamation naming April 16th, the day of the game, "Baseball day." State offices will be closed and a special train has been planned from the capital at bargain fares.

D'ANTONI DEFEATS LARCADE IN FINAL

Tulane Star Scores One Up Triumph To Win Conference Golf Crown

BATON ROUGE, La., April 10.—(AP)—Vincent D'Antoni of Tulane university defeated Lawrence Larcade of Louisiana State university, one up, in the 18-hole finals to capture the Southeastern conference golf championship today.

D'Antoni, who carried the Greenie banner almost singlehanded through the entire tournament, blasted the Tigers' number one star, Fred Haas, Jr., the Canadian amateur champion, from the semi-finals this morning, in the most spectacular and grueling match of the conference meet.

He matched Haas stroke for stroke in a stiff pace of par golf, on the Bengal's own course, and outlasted him to win on the 26th green with a curling putt for a birdie two.

Larcade had trounced his teammate, Paul Leslie, the western amateur titlist, in the other semi-final, one up over 20 holes.

This afternoon, with both golfers worn from their morning's play, D'Antoni gave a remarkable exhibition of stamina in defeating Larcade, who is L. S. U.'s number four player.

One down to the 18th, Larcade, putting for a birdie from eight feet, missed and carded par five. D'Antoni, firing his third shot to within two feet of the pin, holed out in birdie four to win the final match.

Qualifying Round Opens In McGuire Tournament

Many Golfers Expected To Post Scores Today In Club Championship

The qualifying round in the club championship golf tournament at McGuire Park Golf club got under way yesterday when five players posted their scores, according to Jim McKenzie, McGuire course pro.

The scores follow:

Ray Alleman, 97; Ford Hines, 90; J. L. Warren, 97; Ray Buce, 85, and Scott Spencer, 100.

Many other qualifying rounds are expected to be played today and this week the remainder will be posted. The deadline for qualifying is April 18, McKenzie said.

The biggest entry list in the history of the annual tournament is expected this year, McKenzie said. Bun Beasley is the defending champion.

The clubhouse at McGuire park was recently remodeled and the course is in excellent condition. The course drains quickly and the recent wet weather did not keep the players off the links for more than a day or so.

The "play" at the West Monroe course has been heavier than usual at this time of the year and McKenzie expects a banner golf year at the McGuire layout.

The West Side pro has planned an attractive spring and summer program which includes weekly sweepstakes tournaments, as well as major tourneys and matches with clubs in this section. The McGuire membership will visit several other north Louisiana clubs during the season and in turn will entertain other clubs in matches at the local links.

Following the qualifying round in the club championship meet, first round matches will begin with one week allowed for completion of each round of play. Several attractive prizes will be awarded various winners in the tourney.

PICARD WINNER OF CHARLESTON GOLF

Hershey Pro Posts 282 To Nose Out Jimmy Thomson For First Money

CHARLESTON, S. C., April 10.—(AP)—Henry Picard, calm, graceful-stroking professional from Hershey, Pa., outlasted a serious challenge today to win the Tournament of the Gardens for the third straight year.

The former home town golfer, finished the 72-hole battle with a total of 282, two under par, to nose out the charging Jimmy Thomson of Shawnee-On-Delaware, Pa., by a single blow.

In the great stretch battle, Sam Snead, 24-year-old rookie from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., lost the "feel" of his car clubs to wind up in third place with 285 after leading the field by two strokes going into the final 18 holes.

Thomson shot a final round 70, one under par, while Picard, with a 71, edged in for the top prize of $1,250 and 25 per cent of an added $20 entry fee.

Lighthorse Harry Cooper of Chicago, like Snead, used up 76 blows on the final round.

Craig Wood, of New York, shot a 39-33—72, to wind up in a fourth place tie with Cooper at 290. This pair was one blow ahead of Johnny Revolta, former P. G. A. champion from Chicago, who carded a final 76.

Registering one of the best scores on the last lap, a neat 69, Wiffy Cox, Washington, D. C., pro finished sixth with 292, a stroke ahead of Paul Runyan of White Plains N. Y., Victor Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., and Ray Mangrum of Oakmont, Pa.

For finishing second Thomson collected $750 and 15 per cent of the added prize money. Snead's check was for $550 and 11 per cent of the cut.

Frank Ford of Charleston, also a two-time winner, finished with 303 to take the amateur prize, with Morton McCarthy of Norfolk, Va., and Dick Daniel of Augusta, Ga., tied for second at 318.

Gene Sarazen of Brookfield Center, Conn., finished in a tie for 14th place with Horton Smith of Chicago with 299s.

Lions Win Close Rattle From Plungers; Pitching Features Game

The Ouachita Parish High school baseball team nosed out the strong Dubach High school Plungers, 2 to 1, in a hard fought game at the Plum street diamond here yesterday afternoon. It was the closest game of the season for the two clubs, and both Ouachita and Dubach are expected to be a couple of the strongest teams in the district rally next week at Ruston.

It was a pitchers duel from start to finish with E. C. Hinton, of Ouachita, and C. R. Colvin, of Dubach, letting down the opposing batsmen with only three hits, none of which were for extra bases. Hinton, however, chalked up eight strikeouts against Colvin's three.

The Lions scored in the opening inning, and Dubach tied it up in their half of the third. Then the battle began with both nines playing hard to gain the lead. Blazier finally scored the deciding run for Ouachita in the sixth inning.

Jones, local first baseman, led the hitting with two singles in three times at bat. Blazier scored both the Lions' runs, while H. McKee scored for the Plungers.

TWO TECHNICAL KAYOES SCORED IN 8-BOUT CARD

Veranda Chalks Up Knockout Over Cain In Feature Match Of Program

By Paul Martin

The Northeast Center of L. S. U. boxers ended their home schedule with a 6 to 2 victory over the Longhorns of Texas university here last night at the Neville High school arena before a generous turn-out of fight fans.

The Indians showed marked superiority throughout most of the program, which was featured by two technical knockouts. The Steers got their only points when Madison Kirkland, 155, outpointed James Gremillion of Center, and when Andy "Big Steer" Chilton technically knocked out Ed "Pop" Walker, local heavyweight, in the second round.

Tony Veranda, the Indians' light heavyweight from Pasadena, Calif., scored the other technical knockout of the program when he stopped Walter Cain, 175, of Texas, in the third round, after a surprising rally by Cain, who had taken a bad beating in the first two rounds.

Veranda put on the rush act at the starting bell and before Cain was out of his corner, the Indian was on top of him with a couple of jarring blows to the head. Cain was stunned by the suddenness of the attack but managed to get out of trouble and hang on through the remainder of the round, although Veranda kept worrying him with rights and lefts. The Steer came out in the second to drop under a series of thudding blows to the head but rose to his knee to take a voluntary "nine" count, but he rose only to go down again a few seconds later for another nine. Cain was barely sticking with Veranda at the bell.

Cain came out warily in the third and began a fair exchange with Veranda. The Texan's blows began to show their sting for the first time, and Veranda went down for no count from a right to the jaw. Veranda ran into another jarring right that staggered him, but then Cain's rally ceased as suddenly as it had begun and Tony got over a series of wallops to the head that dropped Cain and the Texan's seconds tossed in the towel.

The program opened with Bumps Gormley, stellar Center bantam, dishing out a severe beating to John Newel, 118, of Texas U. The fight was slow starting, but Gormley led effectively with his left, feeling Newel out, and then poured into Newel in the second to work him over with punishing rights to the body and head. Near the close of the second, Newel went down for no count, but rose helplessly to be saved by the bell from another trip to the mat. The third round was all Gormley, as the Indian rushed Newel all over the ring, hitting the Longhorn at will. With the Texan practically out on his feet, Referee Elliott started to intervene in his behalf, but Newel waved him aside to continue a game fight, with Gormley striving desperately for a knockout.

After battling two rounds on about even terms with Jack Greasenbech, 126, of Texas, "Shorty" Green, of Center, opened up in the third round to gain the judges' decision. Both Greasenbech and Green delivered some terrific blows in the first round with Green shading the visitor at aggressiveness. Greasenbech opened the second by staggering the Indian with a couple of rights and then continued to rush Green through the first part of the round, but the local scrapper evened the count with jarring rights

Bill Windle and his Texarkana Liners left last night, after being the "home club" in the exhibition series here this spring. To Bill and his lads, we wish the best of luck. They're a swell bunch of fellows and we hope to see 'em in the playoff next fall.

Don Breitenmoser was in an automobile accident early Saturday morning. Fortunately Don was hit on the head and thus escaped uninjured.

Dick Burnett will have two brothers of major league pitchers when and if Kenneth Andrews, the holdout hurler from Cleveland, Miss., reports. Andrews is a brother of Ivy Paul Andrews of the Cleveland Indians mound staff. Bill Winford's brother is Jim Winford, who hurls for the Cardinals.

Best crack of the week: Henry McLemore, UP sports expert, wrote the Cardinals' new motto is "One for all and all against one—with spikes."

Your old friend from Jackson, Herschel Bobo, has been named manager of the Blytheville club of the Northeast Arkansas league. Blytheville is a New York Giants' farm.

Alexandria is all hopped up over the current edition of the Aces and they're expecting Art Phelan's youngsters to win again in the Evangeline league. "Gee, we wish Monroe was in our league," they told us down there Wednesday.

Governor Leche is a real baseball fan. He declared a holiday for New Orleans' opening next week and will close all state offices at Baton Rouge, 80 miles away from the Pelicans' park. Wish he'd do the same for Monroe.

Greenville, best baseball town per capita in the country, doesn't depend upon night baseball to pack the park. They're still playing day baseball over in Mitch McLaughlin's home town and they never have any trouble attracting the fans.

The California boxing commission will not permit fighters to go into the ring with stubble beards, such as Dempsey used to sprout. Soon they will be telling the boys to have a finger wave put in their hair before donning a perfumed dressing gown.

Charley Gehringer, second baseman of the Detroit Tigers, has played through six different American league campaigns without missing a game.

The latest word has it that George Gill, Monroe's contribution to the big leagues, will stick with the Tigers, for a month or so at least.

Wrigley field, home of the Chicago Cubs, holds a unique record. On May 2, 1917, it was the scene of a hitless duel between Jim Vaughn of the Cubs and Fred Toney of the Reds, neither of whom allowed a hit in nine innings. On August 25, 1922, the Cubs and Phillies engaged in a merry massacre of moundsmen in a jolly slugfest the Cubs won, 26 to 23.

Joe Rinaldi, captain of the 1937 Michigan football team, is working his way through school selling silk underwear. And last week we ran into "Fats" Wilson, the old L. S. U. star lineman, who's doing the same thing.

NEGRO FIGHTERS IN PROGRAM AT STADIUM FRIDAY

Sandy Cheffie Meets Tiger Stewart In Main Event On 30-Round Card

Thirty rounds of boxing, featuring a main event between Sandy Cheffie, 149, of Monroe, and Tiger Stewart, 147, of New Orleans, for the negro welterweight championship of north Louisiana, will be presented at Roosevelt stadium next Friday night, Promoter Phillip Lisotta announced last night.

Lisotta announced that there will be no wrestling show Tuesday night.

Cheffie and Stewart will fight 10 rounds. There will be an eight-round semi-final match and three four-round preliminaries on the big program, Lisotta said.

Two brothers will be featured on the card in matches with stablemates. Son Cheffie, 151, a brother of Sandy Cheffie, will meet Kid Harris, clever New Orleans negro who weighs 150 pounds, in the semi-final. Harris and Stewart are from the same New Orleans stable of boxers.

The match between Sandy Cheffie and Stewart is being billed as a grudge fight. The two are rivals for welterweight honors at the stadium and Lisotta said both are anxious to win Friday night and thus claim welterweight laurels of this section.

Stewart is a hard hitter and a clever boxer and is likely to rule the favorite when the climbs into the ring against Cheffie, but the Monroe negro is a slugger who not only packs a terrific wallop but who can absorb plenty of punishment and still remain upright, if he takes a notion to stay in there and pitch.

Harris also should be the favorite against Son Cheffie in the semi-final but the fans may see an upset there. Chefffie can beat the yellow negro if he bears down and there are plenty of fans who believe he will do just that.

Lisotta said he had not completed the card but promised plenty of action in the preliminaries. He said he would announce the complete card not later than Wednesday.

The show is slated to get under way at 8:15 o'clock Friday night.

Today Deadline For Second Round Play In Lakeside Spring Tourney

Nine second round matches have been completed in the annual spring handicap tournament at Lakeside Country club and seven remain to be played today, Winnie Cole, Lakeside pro, announced last night.

Results of matches played so far this week include:

J. E. Godfrey defeated J. M. Menefee, 2 and 1; Art Surguine defeated M. C. McDonald, 2 and 1; Robert Guerriero defeated R. R. Barfield, 2 and 1; J. S. Washburn and E. S. Girault were all square at the end of 18 holes and will play again today; J. L. Keenan defeated H. H. Reardon, one up; George Hyle defeated Will Washburn, 4 and 3; Wesley Shafto defeated J. L. Warren, 2 and 1; T. O. Bancroft defeated Jack Rogers, 2 and 1; Dr. T. A. Brulte defeated L. G. Frost, 2 and 1.

Matches to be played today are:

Morton Braswell vs. Dr. Nat Gaston, C. C. Boardman vs. S. L. Dogby, Jack Selig, Jr., vs. Freneau Surguine, B. Beasley vs. Albert Marx, Jack Masur vs. Ben Downing, Jr., M. S. Biedenharn vs. Guy Campbell, C. W. Wallace vs. Cramer Haas.

Two first round consolation matches also were played last week. J. H. Trousdale defeated W. L. James, one up, and B. Rickerson and H. T. Taylor were all even at the end of 18 holes and will play off their deadlock today. Other matches slated in the consolations today are H. A. McDonald vs. George Miller, L. E. Decote vs. S. M. McReynolds, R. M. McWilliams vs. Kenneth Brown, H. K. Touchstone vs. Harold Woods, A. B. Clarkson vs. Bobby Oliver and Rev. Ernest Holloway vs. Ben Downing, Sr.

HERMAN FAILS AGAIN TO SIGN WITH CINCINNATI

SPARTANBURG, S. C., April 10.—(AP)—Floyd "Babe" Herman made another futile effort today to interest Vice-President Warren Giles in signing him to a 1937 contract with the Cincinnati Reds.

In a lengthy telegram, the veteran outfielder stressed the argument why he believed a salary offer for $5,000 was too drastic a cut from his $14,000 top even in the face of a poor season last year.

He offered to sign for $8,000 and a bonus of $2,500 if he played regularly and batted .325. Herman batted .279 last season.

VALLEY LEAGUE MEETS THURSDAY

Schedule To Be Adopted And Final Plans Made For Opening Next Sunday

The Ouachita Valley league will meet Thursday night to make final plans for the opening of the season next Sunday, President T. O. Dent announced last night.

Mr. Dent said all six clubs are ready to go, and only last minute details remain to be ironed out before the league will be ready to function for the coming campaign.

The schedule has been drawn up by "Goody" Courtney, manager of the Swartz team, and Herb Steed, Brown Paper mill pilot, who constituted the schedule committee, and copies have been mailed all club managers. The schedule will be officially adopted at Thursday night's meeting. It is thought that few changes, if any, will be sought when the directors pass on the program.

President Dent said the Bastrop club, newest entry in the circuit, is ready to go. Other clubs in the league are Brown, Swartz, Crossett, Ark., Hodge and Ruston.

The six-club loop is expected to be faster than ever this season and officials are looking forward to a most successful year. With the addition of Crossett and Bastrop, who replaced Sterlington and Winnfield, there are four clubs operated by paper mills and the rivalry is expected to be keener than ever.

The Swartz club is backed by Carbon companies at Swartz, while the Ruston company is independently operated.

Minor Leagues Now Total 35, With Several Other New Cities Enrolled

COLUMBUS, O., April 10.—(AP)—Nine new leagues, boosting the roll of the minors to 35, and new clubs in 65 towns, hiking the player personnel by at least 1,000, were set today to parade under organized baseball's banner during 1937.

Joe F. Carr, promotional director of the minors and the "man behind the guns" in the placing of new loops in the diamond field predicted the national game was in for its greatest year.

Most of the new leagues, Carr said, are of class D rating, making it possible for hundreds of youths to have a starting point. The class D loops, the director said, give the sandlotters, semi-professionals and collegians their first training.

In addition to the nine new circuits which are ready to go, two others are expected to be in shape to start the season, Carr said.

The new leagues include:

Southeastern—Pensacola, Fla.; Meridian and Jackson, Miss.; Selma, Montgomery and Mobile, Ala.

Arizona-Texas—Albuquerque, N. M.; El Paso, Tex., and Bisbee and Tucson, Ariz.

HICO HIGH NINE WHIPS LISBON EAGLES, 9 TO 1

HICO, La., April 10.—(Special)—The Hico High school baseball team defeated the Lisbon Eagles, 9 to 1, here this week with Houck, local hurler, turning in an effective job for Hico on the mound.

Lamar McCurry, Lisbon hurler, gave the locals plenty trouble but errors by his teammates proved costly. Denson Louis featured the game with a home run, and Roy Foster looked good at short stop for Hico.

TWINS HIT THREE HOMERS TO WHIP EVANGELINE CLUB

Liners Drop Hurling Duel To Cannibals; Teams Shift Activities Today

Monroe's Twins swung back into the win column yesterday by trimming the Lake Charles club of the Evangeline league, 15 to 7, as their camp-mates, the Texarkana Liners, dropped a 3-0 decision to the Longview Cannibals, also of the East Texas league, here. The game at Casino park was the last exhibition title of the schedule here.

The Twins finished their invasion of Evangeline league territory yesterday and last night headed for Marshall, Tex., where they start to work on the East Texas league clubs. They play in that territory until next Sunday, and will return to Monroe a week from tomorrow to prepare for the opening of the Cotton States season at Vicksburg on April 21.

The Texarkana club bid farewell to Monroe for good following their game with Longview. Manager Bill Windle and his squad left for Greenwood, Miss., immediately after the game. They will swing through Cotton States league territory for a week and then go to Texarkana to await their East Texas league opening there against Marshall on April 21.

The Monroe club teed off on Lake Charles' hurling choice for 15 safeties yesterday, including home runs by Kirk Haynes, Clifford Johnson and Clary Hack. The Monroe club scored three runs in the first inning, added two more in the second and another run in the sixth, and then romped home with four in the seventh and five in the eighth. Haynes drove in four runs, Cully Rikard three and Hack two.

Rikard, who played his first full game in center field for the Twins, led the batting attack with three hits. Hack, Haynes and Johnson each got two safeties.

Jack Van Orsdol, who underwent a tonsular operation here this spring, made his first start on the mound for Monroe. He hurled five innings and give up but four hits and two runs. Charley Robinson, the rookie righthander, relieved Van Orsdol at the start of the sixth and allowed 10 hits and five runs. Van Orsdol struck out four Lake Charles batsmen and did not issue a base on balls.

The fans who turned out to see Texarkana and Longview clash saw some excellent pitching. Bob Uhle, ace of the Longview staff, went the full nine innings for the Cannibals and allowed but six hits and struck out 10 Liners. Fred Thompson and Dale Richardson were the Texarkana hurlers and although they gave up ten hits, air-tight support would have enabled them to go through without a score. In other words, the three Longview runs were unearned. In all, it was a fine exhibition of early-season pitching.

MANY STATE EMPLOYES TO ATTEND ORLEANS OPENER

BATON ROUGE, La., April 10.—(AP)—Colonel P. A. Frye, secretary of the Louisiana Public Service commission, estimated today that between 600 and 1,000 state employes and citizens of Baton Rouge will attend New Orleans' Southern association baseball opener between New Orleans and Little Rock.

Governor Richard Leche has issued a proclamation naming April 16th, the day of the game, "Baseball day." State offices will be closed and a special train has been planned from the capital at bargain fares.

D'ANTONI DEFEATS LARCADE IN FINAL

Tulane Star Scores One Up Triumph To Win Conference Golf Crown

BATON ROUGE, La., April 10.—(AP)—Vincent D'Antoni of Tulane university defeated Lawrence Larcade of Louisiana State university, one up, in the 18-hole finals to capture the Southeastern conference golf championship today.

D'Antoni, who carried the Greenie banner almost singlehanded through the entire tournament, blasted the Tigers' number one star, Fred Haas, Jr., the Canadian amateur champion, from the semi-finals this morning, in the most spectacular and grueling match of the conference meet.

He matched Haas stroke for stroke in a stiff pace of par golf, on the Bengal's own course, and outlasted him to win on the 26th green with a curling putt for a birdie two.

Larcade had trounced his teammate, Paul Leslie, the western amateur titlist, in the other semi-final, one up over 20 holes.

This afternoon, with both golfers worn from their morning's play, D'Antoni gave a remarkable exhibition of stamina in defeating Larcade, who is L. S. U.'s number four player.

One down to the 18th, Larcade, putting for a birdie from eight feet, missed and carded par five. D'Antoni, firing his third shot to within two feet of the pin, holed out in birdie four to win the final match.

Qualifying Round Opens In McGuire Tournament

Many Golfers Expected To Post Scores Today In Club Championship

The qualifying round in the club championship golf tournament at McGuire Park Golf club got under way yesterday when five players posted their scores, according to Jim McKenzie, McGuire course pro.

The scores follow:

Ray Alleman, 97; Ford Hines, 90; J. L. Warren, 97; Ray Buce, 85, and Scott Spencer, 100.

Many other qualifying rounds are expected to be played today and this week the remainder will be posted. The deadline for qualifying is April 18, McKenzie said.

The biggest entry list in the history of the annual tournament is expected this year, McKenzie said. Bun Beasley is the defending champion.

The clubhouse at McGuire park was recently remodeled and the course is in excellent condition. The course drains quickly and the recent wet weather did not keep the players off the links for more than a day or so.

The "play" at the West Monroe course has been heavier than usual at this time of the year and McKenzie expects a banner golf year at the McGuire layout.

The West Side pro has planned an attractive spring and summer program which includes weekly sweepstakes tournaments, as well as major tourneys and matches with clubs in this section. The McGuire membership will visit several other north Louisiana clubs during the season and in turn will entertain other clubs in matches at the local links.

Following the qualifying round in the club championship meet, first round matches will begin with one week allowed for completion of each round of play. Several attractive prizes will be awarded various winners in the tourney.

PICARD WINNER OF CHARLESTON GOLF

Hershey Pro Posts 282 To Nose Out Jimmy Thomson For First Money

CHARLESTON, S. C., April 10.—(AP)—Henry Picard, calm, graceful-stroking professional from Hershey, Pa., outlasted a serious challenge today to win the Tournament of the Gardens for the third straight year.

The former home town golfer, finished the 72-hole battle with a total of 282, two under par, to nose out the charging Jimmy Thomson of Shawnee-On-Delaware, Pa., by a single blow.

In the great stretch battle, Sam Snead, 24-year-old rookie from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., lost the "feel" of his car clubs to wind up in third place with 285 after leading the field by two strokes going into the final 18 holes.

Thomson shot a final round 70, one under par, while Picard, with a 71, edged in for the top prize of $1,250 and 25 per cent of an added $20 entry fee.

Lighthorse Harry Cooper of Chicago, like Snead, used up 76 blows on the final round.

Craig Wood, of New York, shot a 39-33—72, to wind up in a fourth place tie with Cooper at 290. This pair was one blow ahead of Johnny Revolta, former P. G. A. champion from Chicago, who carded a final 76.

Registering one of the best scores on the last lap, a neat 69, Wiffy Cox, Washington, D. C., pro finished sixth with 292, a stroke ahead of Paul Runyan of White Plains N. Y., Victor Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., and Ray Mangrum of Oakmont, Pa.

For finishing second Thomson collected $750 and 15 per cent of the added prize money. Snead's check was for $550 and 11 per cent of the cut.

Frank Ford of Charleston, also a two-time winner, finished with 303 to take the amateur prize, with Morton McCarthy of Norfolk, Va., and Dick Daniel of Augusta, Ga., tied for second at 318.

Gene Sarazen of Brookfield Center, Conn., finished in a tie for 14th place with Horton Smith of Chicago with 299s.

Lions Win Close Battle From Plungers; Pitching Features Game

The Ouachita Parish High school baseball team nosed out the strong Dubach High school Plungers, 2 to 1, in a hard fought game at the Plum street diamond here yesterday afternoon. It was the closest game of the season for the two clubs, and both Ouachita and Dubach are expected to be a couple of the strongest teams in the district rally next week at Ruston.

It was a pitchers duel from start to finish with E. C. Hinton, of Ouachita, and C. R. Colvin, of Dubach, letting down the opposing batsmen with only three hits, none of which were for extra bases. Hinton, however, chalked up eight strikeouts against Colvin's three.

The Lions scored in the opening inning, and Dubach tied it up in their half of the third. Then the battle began with both nines playing hard to gain the lead. Blazier finally scored the deciding run for Ouachita in the sixth inning.

Jones, local first baseman, led the hitting with two singles in three times at bat. Blazier scored both the Lions' runs, while H. McKee scored for the Plungers.

TWO TECHNICAL KAYOES SCORED IN 8-BOUT CARD

By Paul Martin

The Northeast Center of L. S. U. boxers ended their home schedule with a 6 to 2 victory over the Longhorns of Texas university here last night at the Neville High school arena before a generous turn-out of fight fans.

The Indians showed marked superiority throughout most of the program, which was featured by two technical knockouts. The Steers got their only points when Madison Kirkland, 155, outpointed James Gremillion of Center, and when Andy "Big Steer" Chilton technically knocked out Ed "Pop" Walker, local heavyweight, in the second round.

Tony Veranda, the Indians' light heavyweight from Pasadena, Calif., scored the other technical knockout of the program when he stopped Walter Cain, 175, of Texas, in the third round, after a surprising rally by Cain, who had taken a bad beating in the first two rounds.

Veranda put on the rush act at the starting bell and before Cain was out of his corner, the Indian was on top of him with a couple of jarring blows to the head. Cain was stunned by the suddenness of the attack but managed to get out of trouble and hang on through the remainder of the round, although Veranda kept worrying him with rights and lefts. The Steer came out in the second to drop under a series of thudding blows to the head but rose to his knee to take a voluntary "nine" count, but he rose only to go down again a few seconds later for another nine. Cain was barely sticking with Veranda at the bell.

Cain came out warily in the third and began a fair exchange with Veranda. The Texan's blows began to show their sting for the first time, and Veranda went down for no count from a right to the jaw. Veranda ran into another jarring right that staggered him, but then Cain's rally ceased as suddenly as it had begun and Tony got over a series of wallops to the head that dropped Cain and the Texan's seconds tossed in the towel.

The program opened with Bumps Gormley, stellar Center bantam, dishing out a severe beating to John Newel, 118, of Texas U. The fight was slow starting, but Gormley led effectively with his left, feeling Newel out, and then poured into Newel in the second to work him over with punishing rights to the body and head. Near the close of the second, Newel went down for no count, but rose helplessly to be saved by the bell from another trip to the mat. The third round was all Gormley, as the Indian rushed Newel all over the ring, hitting the Longhorn at will. With the Texan practically out on his feet, Referee Elliott started to intervene in his behalf, but Newel waved him aside to continue a game fight, with Gormley striving desperately for a knockout.

After battling two rounds on about even terms with Jack Greasenbech, 126, of Texas, "Shorty" Green, of Center, opened up in the third round to gain the judges' decision. Both Greasenbech and Green delivered some terrific blows in the first round with Green shading the visitor at aggressiveness. Greasenbech opened the second by staggering the Indian with a couple of rights and then continued to rush Green through the first part of the round, but the local scrapper evened the count with jarring rights

OUACHITA WINS FOUR NET TITLES AT RUSTON

Winnsboro Takes Boys' Doubles To Prevent Clean Sweep By Locals

RUSTON, La., April 10.—(Special)—Tennis players of Ouachita Parish High school of Monroe won first place in four of the final matches and Winnsboro High school captured the cup in one of the final events of the annual North Louisiana High school rally tournament, concluded at Louisiana Tech at 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

The Monroe school won the boys' singles, girls' singles, girls' doubles and the mixed doubles, while Winnsboro took the boys' doubles.

Awards were presented to the winners by M. H. Folk, Jr., secretary of the rally. First and second place winners in the singles events received medals, while the champions in the three doubles matches were given trophies.

In the semi-finals of the boys' singles, Isaac Patton of O. P. H. S. defeated Pope Almon of Arcadia, 6-0, 6-1, and Quentin McLemore of Winnsboro defeated Billy Bendel of Neville, 6-3, 5-7, 6-1.

In the semi-finals of the girls' doubles, Mary Elizabeth Mahr and June Moffett of O. P. H. S. defeated Clothylde Read and Margaret Ramsey of Farmerville, 6-0, 6-2, and Dorothy Wade and Daisy Claire Woodard of Arcadia defeated Clara Rogillio and Mary Alice Lang of Winnsboro, 6-0, 6-3.

Semi-finals in other events were staged here Friday.

Results of the five final contests Saturday were as follows:

Boys' singles—Isaac Patton of O. P. H. S. defeated Quentin McLemore of Winnsboro, 7-5, 6-2.

Girls' singles—Mary Elizabeth Mahr of O. P. H. S., defeated Faye Wimberly of Arcadia, 6-3, 6-1.

Boys' doubles—Quentin McLemore and Noble McCuan of Winnsboro defeated Leon Fergus and Isaac Patton of O. P. H. S., 6-4, 5-7, 6-1.

Girls' doubles — Mary Elizabeth Mahr and June Moffett of O. P. H. S. defeated Dorothy Wade and Daisy Claire Woodard of Arcadia, 6-1, 6-1.

Mixed doubles—Leon Fergus and June Moffett of O. P. H. S. defeated Gerald Hightower and Faye Wimberly of Arcadia, 6-3, 6-8.

TULANE NET TEAM TROUNCES L. S. U.

BATON ROUGE, La., April 10—(AP)—Tulane university swamped Louisiana State university's tennis team here today, winning all six matches. Tulane's National Intercollegiate champion Ernie Sutter led the way to victory, trouncing Jack Bushman, 6-2, 6-2.

M. J. McLaney, L. S. U.'s ranking player, did not compete. He was declared ineligible because of scholastic deficiency.

The results:

Ernie Sutter (Tulane) defeated Jack Bushman (L. S. U.), 6-2, 6-2.

Joe Abrams (Tulane) defeated Gene Cole (L. S. U.), 6-3, 6-0.

Billy Westerfield (Tulane) defeated Tom Sanders (L. S. U.), 6-4, 6-2.

Donald Doyle (Tulane) defeated Charlie Lewis (L. S. U.), 6-1, 6-1.

Sutter and Abrams (Tulane) defeated Bushman and Lewis (L. S. U.), 6-2, 6-0.

Westerfield and Guy Cheng (Tulane) defeated Sanders and Cole (L. S. U.), 6-3, 6-3.

Cardinals, Favored To Win Pennant, Are Over-Rated

NEW YORK ADOPTS NEW STYMIE RULE

Ball Lying Within Twelve Inches Of Cup May Be Lifted This Year

NEW YORK, April 10.—(AP)—The New York State Golf association contended tentatively today it was six inches nearer the solution of the troublous stymie stickler.

While other associations over the country are arguing whether to abandon or retain the stymie the New York body compromised by ruling that for one year in its match play tournaments a ball lying within 12 inches of the hole or within 12 inches of the opponents' ball may be lifted at the option of either player.

The present United States Golf association rule states that a ball may be lifted in match play only when it is within six inches of the opponents' ball.

Edward E. Wyman, president of the New York group, said the modification was done with the sanction of the U. S. G. A. He added that contestants in New York state tournaments will be asked for their opinions of the experiment at the end of the season.

Stressing the fact that the rule is made purely on a trial basis, Wyman explained the New York association hit on this modification after studying the change in the golf ball since the original stymie rule was made.

"The new rule is offered," said Wyman, "in the belief that the six-inch stymie ruling, which has been in effect since the days of the "gutty" ball, does not give even the skilled player a proper chance to chip the new livelier and larger ball over the ball laying the stymie and at the same time control the shot."

Wyman also pointed out that it was much easier to putt around the small gutty ball than it is to putt around the modern ball.

"The permission to lift the ball which lays the stymie, when within 12 inches of the cup," he continued, "is intended to remove the so-called blockade of the hole, and thus give the player a fairer chance to execute a reasonable stymie without the added hazard of knocking his opponent's ball into the hole."

The movement to abolish the stymie gained force last autumn when Johnny Fischer laid Jack McLean a stymie on the 34th green in the finals of the United States Amateur championship at Garden City, N. Y.

L. S. U. TRACK TEAM BEATS TWO RIVALS

LAFAYETTE, La., April 10.—(AP)—Louisiana State Tigers' track team carried off top honors at a triangular meet with Southwestern Louisiana institute and Louisiana Normal here this afternoon, garnered 76 points and eleven first places.

The Tigers' freshmen team also placed first in their division, scoring 42 points.

Southwestern was second in the varsity contest with 29 points and Louisiana Normal third with 19 points. Southwestern's freshman track team made 24 points.

In the shot-put, one of the featured events, Hart of Louisiana college heaved the weight 48 feet 6 inches, to beat Lester of L. S. U. by inches.

SOUTHEASTERN LOOP TO OPEN THURSDAY

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 10.—(AP)—Baseball business is on a decided upswing in six cities that will go under the wire in the newly organized Southeastern league's pennant chase which opens at Mobile on April 15.

"And the fans are bound to get more interested," said Stuart X. Stephenson, executive secretary of the league, "as we turn from exhibitions to the regular season rivalry."

Meridian and Jackson, Miss., Mobile, Montgomery and Selma, Ala., and Pensacola, Fla., make up the six-club, class B circuit.

Those engaging in exhibition games to date reported "better than anticipated attendance and wonderful spirits," Stephenson said.

"This league's a natural," Stephenson, who is also sports editor of the Montgomery Advertiser, continued. "Look at Pensacola and Mobile, Meridian and Jackson, Montgomery and Selma. How's that for inter-city rivalry? We'll have the rail birds at each other's throats—we hope—from the start."

Jackson, Montgomery, Selma and Pensacola teams have been training two weeks. Mobile got under way a week ago, and Meridian, with Leonard McNair as manager, is preparing for entry.

GAS HOUSE GANG WEAK IN SEVERAL IMPORTANT SPOTS

Infield And Pitching Staff, Not To Mention Catching, May Hurt Bird

By Harry Grayson
(NEA Service Sports Editor)

DAYTONA, BEACH, Fla., April 10.—It strikes me that the St. Louis Cardinals have a lot of problems for a club made favorite by the bettors and generally picked to win the National league pennant.

Maybe the boys figure that Pepper Martin's Gas House band will blow, strum, sing, and strut its way down in front. Between Dizzy Dean's $25,500 contract and Maestro Martin's musicians, the Red Birds have more harmony than they have known since Dizzy's high hard one made him important, but it will take more than a couple of good pitchers with music wherever they go to beat the Giants, Cubs, and Pirates.

The Cardinals should obtain plenty of pitching from Dizzy Dean and Lon Warneke, but after those two are listed the blokes in the red blazers are no better off in the box than any other major league club.

Mickey Owen can throw like blazes, but he hasn't a stroke at bat, and may lack the catching intelligence required of a major leaguer.

Johnny Mize's fielding still is so questionable at first base that Branch Rickey has decided to carry a reserve first baseman, Dick Siebert.

Stuart Martin still hasn't his full strength following his severe attack of appendicitis, and the old warhorse, Frank Frisch, may have to start at second base. Shortstop is in the hands of the capable Leo Durocher.

Gutteridge Light Hitter

Don Gutteridge, up from Columbus, perhaps is the fastest man in baseball, but Branch Rickey admits he is a streaky ball player, and he may not enjoy enough good streaks to make a go of it at third base.

Gutteridge drove in 99 runs in hitting .298 for Columbus, which is a record that barely would get him by with a hard-hitting National league entry.

Jimmy Brown, who hit .309 for Rochester, is a surplus infielder.

Gutteridge and Terry Moore, the light-footed centerfielder, revealed such a tendency to hit at bad inside pitches this spring that Branch Rickey ordered them to the batting cage.

But to get back to the all-important department of pitching. A good share of Paul Dean's 20 pounds of excess weight has settled in his thighs, and he can't seem to get it off.

The younger of the Deans must find his old speed between now and April 20. He says that his arm no longer hurts, but he never was a Fred Astaire, and his increased tonnage has him giving an excellent imitation of the Shanty Hogan of last summer in the field.

Jim Winford is a dependable righthander, but Bill McGee has yet to prove himself. Rickey banked on Ray Harrell, back from Rochester, but he has been retarded by a late February appendectomy, which may throw Si Johnson, on whom the Reds gave up, into the front line.

Bob Weiland, giant southpaw, bagged 23 games for Rochester, but got nowhere in previous major league whirls with the White Sox, Red Sox, Indians, and Browns. Jesse Haines is still around, but seldom will be used.

The Cardinals will carry five outfielders for the time being—Joe Medwick, Terry Moore, Pepper Martin, Don Padgett, and Stanley Bordagaray, the former Dodger who refuses to reform.

Everybody seems to have great faith in Padgett, a collegian who obtained experience in Columbus last season. He hasn't hit this spring, but is a big, left-handed swatter who drives the ball a long way when he gets hold of it.

Mlss Virgil Davis

Because of the club's color, Cardinal stars frequently are overrated.

Take Terry Moore, for example. Moore, a centerfielder, hit in on only 47 runs in batting only .264 in 143 games last season.

This spring it suddenly was discovered that Moore was holding the bat too tight and that there was a flaw in the way he held one hand on the club.

Frisch figures that there must be something that Moore can do about his hitting. He has keen eyes and strong muscles, much too keen and too strong for him to hit only .264.

But to date this spring, Joe Medwick and Johnny Mize and their 400-feet drives have represented the punch of a Cardinal club the exhibition game record of which has been poor.

I suspect that Frisch now realizes more than ever that it was a mistake to let the veteran catcher, Virgil Davis, go to the Reds.

Brusie Ogrodowski can catch, but can't hit, and Owen has yet to demonstrate that he can do either. The third man, Paul Chervinko, also up from Columbus, has more experience than either of the others, but lacks their potential ability.

Rickey left the Cardinals to look after the camps of some of the farm clubs, and President Sam Breadon was called to St. Louis by the illness of his daughter.

That leaves Frisch with the entire burden on his shoulders, and the old Fordham Flash, a world champion worrier, rapidly is developing a brand-new crop of wrinkles.

As used in card games, the word "trump" is a corruption of the word "triumph" as pronounced in French.

ROCKS STOP YANKEES

LITTLE ROCK, April 10.—(AP)—The New York Yankees' exhibition winning streak was snapped at 13 straight games today when the Little Rock Travellers of the Southern association came through with a 9 to 8 victory on the strength of a two-run splurge in the ninth inning.

Centerfielder Nonnenkamp produced the winning blow with a homer with one on in the ninth, after Malone relieved Hadley in the eighth.

Score by innings:

New York (A) ...103 102 001— 8 12 4
Little Rock (SA)..100 002 402— 9 12 1

Hadley, Malone and Dickey; Poindexter, Midkiff and Thompson, Coble.

REDS WHIP BINGHAMTON

SPARTANBURG, S. C., April 10.—(AP)—A five-hit, five-run rally in the ninth gave the Cincinnati Reds today a 6 to 2 exhibition victory over Binghamton of the New York-Pennsylvania league.

Rookie Third Baseman Jimmy Outlaw hit a home run and two singles to lead the Cincinnati attack. Outfielder Phil Weintraub and Shortstop Billy Myers also hit for the circuit.

Score by innings:

Cincinnati (NL) ..100 000 005 – 6 10 3
Binghamton
(NYP) ....002 000 000— 2 5 0

Hallahan, Vandermeer and V. Davis, Campbell; Blumette, Lindell, Aldrews and McCullough, De Phillips.

CUBS TRIM BROWNS

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 10.—(AP)—Home runs played a major part today as the Chicago Cubs defeated the St. Louis Browns here in an exhibition game, 10 to 6. The National leaguers now have a 2 to 1 lead in the series.

The Cubs had little difficulty with the offerings of four Brownie pitchers. Clay Bryant, Billy Herman, Stan Hack and Phil Cavarretta hit circuit blows, Hack's driving in two runs.

Score by innings:

Chicago (N) ......003 061 000—10 11 2
St. Louis (A) .....030 210 000— 6 7 2

Bryant, Root and O'Dea; Tietje, Blake, Walkup, Bonetti and Huffman.

NATS BEAT LOOKOUTS

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 10.—(AP)—The Washington Nationals scored a 5 to 2 victory over their Chattanooga farmhands today.

Hank Bowman, a slender righthander, held the Washington club hitless for three innings while his mates piled up a 2 to 0 lead. The Nats, however, pushed across three runs in the fourth after two were out and added two more in the ninth.

Score by innings:

Washington ...... 000 300 002— 5 8 0
Chattanooga ......101 000 000— 2 9 0

Weaver, Newsom and Hogan and Millies; Barnes, Hayes and Early.

DODGERS ROUT JAX

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 10.—(AP)—Jimmy Bucher, filling in at third base for the ailing Joe Stripp, made a determined bid for a regular job in the Brooklyn lineup today by slamming two homers to lead the Dodgers to a 13 to 3 win over Jacksonville of the Sally league.

Score by innings:

Brooklyn (N) ... 321 010 231— 13 17 1
Jacksonville
(SAL) ... ... 020 010 000— 3 6 3

Hamlin, Butcher and Phelps; Klumpp, Frankhouse, Haskins and A. Lentz, Lane.

GIANTS BLANK CHICKS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 10.—(AP)—Harry Gumbert and fat Freddy Fitzsimmons pitched three-hit ball between them today as the New York Giants blanked the Southern association Memphis Chicks, 5 to 0, in an exhibition game.

Score by innings:

CARDS LICK ALBANY

ALBANY, Ga., April 10.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals had little difficulty today in subduing the Albany club of the Georgia-Florida league, a St. Louis farm club, 11 to 3.

Stan Bordagaray's home run in the first inning with two aboard sent the Redbirds off to a flying start. In the sixth Johnny Mize also hit for the circuit with one mate on base.

Score by innings:

St. Louis (N) ... 310 103 111—11 20 2

TIGERS SHADE ROYALS

LAKELAND, Fla., April 10.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers overcame a four-run lead to defeat Montreal of the International league in a 10-inning game today, 6 to 5.

Laabs' double to left field scored Greenberg, who had singled, with the winning run.

Greenberg, Walker and Fox hit home runs for the Tigers.

Score by innings:

Montreal (IL) ..110 020 010 0— 5 12 0
Detroit (A) ... 000 010 031 1— 6 12 0

Duke, Pollh and Kies; Lawson, Hatter and Cochrane, Hayworth.

A'S BLANK PHILLIES

PHILADELPHIA, April 10.—(AP)—George Caster and Bud Thomas hurled shutout ball today as the Athletics scored a 7 to 0 victory over the Phillies to take the lead in a five game series for the city championship. Cold weather held the crowd to a few hundred.

The A's took the lead in the frist when Hugh Mulcahy walked two men with the bases filled. Mulcahy then settled down and pitched six consecutive hitless innings. Hal Kelleher replaced him at the start of the eighth and the A's bunched four hits, one a double by "Ace" Parker with the bases full, to score five runs.

Caster pitched six innings, yielded only four scattered hits, struck out two and didn't issue a base on balls. Thomas hurled the last three innings and gave up a double and a single.

Score by innings:

Philadelphia (N)..000 000 000— 0 6 2
Philadelphia (A)..200 000 05x— 7 6 0

INDIANS BEAT JUDGES

PINE BLUFF, Ark., April 10.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians added another scap to their belts today in defeating the Pine Bluff club of the Cotton States league, 5 to 2.

Al Milnar went nine innings for the Indians. He fanned six men in the first two innings but showed arm weariness toward the close. Seven errors by the locals aided the American leaguers.

The Indians play tomorrow at Little Rock when Bob Feller and Earl Whitehill are scheduled to pitch. They rejoin the New York Giants Monday at Decatur, Ala.

BEES DOWN COLUMBIA

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 10.—(AP)—Gene Moore paced the Boston Bees to a 5-1 victory over their Columbia farmhands today by poling out a homer with two on in the first inning. Wally Berger registered the fourth run with a circuit drive in the fifth inning, just before the Bees put over their final tally on a pass, a single and an infield out.

TWO TECHNICAL

of his own as the stanza drew to a close. Greusenbeck, apparently tired out by the grind of the first two rounds, became an easy target for Green in the last round, and the Indian began to pile up points at will to win.

Bob McKinney, 135, and rated one of Texas' best scrappers, ran into plenty of trouble with the veteran Snyder Parham, of Center, and although McKinney showed considerable cleverness and defensive ability in the first round, the Indian held the inside track from then on. The first round was fairly slow with both hitters boxing cleverly, but doing no damage as each showed a good defense, but the veteran Parham had McKinney in all kinds of trouble in the second, working effectively with hard body punches and stinging blows to the head. McKinney missed plenty of his punches during the second.

The third was all Parham's. He whipped the Steer down with more hard rights and lefts to the face and then began to find the same mark at ease as the invader tired. McKinney reeled under another hard right and was wobbling about the ring almost out on his feet at the bell.

Another fight that started slow but finished with fireworks was the engagement between Monroe McNaughton, 145, of Center, and Oran Hughes, of Texas. Neither had much to show in the first two rounds, but Hughes, like his preceeding teammates, apparently didn't have the steam necessary for three rounds, and McNaughton was all over him in the [illegible] to win the decision. Hughes [illegible] under one of McNaughton's [illegible] the opening of the third, but [illegible] up for no count. He [illegible] and McNaughton dropped him again with another [illegible] right. The Texan still refused to take a [illegible] and rose to be hammered about the ring until he was floored again for a three count. The [illegible] was ended by the bell.

Madison Kirkland, Texas, outpointed James Gremillion in the slowest fight of the night. Kirkland had the edge in the first round, although Gremillion was quite aggressive. A slow second round went to Kirkland and the third opened a little more spirited as both Kirkland and Gremillion exchanged hard blows to the head and body. Gremillion got the worst of the trade and went down under a barrage of lefts and rights, but took no count. The fight dragged out for the remainder of the round with Kirkland holding the advantage.

James Williams, Center 165-pounder, had trouble getting Herbert Nessour in range as the Longhorn kept him practically tied up in clinches throughout the fight. However, after two slow rounds that were featured by Nessour's holding on, Williams began to uppercut the visitor in the third and got in his most effective blows during that round. Williams won all three rounds.

The heavyweight battle, fought ahead of the Veranda-Cain scrap, started fast with "Pop" Walker spotting Chilton plenty of beef and reach. Walker looked particularly good at the start as he bored into Chilton and rushed him around the ring, but the Texan finally slowed him down with a right to the head and another right sat Walker down. Walker got up in time to catch a hard right to the body and was staggering around the ring as the round ended. Chilton opened the last round by knocking Walker down for a five count, and as Walker arose he was floored again, but the Center seconds saved the count by tossing in the towel.

Coach James Malone announced from the ring that the Indians would not end their season last night as had been previously thought, but that they would go to Shreveport to end the season with a third meet with Centenary's scrappers Wednesday night.

The judges were Dr. W. L. Bendel, Dr. Joe Brown and Herbert Fink. Dick Elliott was the referee; George Kalil did the announcing; and Percy Brown kept time.

second inning. Fay walked to start the inning and Stone skied to Frierson. Carter singled to left and Fay stopped at second. Uhle hit sharply to Bell at second and with an easy double play in sight, Bell let the roller get through him, and Fay scored, Carter going to third. Chandler flied out to right and Carter scored after the catch.

The Cannibals got their third run in the eighth. Miller led off with a double that was inches inside the right field foul line. Peters skied to Luck in center. Fay hit to Campbell, who threw a mile over Windle's head at first and Miller scored. Richardson hit the next batsman but the next two were easy outs.

ALLISON, GRANT TO TENNIS FINAL

Veteran Davis Cup Star Beats Senior And Atlanta Ace Trims Sabin

HOUSTON, Tex., April 10.—(AP)—Wilmer Allison, veteran Davis Cup player, defeated Walter Senior of San Francisco, 6-2, 6-2, 1-6, 6-4, in the River Oaks tourney today and went into final play with Bryan Grant for the third year in succession. Grant beat Wayne Sabin of Hollywood, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4, in the semi-finals.

The two old court foes will meet at 3 p.m. tomorrow to decide the title. Finals in women's singles and men's doubles will also be played tomorrow.

Grant, who earlier in the week played drab tennis, reestablished himself as the favorite in the Sabin match. The tireless "Mite" returned everything with uncanny accuracy and handled the situation well from the baselines.

Allison, veteran Davis Cup and international tournament player who had retired from big time tennis, had little difficulty in disposing of Senior.

The River Oaks tourney was Allison's first competition in several months. While recovering from an injury suffered when playing with Grant in a Davis Cup test match, Allison had taken up golf.

Grant was seeded No. 1 and Allison No. 2.

Marvin Kantrowitz, Texas university student from New York, won the junior title by defeating Bobby Decker, Florida State junior champion, 6-4, 9-7.

The junior title was the only one decided.

Two Wightman Cup players, Marjorie Van Ryn of Austin and Gracyn Wheeler of Santa Monica, Calif., will meet for the women's singles title immediately after the Grant-Allison match.

Grant and Sabin defeated Martin Buxby and Elwood Cooke, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4, 8-6, to go into the doubles finals. The semi-finals match between Bob and Karl Kamrath and Arthur Hendrix and Walter Senior was postponed by darkness until tomorrow. Each team had won two sets.

OUACHITA WINS FOUR NET TITLES AT RUSTON

Winnsboro Takes Boys' Doubles To Prevent Clean Sweep By Locals

RUSTON, La., April 10.—(Special)—Tennis players of Ouachita Parish High school of Monroe won first place in four of the final matches and Winnsboro High school captured the cup in one of the final events of the annual North Louisiana High school rally tournament, concluded at Louisiana Tech at 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

The Monroe school won the boys' singles, girls' singles, girls' doubles and the mixed doubles, while Winnsboro took the boys' doubles.

Awards were presented to the winners by M. H. Folk, Jr., secretary of the rally. First and second place winners in the singles events received medals, while the champions in the three doubles matches were given trophies.

In the semi-finals of the boys' singles, Isaac Patton of O. P. H. S. defeated Pope Almon of Arcadia, 6-0, 6-1, and Quentin McLemore of Winnsboro defeated Billy Bendel of Neville, 6-3, 5-7, 6-1.

In the semi-finals of the girls' doubles, Mary Elizabeth Mahr and June Moffett of O. P. H. S. defeated Clothylde Read and Margaret Ramsey of Farmerville, 6-0, 6-2, and Dorothy Wade and Daisy Claire Woodard of Arcadia defeated Clara Rogillio and Mary Alice Lang of Winnsboro, 6-0, 6-3.

Semi-finals in other events were staged here Friday.

Results of the five final contests Saturday were as follows:

Boys' singles—Isaac Patton of O. P. H. S. defeated Quentin McLemore of Winnsboro, 7-5, 6-2.

Girls' singles—Mary Elizabeth Mahr of O. P. H. S. defeated Faye Wimberly of Arcadia, 6-3, 6-1.

Boys' doubles—Quentin McLemore and Noble McCuan of Winnsboro defeated Leon Fergus and Isaac Patton of O. P. H. S., 6-4, 5-7, 6-1.

Girls' doubles — Mary Elizabeth Mahr and June Moffett of O. P. H. S. defeated Dorothy Wade and Daisy Claire Woodard of Arcadia, 6-1, 6-1.

Mixed doubles—Leon Fergus and June Moffett of O. P. H. S. defeated Gerald Hightower and Faye Wimberly of Arcadia, 6-3, 6-8.

TULANE NET TEAM TROUNCES L. S. U.

BATON ROUGE, La., April 10.—(AP)—Tulane university swamped Louisiana State university's tennis team here today, winning all six matches. Tulane's National Intercollegiate champion Ernie Sutter led the way to victory, trouncing Jack Bushman, 6-2, 6-2.

M. J. McLaney, L. S. U.'s ranking player, did not compete. He was declared ineligible because of scholastic deficiency.

The results:

Ernie Sutter (Tulane) ,defeated Jack Bushman (L. S. U.), 6-2, 6-2.

Joe Abrams (Tulane) defeated Gene Cole (L. S. U.), 6-3, 6-0.

Billy Westerfield (Tulane) defeated Tom Sanders (L. S. U.), 6-4, 6-2.

Donald Doyle (Tulane) defeated Charlie Lewis (L. S. U.), 6-1, 6-1.

Sutter and Abrams (Tulane) defeated Bushman and Lewis (L. S. U.), 6-2, 6-0.

Westerfield and Guy Cheng (Tulane) defeated Sanders and Cole (L. S. U.), 6-3, 6-3.

Ball Lying Within Twelve Inches Of Cup May Be Lifted This Year

NEW YORK, April 10.—(AP)—The New York State Golf association contended tentatively today it was six inches nearer the solution of the troublous stymie stickler.

While other associations over the country are arguing whether to abandon or retain the stymie the New York body compromised by ruling that for one year in its match play tournaments a ball lying within 12 inches of the hole or within 12 inches of the opponents' ball may be lifted at the option of either player.

The present United States Golf association rule states that a ball may be lifted in match play only when it is within six inches of the opponents' ball.

Edward E. Wyman, president of the New York group, said the modification was done with the sanction of the U. S. G. A. He added that contestants in New York state tournaments will be asked for their opinions of the experiment at the end of the season.

Stressing the fact that the rule is made purely on a trial basis, Wyman explained the New York association hit on this modification after studying the change in the golf ball since the original stymie rule was made.

"The new rule is offered," said Wyman, "in the belief that the six-inch stymie ruling, which has been in effect since the days of the "gutty" ball, does not give even the skilled player a proper chance to chip the new livelier and larger ball over the ball laying the stymie and at the same time control the shot."

Wyman also pointed out that it was much easier to putt around the small gutty ball than it is to putt around the modern ball.

"The permission to lift the ball which lays the stymie, when within 12 inches of the cup," he continued, "is intended to remove the so-called blockade of the hole, and thus give the player a fairer chance to execute a reasonable stymie without the added hazard of knocking his opponent's ball into the hole."

The movement to abolish the stymie gained force last autumn when Johnny Fischer laid Jack McLean a stymie on the 34th green in the finals of the United States Amateur championship at Garden City, N. Y.

L. S. U. TRACK TEAM BEATS TWO RIVALS

LAFAYETTE, La., April 10.—(AP)—Louisiana State Tigers' track team carried off top honors at a triangular meet with Southwestern Louisiana institute and Louisiana Normal here this afternoon, garnered 76 points and eleven first places.

The Tigers' freshmen team also placed first in their division, scoring 42 points.

Southwestern was second in the varsity contest with 29 points and Louisiana Normal third with 19 points. Southwestern's freshman track team made 24 points.

In the shot-put, one of the featured events, Hart of Louisiana college heaved the weight 48 feet 6 inches, to beat Lester of L. S. U. by inches.

SOUTHEASTERN LOOP TO OPEN THURSDAY

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 10.—(AP)—Baseball business is on a decided upswing in six cities that will go under the wire in the newly organized Southeastern league's pennant chase which opens at Mobile on April 15.

"And the fans are bound to get more interested," said Stuart X. Stephenson, executive secretary of the league, "as we turn from exhibitions to the regular season rivalry."

Meridian and Jackson, Miss., Mobile, Montgomery and Selma, Ala., and Pensacola, Fla., make up the six-club, class B circuit.

Those engaging in exhibition games to date reported "better than anticipated attendance and wonderful spirits," Stephenson said.

"This league's a natural," Stephenson, who is also sports editor of the Montgomery Advertiser, continued. "Look at Pensacola and Mobile, Meridian and Jackson, Montgomery and Selma. How's that for inter-city rivalry? We'll have the rail birds at each other's throats—we hope—from the start."

Jackson, Montgomery, Selma and Pensacola teams have been training two weeks. Mobile got under way a week ago, and Meridian, with Leonard McNair as manager, is preparing for entry.

Cardinals, Favored To Win Pennant, Are Over-Rated

GAS HOUSE GANG WEAK IN SEVERAL IMPORTANT SPOTS

Infield And Pitching Staff, Not To Mention Catching, May Hurt Bird

By Harry Grayson
(NEA Service Sports Editor)

DAYTONA, BEACH, Fla., April 10.—It strikes me that the St. Louis Cardinals have a lot of problems for a club made favorite by the bettors and generally picked to win the National league pennant.

Maybe the boys figure that Pepper Martin's Gas House band will blow, strum, sing, and strut its way down in front. Between Dizzy Dean's $25,500 contract and Maestro Martin's musicians, the Red Birds have more harmony than they have known since Dizzy's high hard one made him important, but it will take more than a couple of good pitchers with music wherever they go to beat the Giants, Cubs, and Pirates.

The Cardinals should obtain plenty of pitching from Dizzy Dean and Lon Warneke, but after those two are listed the blokes in the red blazers are no better off in the box than any other major league club.

Mickey Owen can throw like blazes, but he hasn't a stroke at bat, and may lack the catching intelligence required of a major leaguer.

Johnny Mize's fielding still is so questionable at first base that Branch Rickey has decided to carry a reserve first baseman, Dick Siebert.

Stuart Martin still hasn't his full strength following his severe attack of appendicitis, and the old warhorse, Frank Frisch, may have to start at second base. Shortstop is in the hands of the capable Leo Durocher.

Gutteridge Light Hitter

Don Gutteridge, up from Columbus, perhaps is the fastest man in baseball, but Branch Rickey admits he is a streaky ball player, and he may not enjoy enough good streaks to make a go of it at third base.

Gutteridge drove in 99 runs in hitting .298 for Columbus, which is a record that barely would get him by with a hard-hitting National league entry.

Jimmy Brown, who hit .309 for Rochester, is a surplus infielder.

Gutteridge and Terry Moore, the light-footed centerfielder, revealed such a tendency to hit at bad inside pitches this spring that Branch Rickey ordered them to the batting cage.

But to get back to the all-important department of pitching. A good share of Paul Dean's 20 pounds of excess weight has settled in his thighs, and he can't seem to get it off.

The younger of the Deans must find his old speed between now and April 20. He says that his arm no longer hurts, but he never was a Fred Astaire, and his increased tonnage has him giving an excellent imitation of the Shanty Hogan of last summer in the field.

Jim Winford is a dependable righthander, but Bill McGee has yet to prove himself. Rickey banked on Ray Harrell, back from Rochester, but he has been retarded by a late February appendectomy, which may throw Si Johnson, on whom the Reds gave up, into the front line.

Bob Weiland, giant southpaw, bagged 23 games for Rochester, but got nowhere in previous major league whirls with the White Sox, Red Sox, Indians, and Browns. Jesse Haines is still around, but seldom will be used.

The Cardinals will carry five outfielders for the time being—Joe Medwick, Terry Moore, Pepper Martin, Don Padgett, and Stanley Bordagaray, the former Dodger who refuses to reform.

Everybody seems to have great faith in Padgett, a collegian who obtained experience in Columbus last season. He hasn't hit this spring, but is a big, left-handed swatter who drives the ball a long way when he gets hold of it.

Miss Virgil Davis

Because of the club's color, Cardinal stars frequently are overrated.

Take Terry Moore, for example. Moore, a centerfielder, hit in on only 47 runs in batting only .264 in 143 games last season.

This spring it suddenly was discovered that Moore was holding the bat too tight and that there was a flaw in the way he held one hand on the club.

Frisch figures that there must be something that Moore can do about his hitting. He has keen eyes and strong muscles, much too keen and too strong for him to hit only .264.

But to date this spring, Joe Medwick and Johnny Mize and their 400-feet drives have represented the punch of a Cardinal club the exhibition game record of which has been poor.

I suspect that Frisch now realizes more than ever that it was a mistake to let the veteran catcher, Virgil Davis, go to the Reds.

Brusie Ogrodowski can catch, but can't hit, and Owen has yet to demonstrate that he can do either. The third man, Paul Chervinko, also up from Columbus, has more experience than either of the others, but lacks their potential ability.

Rickey left the Cardinals to look after the camps of some of the farm clubs, and President Sam Breadon was called to St. Louis by the illness of his daughter.

That leaves Frisch with the entire burden on his shoulders, and the old Fordham Flash, a world champion worrier, rapidly is developing a brand-new crop of wrinkles.

As used in card games, the word "trump" is a corruption of the word "triumph" as pronounced in French.

EXHIBITION SCORES

ROCKS STOP YANKEES

LITTLE ROCK, April 10.—(AP)—The New York Yankees' exhibition winning streak was snapped at 13 straight games today when the Little Rock Travellers of the Southern association came through with a 9 to 8 victory on the strength of a two-run splurge in the ninth inning.

Centerfielder Nonnenkamp produced the winning blow with a homer with one on in the ninth, after Malone relieved Hadley in the eighth.

Score by innings:
New York (A) ...103 102 001— 8 12 4
Little Rock (SA)..100 002 402— 9 12 1
Hadley, Malone and Dickey; Poindexter, Midkiff and Thompson, Coble.

REDS WHIP BINGHAMTON

SPARTANBURG, S. C., April 10.—(AP)—A five-hit, five-run rally in the ninth gave the Cincinnati Reds today a 6 to 2 exhibition victory over Binghamton of the New York-Pennsylvania league.

Rookie Third Baseman Jimmy Outlaw hit a home run and two singles to lead the Cincinnati attack. Outfielder Phil Weintraub and Shortstop Billy Myers also hit for the circuit.

Score by innings:
Cincinnati (NL) ..100 000 005— 6 10 3
Binghamton
(NYP) ....002 000 000— 2 5 0

CUBS TRIM BROWNS

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 10.—(AP)—Home runs played a major part today as the Chicago Cubs defeated the St. Louis Browns here in an exhibition game, 10 to 6. The National leaguers now have a 2 to 1 lead in the series.

The Cubs had little difficulty with the offerings of four Brownie pitchers. Clay Bryant, Billy Herman, Stan Hack and Phil Cavaretta hit circuit blows, Hack's driving in two runs.

Score by innings:
Chicago (N) ......003 061 000—10 11 2
St. Louis (A) ....030 210 000— 6 7 2

NATS BEAT LOOKOUTS

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 10.—(AP)—The Washington Nationals scored a 5 to 2 victory over their Chattanooga farmhands today.

Hank Basner, a slender righthander, held the Washington club hitless for three innings while his mates piled up a 2 to 0 lead. The Nats, however, pushed across three runs in the fourth after two were out and added two more in the ninth.

Score by innings:
Washington ....000 300 002— 5 8 0
Chattanooga ......101 000 000— 2 9 0
Weaver, Newsom and Hogan and Millies; Bazner, Hayes and Early.

DODGERS ROUT JAX

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 10.—(AP)—Jimmy Bucher, filling in at third base for the ailing Joe Stripp, made a determined bid for a regular job in the Brooklyn lineup today by slamming two homers to lead the Dodgers to a 13 to 3 win over Jacksonville of the Sally league.

Score by innings:
Brooklyn (N) ....321 010 231—13 17 1
Jacksonville
(SAL) ....020 010 000— 3 6 3
Hamlin, Butcher and Phelps, Klumpp; Frankhouse, Haskins and A. Leitz, Lane.

GIANTS BLANK CHICKS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 10.—(AP)—Harry Gumbert and fat Freddy Fitzsimmons pitched three-hit ball between them today as the New York Giants blanked the Southern association Memphis Chicks, 5 to 0, in an exhibition game.

Score by innings:

CARDS LICK ALBANY

ALBANY, Ga., April 10.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals had little difficulty today in subduing the Albany club of the Georgia-Florida league, a St. Louis farm club, 11 to 3.

Stan Bordagaray's home run in the first inning with two aboard sent the Redbirds off to a flying start. In the sixth Johnny Mize also hit for the circuit with one mate on base.

Score by innings:
St. Louis (N) ....310 103 111—11 20 2

TIGERS SHADE ROYALS

LAKELAND, Fla., April 10.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers overcame a four-run lead to defeat Montreal of the International league in a 10-inning game today, 6 to 5.

Laabs' double to left field scored Greenberg, who had singled, with the winning run.

Greenberg, Walker and Fox hit home runs for the Tigers.

Score by innings:
Montreal (IL) ..110 020 010 0— 5 12 0
Detroit (A) ....000 010 031 1— 6 12 0
Duke, Polli and Kies; Lawson, Hatter and Cochrane, Hayworth.

A'S BLANK PHILLIES

PHILADELPHIA, April 10.—(AP)—George Caster and Bud Thomas hurled shutout ball today as the Athletics scored a 7 to 0 victory over the Phillies to take the lead in a five game series for the city championship. Cold weather held the crowd to a few hundred.

The A's took the lead in the frist when Hugh Mulcahy walked two men with the bases filled. Mulcahy then settled down and pitched six consecutive hitless innings. Hal Kelleher replaced him at the start of the eighth and the A's bunched four hits, one a double by "Ace" Parker with the bases full, to score five runs.

Caster pitched six innings, yielded only four scattered hits, struck out two and didn't issue a base on balls. Thomas hurled the last three innings and gave up a double and a single.

Score by innings:

INDIANS BEAT JUDGES

PINE BLUFF, Ark., April 10.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians added another scap to their belts today in defeating the Pine Bluff club of the Cotton States league, 5 to 2.

Al Milnar went nine innings for the Indians. He fanned six men in the first two innings but showed arm weariness toward the close. Seven errors by the locals aided the American leaguers.

The Indians play tomorrow at Little Rock when Bob Feller and Earl Whitehill are scheduled to pitch. They rejoin the New York Giants Monday at Decatur, Ala.

of his own as the stanza drew to a close. Greasenbech, apparently tired out by the grind of the first two rounds, became an easy target for Green in the last round, and the Indian began to pile up points at will to win.

Bob McKinney, 135, and rated one of Texas' best scrappers, ran into plenty of trouble with the veteran Snyder Parham, of Center, and although McKinney showed considerable cleverness and defensive ability in the first round, the Indian held the inside track from then on. The first round was fairly slow with both mitters boxing cleverly, but doing no damage as each showed a good defense, but the veteran Parham had McKinney in all kinds of trouble in the second, working effectively with hard body punches and stinging blows to the head. McKinney missed plenty of his punches during the second.

The third was all Parham's. He whipped the Steer down with more hard rights and lefts to the face and then began to find the same mark at ease as the invader tired. McKinney reeled under another hard right and was wobbling about the ring almost out on his feet at the bell.

Another fight that started slow but finished with fireworks was the engagement between Monroe McNaughton, 145, of Center, and Oran Hughes, of Texas. Neither had much to show in the first two rounds, but Hughes, like his preceeding teammates, apparently didn't have the steam necessary for three rounds, and McNaughton was all over him in the third to win the decision. Hughes dropped under one of McNaughton's rights at the opening of the third, but he was up for no count. He rose staggering and McNaughton dropped him again with another measured right. The Texan still refused to take a count and rose to be hammered about the ring until he was floored again for a three count. The damage was ended by the bell.

Madison Kirkland, Texas, outpointed James Gremillion in the slowest fight of the night. Kirkland had the edge in the first round, although Gremillion was quite aggressive. A slow second round went to Kirkland, and the third opened a little more spirited as both Kirkland and Gremillion exchanged hard blows to the head and body. Gremillion got the worst of the trade and went down under a barrage of lefts and rights, but took no count. The fight dragged out for the remainder of the round with Kirkland holding the advantage.

James Williams, Center 165-pounder, had trouble getting Herbert Nessour in range as the Longhorn kept him practically tied up in clinches throughout the fight. However, after two slow rounds that were featured by Nessour's holding on, Williams began to uppercut the visitor in the third and got in his most effective blows during that round. Williams won all three rounds.

The heavyweight battle, fought ahead of the Veranda-Cain scrap, started fast with "Pop" Walker spotting Chilton plenty of beef and reach. Walker looked particularly good at the start as he bored into Chilton and rushed him around the ring, but the Texan finally slowed him down with a right to the head and another right sat Walker down. Walker got up in time to catch a hard right to the body and was staggering around the ring as the round ended. Chilton opened the last round by knocking Walker down for a five count, and as Walker arose he was floored again, but the Center seconds saved the count by tossing in the towel.

Coach James Malone announced from the ring that the Indians would not end their season last night as had been previously thought, but that they would go to Shreveport to end the season with a third meet with Centenary's scrappers Wednesday night.

The judges were Dr. W. L. Bendel, Dr. Joe Brown and Herbert Fink. Dick Elliott was the referee; George Kalil did the announcing; and Percy Brown kept time.

TWINS HIT THREE

second inning. Fay walked to start the inning and Stone skied to Frierson. Carter singled to left and Fay stopped at second. Uhle hit sharply to Bell at second and with an easy double play in sight, Bell let the roller get through him, and Fay scored, Carter going to third. Chandler flied out to right and Carter scored after the catch.

The Cannibals got their third run in the eighth. Miller led off with a double that was inches inside the right field foul line. Peters skied to Lusk in center. Fay hit to Campbell, who threw a mile over Windle's head at first and Miller scored. Richardson hit the next batsman but the next two were easy outs.

ALLISON, GRANT TO TENNIS FINAL

Veteran Davis Cup Star Beats Senior And Atlanta Ace Trims Sabin

HOUSTON, Tex., April 10.—(AP)—Wilmer Allison, veteran Davis Cup player, defeated Walter Senior of San Francisco, 6-2, 6-2, 1-6, 6-4, in the River Oaks tourney today and went into final play with Bryan Grant for the third year in succession. Grant beat Wayne Sabin of Hollywood, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4, in the semi-finals.

The two old court foes will meet at 3 p.m. tomorrow to decide the title. Finals in women's singles and men's doubles will also be played tomorrow.

Grant, who earlier in the week played drab tennis, reestablished himself as the favorite in the Sabin match. The tireless "Mite" returned everything with uncanny accuracy and handled the situation well from the baselines.

Allison, veteran Davis Cup and international tournament player who had retired from big time tennis, had little difficulty in disposing of Senior.

The River Oaks tourney was Allison's first competition in several months. While recovering from an injury suffered when playing with Grant in a Davis Cup test match, Allison had taken up golf.

Grant was seeded No. 1 and Allison No. 2.

Marvin Kantrowitz, Texas university student from New York, won the junior title by defeating Bobby Decker, Florida State junior champion, 6-4, 9-7.

The junior title was the only one decided.

Two Wightman Cup players, Marjorie Van Ryn of Austin and Gracyn Wheeler of Santa Monica, Calif., will meet for the women's singles title immediately after the Grant-Allison match.

Grant and Sabin defeated Martin Buxby and Elwood Cooke, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4, 8-6, to go into the doubles finals. The semi-finals match between Bob and Karl Kamrath and Arthur Hendrix and Walter Senior was postponed by darkness until tomorrow. Each team had won two sets.

SMITH DESCRIBES CHRIST'S HEALING

Noted Evangelist To Preach Two Sermons At West Monroe Church Today

The story of Christ's healing the man sick of the palsy was the theme of the sermon of Gipsy Smith, Jr., delivered to a crowded house at the First Baptist church Friday night. The text was found in the second chapter of Mark.

He said in part: "There are always two keynotes of the gospel of Christ. The first is found in the gracious invitation, 'Come unto Me,' and the second 'Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel.' The first injunction in these days is obeyed far more than the second one. We are inclined to believe that the preaching the gospel pertains to the hiring of ministers and missionaries to do this work rather than we ourselves.

"What we need in the church of Jesus Christ today is the baptism of the Holy Spirit so that we may not say when asked 'I hope I am a Christian; but rather we should be able to say 'I know on whom I have believed.'

"We work with a will to put over this and that drive be it for the Y. M. C. A., the community chest, the Red Cross or whatever it may be, but, when it comes to waging a drive to save a soul for time and eternity we are not at all interested. If the church of Christ is not saving souls, it is a glorified quarry.

"In the lesson tonight when the man was cured of the palsy, four men can be pictured as carrying the suffering one to the Master for healing. On one corner carrying the cot on which he lay, was one whom we can by fancy call 'Mr. Love.' Love is all essential. If you go out to win souls you must love them. At another corner carrying the cot was one whom we can call, 'Mr. Faith.' With sufficient faith, the rottenest chap out of hell can be transformed into a Christian gentleman. 'Mr. Persistency.' carried another corner of the cot. The fourth fellow carrying the cot was 'Mr. Ingenuity.' When they got to the place where Jesus was, the crowd was so great that they could not get in despite the efforts of Love, Faith and Persistency. Then Ingenuity devised a way. He said 'Let's smash in the roof.' And this was done and the bed lowered to where Jesus stood. Then the Master said: 'Son, thy sins be forgiven thee.' The men who had borne the man thither were disappointed. They sought for his bodily healing. Jesus knew that with sins forgiven, all the desired healing would result. There would be no crepe on doors today, no orphanages, cemeteries, heartaches, blasted lives were it not for SIN. The very word is uttered with a hiss like that of a serpent. Where there is sin there is always death, disease.

"It is high time to nail a lie on the masthead that the Church of Christ in the Twin Cities does not care for the unsaved. The churches here have spent thousands upon thousands of dollars, but there are still great numbers of unchurched. We have not done what God enjoined. We have hired preachers to do our work for us. When you go home tonight get down on your knees and say, 'Oh, God, breathe upon me Thy Holy Spirit and grant me opportunity to bring others into the kingdom of God.'"

There was no service last night but there will be two services today. One at 10:50 a.m. and the other at 7:30 p.m. Morning services will be held all this week at 10 a.m. in the church auditorium. The final services will be on Sunday a week from today.

REA Has Fund Available For 4 Southwestern States

Louisiana To Get Large Slice Of Electrification Appropriation

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 10.—(Special)—REA means cold cash of more than $6,000,000 to Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas with which to provide farms with the conveniences only electricity can bring—light the barns and milk the cows, pump the water and heat it, sweep the floor and play the radio, wash the clothes and iron them, warm the baby's bottle and keep the food from spoiling.

That is what the rural electrification administration is doing as extensively and rapidly as possible. These states, having between them one-sixth of all the farms in the United States, are profiting handsomely.

Since the administration was organized, it has put up more than $6,000,000—with more to come—to enable farmers' cooperatives, municipal plants and private utilities to build thousands of miles of power lines to carry electricity to many thousand more farmers.

REA has $50,000,000 to work with this year and congress has authorized it to put out $40,000,000 each year for the next nine years, although this is still to be appropriated. When congress set REA up in business, one of the provisions was that half the available money every year should be loaned out on a pro-rata basis, according to the number of farms without power in the 48 states.

Louisiana Ranks 46th

Right off this would give these four states a large slice. They rank in the first half in the country as to number of farms but all rank way down at the end in the 40's in percentage of farms served by electric central stations, upon which the administration bases its funds. Louisiana with 170,216 farms ranks twenty-second but with only 3,990 electrified, ranks 46th in percentage electrified.

Oklahoma with 213,325 farms stands 13th in the farm list, but rates 43rd place on electrification. Arkansas with 253,013 farms is in ninth place in number but is 47th in electrification, with only 4,269 getting power.

Texas is at the very top of the heap with 501,017 farms, but rates only 42nd in percentage electrified, although there are 16,221 in the state getting service.

With required allotment of half the money on this basis, these states are bound to be well fixed in the electrification program. On top of this, the other half goes where REA decides it is needed most and where the projects are most likely to turn out satisfactorily.

Fast Progress Made

The work has moved rapidly in Oklahoma. The legal allotment for this fiscal year was $859,519 for the state. REA exceeded this with allotments totaling $856,481 in addition to $130,000 worth of projects started under old funds in its early days. There are nine projects in the state and Oklahoma will get no more loans for electrification until after the new fiscal year starts July 1. Then it will be in line for additional hundreds of thousands, although, of course, the amount has not been determined and will not be until new projects are in and approved.

Louisiana likewise has moved along well. Although only four projects have been approved, the required allotment of $676,386 has been exceeded by $443,614 and another to cost between $125,000 and $225,000 will probably be approved before July.

The Arkansas work has been slower, with only two getting loans. This totaled only $310,000 out of the legally required fund of $1,031,219 which was set aside. But the prospects are for an early and exceedingly bright future in this regard. Six new projects are on the way up and as soon as minor rate differences are ironed out, they will be approved. This will probably come about before July and will eat up the rest of the allotment in a hurry. Besides this there is talk of a "whopper" in the northern corner of the state to cost at least a million dollars and serve more than 5,000 homes.

Borrowers Necessary

Texas, like Oklahoma, will get no more loans this fiscal year since the state has already exceeded the $2,005,621 required allotments by $375,379. Besides this the state got $479,500 worth of power lines from old funds. As soon as the new fiscal year rolls around in July, there are eight Texas projects ready for an average of $200,000 each.

In financing this electrification work REA must have somebody to lend the money to—utility companies, municipal companies or cooperatives. Mostly it is the last, which are formed especially for this purpose of building power lines to farms. The government puts up the money and is paid back out of the revenues. In some cases generating plants are built for the job, but usually power is bought cheap from some plant already in operation. It usually sells at about five cents per kilowatt hour on the farm—but the rate also usually gets lower when the lines have been going a while.

It is the job of the group or company borrowing the money to hire electrical engineers, contractors, pay lawyers and do everything else that goes along with putting up extensive power lines. In other words, they are responsible for what is done with Uncle Sam's money on these projects.

INDUSTRIAL AND BUSINESS REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITIES NORTH LOUISIANA'S COMMERCIAL CENTER

26 NEW TRUCK MODELS APPEAR

International Harvester Announces New Models With 77 Wheelbases

Of special interest to truck users is the announcement that International Harvester has an entirely new line of motor trucks ranging from light delivery units to the largest six-wheeler. These new models include conventional four-wheel units, six-wheelers with both dual drive and trailing axle and cab-over-engine types.

The complete International line consists of 26 models in 77 wheelbases, with gross vehicle weights ranging from 4,400 to 62,000 pounds. Powerful truck engines, numerous wheelbases, a variety of rear axle ratios, two-speed rear axles and multiple-speed transmissions, especially in the heavy duty models, permits accurate selection from every standpoint of the right truck for each specific hauling task.

These new Internationals provide universally standardized (S. A. E.) cab-to-rear-axle dimensions so vitally necessary to body interchangeability and they also permit mounting of standard length bodies of stock sizes. Front axles are set back, and this, together with the relocation of rear axles and cabs, contributes to greatly improved load distribution, not only of body and pay load, but of gross weight as well. Thus loads on front and rear tires are more uniform, relieving the usually overloaded rear tires by transferring a greater portion of the load to the front tires.

Wheelbases, in conjunction with correct cab-to-rear-axle dimensions, are available to accommodate all lengths of bodies, with the ideal conditions resulting from the use of bodies in even foot lengths. At the same time, bodies in odd foot lengths will permit satisfactory mounting and load distribution on either the next shorter or longer wheelbase.

Many improvements and new features of design and construction have been incorporated in the engines of the International models.

While greater power has been provided for each of the new models, there has been no sacrifice in the fuel economy, company officials say. Performance, climbing ability, pulling power and operating economy are decidedly improved, the officials add.

All International truck engines are designed and built for truck service. The types FB and FB valve-in-head engines which power the two-ton and larger Internationals have replaceable cylinders; counterbalanced, vibration-dampened crankshafts; full pressure lubrication, precision type, replaceable shell, main and connecting rod bearings; hardened exhaust valve seat inserts, downdraft carburetion, scientifically designed manifolds, oil bath air cleaners, air-cooled generators, and other outstanding features which provide maximum power, unexcelled performance, long life and economy.

SERVICE EXPERTS IN MEETING HERE

United Electric Service Holds Get-Together For Exchange Of Ideas

More than 100 automotive service men, including automobile dealers, service managers and mechanics from northeast Louisiana, met Monday night at the United Electric Service, Inc., located at 306 North Third street, for a general get-together meeting and an exchange of ideas in their respective lines, with a view to promoting greater efficiency in their shops and strengthening their relations with the local company.

H. L. Scott, service engineer with the United Motor Service, Inc., Detroit, Mich., was the principal speaker of the evening and explained the reasons why motorists patronize the present day service stations, outlining a formula for taking care of customers' needs more efficiently.

One of the points brought out by Mr. Scott in his address was that 95 per cent of motorists who ask for service work, complain that their cars are lacking in pep, give poor mileage, are hard at starting, have batteries which are run down and give poor service and are overheated.

Mr. Scott declared that a service station should be equipped with modern methods and test appliances so that car trouble can be readily detected. He pointed out that efficient testing equipment insures better service to the motorists and more business for the service station.

The use of vacuum gauges in conjunction with exhaust gas analysis was explained by Mr. Scott, as well as many new improvements of considerable value to the service trade.

G. F. Becker, general manager of United Electrice Service, Inc., in Monroe, was in charge of the meeting and acted as host to the visiting service men and dealers. He introduced G. C. Fowler, assistant manager of the New Orleans branch of United Motor Service, Inc., who spoke about the research made in the automotive service industry to find new methods for automotive merchandising.

Following the session which started at 8:30 p.m., and lasted until 11:30 p.m., refreshments were served to the visitors who attended from Monroe, Bastrop, Vicksburg, Tallulah, Ruston and Jonesboro.

BOOK ASSISTS HOME OWNERS

Sherwin-Williams Concludes Distribution Of Valuable Pamphlet

For the fourth consecutive year the Sherwin-Williams company, located at 109 Catalpa street, concluded the distribution last week of 5,000 copies of the "Home Decorator," a book designed to assist home owners in problems of painting, wallpapering and interior decorating.

The books were distributed free to 5,000 homes throughout Ouachita parish. Six young ladies were employed in the task of distributing the "Home Decorator," a task which occupied two weeks and took them to all parts of the parish.

"We found many families who were still in possession of the first three issues of the book," one of the girls distributing the gift book reported to J. F. Davis, manager of the Sherwin-Williams company. "We were very cordially received by the housewives, many of whom told us that the 'Home Decorator' had proven of great value in helping to solve many problems in their homes in connection with painting and interior decorating."

The "Home Decorator" is a carefully prepared book replete with beautiful engravings in color showing many attractive combinations of colors and decorating for the home. It contains valuable information about many things connected with the interior and exterior of the home and has saved home owners considerable money by assisting them in their interior decorating problems.

NEW PLAN HELPS BUY SILVERWARE

'Little By Little' Idea Started By S. J. Rivoire And Son

A unique plan to enable individuals and families to acquire a complete sterling silver service for their homes, has been inaugurated by S. J. Rivoire and Son, jewelers, whose store is located at 322 DeSiard street.

Mr. Rivoire recently started the "Little by Little" plan, which enables those who join to set aside a small amount each month, ranging from one dollar to five dollars, and purchase a piece of silver at a time. The plan features the exclusive Towle patterns, manufactured by the Towle silversmiths, manufacturers of fine silverware since the year 1609.

"There are many people who long to possess a complete silver service but who think that they cannot have their wish gratified without spending a great deal of money," Mr. Rivoire stated in explaining his reason for establishing the "Little by Little" plan. "The plan which I have established will enable a family or an individual desirous of possessing a complete silver service to buy a piece at a time. Every month a single piece of fine Towle sterling silverware can be added to the collection for as little as one to five dollars a purchase. In a year or two, those who take advantage of the plan by adding to their silver service 'little by little,' will find that they have attained their desire and are the possessors of a complete silver service of the finest quality and pattern," Mr. Rivoire explained.

Those who use the "Little by Little" plan select a pattern and every month purchase a required piece of that pattern.

In order to encourage people to adopt the new plan, S. J. Rivoire and Son announce that specially low prices on silverware will be available for those who use the plan.

The jewelry firm of S. J. Rivoire and Son has been established in Monroe since 1891 and has built up an outstanding reputation of selling only the finest in jewelry.

DURRETT DISPLAY PROVIDES THRILL

Williamsburg Galleries Revive Charm Of Early American Setting

What is without doubt one of the most beautiful displays of colonial period furniture in this country, may be seen at any time on the third floor of the Durrett Hardware and Furniture company, 117 St. John street, where within the Williamsburg Galleries, reviving the spirit of the golden age of graciousness, may be seen reproductions of authentic colonial period furniture charmingly displayed as in a real home.

No person who loves beautiful things can afford to forego the pleasure of a visit to the Williamsburg Galleries at the Durrett Hardware and Furniture company, where courteous attendants are only too pleased to show the guests through the beautifully appointed rooms, there to experience a real thrill which beautiful surroundings cannot fail to produce in the hearts of real beauty lovers. The galleries are unique, and once seen, will not soon be forgotten.

Across the threshold of a facade inspired by the Raleigh tavern at Williamsburg, Va., the colonial village which was reconstructed by the Rockefellers at a cost of thirty million dollars—the visitor steps into the "golden age of graciousness," as he views the charming Wren room, a replica of the famous blue room in the Wren building at the college of William and Mary.

To the left is the Gloucester room where, among other beautiful pieces, is a sofa upholstered in antique gold Robert Saunders damask, and named for Governor Alexander Spotswood. The lustrous draperies are named Rebecca Burwell.

Next to be visited is the Berkeley dining room, the Raleigh dining room, the Alice Page room, the Dixon room and the Susanna Allen bedrooms; all beautifully appointed and with their own particular charm.

Small booklets attached to each piece of furniture in the Williamsburg Galleries gives the history of the piece and sheds much interesting light on the colonial period.

Mr. Durrett cordially invites all lovers of beautiful things to visit the Williamsburg Galleries and feast their eyes on the grace and charm of early America.

Louisiana with 170,216 farms ranks twenty-second but with only 3,990 electrified, ranks 46th in percentage electrified.

Oklahoma with 213,325 farms stands 13th in the farm list, but rates 43rd place on electrification. Arkansas with 253,013 farms is in ninth place in number but is 47th in electrification, with only 4,269 getting power.

Texas is at the very top of the heap with 501,017 farms, but rates only 42nd in percentage electrified, although there are 16,221 in the state getting service.

With required allotment of half the money on this basis, these states are bound to be well fixed in the electrification program. On top of this, the other half goes where REA decides it is needed most and where the projects are most likely to turn out satisfactorily.

Fast Progress Made

The work has moved rapidly in Oklahoma. The legal allotment for this fiscal year was $859,519 for the state. REA exceeded this with allotments totaling $856,481 in addition to $130,000 worth of projects started under old funds in its early days. There are nine projects in the state and Oklahoma will get no more loans for electrification until after the new fiscal year starts July 1. Then it will be in line for additional hundreds of thousands, although, of course, the amount has not been determined and will not be until new projects are in and approved.

Louisiana likewise has moved along well. Although only four projects have been approved, the required allotment of $676,386 has been exceeded by $443,614 and another to cost between $125,000 and $225,000 will probably be approved before July.

The Arkansas work has been slower, with only two getting loans. This totaled only $310,000 out of the legally required fund of $1,031,219 which was set aside. But the prospects are for an early and exceedingly bright future in this regard. Six new projects are on the way up and as soon as minor rate differences are ironed out, they will be approved. This will probably come about before July and will eat up the rest of the allotment in a hurry. Besides this there is talk of a "whopper" in the northern corner of the state to cost at least a million dollars and serve more than 5,000 homes.

Borrowers Necessary

Texas, like Oklahoma, will get no more loans this fiscal year since the state has already exceeded the $2,005,621 required allotments by $375,379. Besides this the state got $479,500 worth of power lines from old funds. As soon as the new fiscal year rolls around in July, there are eight Texas projects ready for an average of $200,000 each.

In financing this electrification work REA must have somebody to lend the money to—utility companies, municipal companies or cooperatives. Mostly it is the last, which are formed especially for this purpose of building power lines to farms. The government puts up the money and is paid back out of the revenues. In some cases generating plants are built for the job, but usually power is bought cheap from some plant already in operation. It usually sells at about five cents per kilowatt hour on the farm—but the rate also usually gets lower when the lines have been going a while.

It is the job of the group or company borrowing the money to hire electrical engineers, contractors, pay lawyers and do everything else that goes along with putting up extensive power lines. In other words, they are responsible for what is done with Uncle Sam's money on these projects.

MONROE WOMEN GO TO JACKSON MEET

Mrs. L. T. Hastings, Mrs. D. P. Gerald and Mrs. Myrtle Webb, all of Monroe, attended the Jackson Parish association, Baptist Women's Missionary union, at the Chatham Baptist church, Jonesboro, April 8.

Inspiring talks were made by all three visitors.

Mrs. Hastings' talk was on the theme "The Joys of Stewardship."

INDUSTRIAL AND BUSINESS REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITIES NORTH LOUISIANA'S COMMERCIAL CENTER

26 NEW TRUCK MODELS APPEAR

International Harvester Announces New Models With 77 Wheelbases

Of special interest to truck users is the announcement that International Harvester has an entirely new line of motor trucks ranging from light delivery units to the largest six-wheeler. These new models include conventional four-wheel units, six-wheelers with both dual drive and trailing axle and cab-over-engine types.

The complete International line consists of 26 models in 77 wheelbases, with gross vehicle weights ranging from 4,400 to 62,000 pounds. Powerful truck engines, numerous wheelbases, a variety of rear axle ratios, two-speed rear axles and multiple-speed transmissions, especially in the heavy duty models, permits accurate selection from every standpoint of the right truck for each specific hauling task.

These new Internationals provide universally standardized (S. A. E.) cab-to-rear-axle dimensions so vitally necessary to body interchangeability and they also permit mounting of standard length bodies of stock sizes. Front axles are set back, and this, together with the relocation of rear axles and cabs, contributes to greatly improved load distribution, not only of body and pay load, but of gross weight as well. Thus loads on front and rear tires are more uniform, relieving the usually overloaded rear tires by transferring a greater portion of the load to the front tires.

Wheelbases, in conjunction with correct cab-to-rear-axle dimensions, are available to accommodate all lengths of bodies, with the ideal conditions resulting from the use of bodies in even foot lengths. At the same time, bodies in odd foot lengths will permit satisfactory mounting and load distribution on either the next shorter or longer wheelbase.

Many improvements and new features of design and construction have been incorporated in the engines of the International models.

While greater power has been provided for each of the new models, there has been no sacrifice in the fuel economy, company officials say. Performance, climbing ability, pulling power and operating economy are decidedly improved, the officials add.

All International truck engines are designed and built for truck service. The types FB and FB valve-in-head engines which power the two-ton and larger Internationals have replaceable cylinders; counterbalanced, vibration-dampened crankshafts; full pressure lubrication, precision type, replaceable shell, main and connecting rod bearings; hardened exhaust valve seat inserts, downdraft carburetion, scientifically designed manifolds, oil bath air cleaners, air-cooled generators, and other outstanding features which provide maximum power, unexcelled performance, long life and economy.

SERVICE EXPERTS IN MEETING HERE

United Electric Service Holds Get-Together For Exchange Of Ideas

More than 100 automotive service men, including automobile dealers, service managers and mechanics from northeast Louisiana, met Monday night at the United Electric Service, Inc., located at 306 North Third street, for a general get-together meeting and an exchange of ideas in their respective lines, with a view to promoting greater efficiency in their shops and strengthening their relations with the local company.

H. L. Scott, service engineer with the United Motor Service, Inc., Detroit, Mich., was the principal speaker of the evening and explained the reasons why motorists patronize the present day service stations, outlining a formula for taking care of customers' needs more efficiently.

One of the points brought out by Mr. Scott in his address was that 95 per cent of motorists who ask for service work, complain that their cars are lacking in pep, give poor mileage, are hard at starting, have batteries which are run down and give poor service and are overheated.

Mr. Scott declared that a service station should be equipped with modern methods and test appliances so that car trouble can be readily detected. He pointed out that efficient testing equipment insures better service to the motorists and more business for the service station.

The use of vacuum gauges in conjunction with exhaust gas analysis was explained by Mr. Scott, as well as many new improvements of considerable value to the service trade.

G. F. Becker, general manager of United Electrice Service, Inc., in Monroe, was in charge of the meeting and acted as host to the visiting service men and dealers. He introduced G. C. Fowler, assistant manager of the New Orleans branch of United Motor Service, Inc., who spoke about the research made in the automotive service industry to find new methods for automotive merchandising.

Following the session which started at 8:30 p.m., and lasted until 11:30 p.m., refreshments were served to the visitors who attended from Monroe, Bastrop, Vicksburg, Tallulah, Ruston and Jonesboro.

BOOK ASSISTS HOME OWNERS

Sherwin-Williams Concludes Distribution Of Valuable Pamphlet

For the fourth consecutive year the Sherwin-Williams company, located at 109 Catalpa street, concluded the distribution last week of 5,000 copies of the "Home Decorator," a book designed to assist home owners in problems of painting, wallpapering and interior decorating.

The books were distributed free to 5,000 homes throughout Ouachita parish. Six young ladies were employed in the task of distributing the "Home Decorator," a task which occupied two weeks and took them to all parts of the parish.

"We found many families who were still in possession of the first three issues of the book," one of the girls distributing the gift book reported to J. F. Davis, manager of the Sherwin-Williams company. "We were very cordially received by the housewives, many of whom told us that the 'Home Decorator' had proven of great value in helping to solve many problems in their homes in connection with painting and interior decorating."

The "Home Decorator" is a carefully prepared book replete with beautiful engravings in color showing many attractive combinations of colors and decorating for the home. It contains valuable information about many things connected with the interior and exterior of the home and has saved home owners considerable money by assisting them in their interior decorating problems.

The Sherwin-Williams company here are distributors of S-W paints and Imperial wallpapers and recently concluded a special wallpaper show display at their headquarters, 109 Catalpa street.

NEW PLAN HELPS BUY SILVERWARE

'Little By Little' Idea Started By S. J. Rivoire And Son

A unique plan to enable individuals and families to acquire a complete sterling silver service for their homes, has been inaugurated by S. J. Rivoire and Son, jewelers, whose store is located at 322 DeSiard street.

Mr. Rivoire recently started the "Little by Little" plan, which enables those who join to set aside a small amount each month, ranging from one dollar to five dollars, and purchase a piece of silver at a time. The plan features the exclusive Towle patterns, manufactured by the Towle silversmiths, manufacturers of fine silverware since the year 1609.

"There are many people who long to possess a complete silver service but who think that they cannot have their wish gratified without spending a great deal of money," Mr. Rivoire stated in explaining his reason for establishing the "Little by Little" plan. "The plan which I have established will enable a family or an individual desirous of possessing a complete silver service to buy a piece at a time. Every month a single piece of fine Towle sterling silverware can be added to the collection for as little as one to five dollars a purchase. In a year or two, those who take advantage of the plan by adding to their silver service 'little by little,' will find that they have attained their desire and are the possessors of a complete silver service of the finest quality and pattern," Mr. Rivoire explained.

Those who use the "Little by Little" plan select a pattern and every month purchase a required piece of that pattern.

In order to encourage people to adopt the new plan, S. J. Rivoire and Son announce that specially low prices on silverware will be available for those who use the plan.

The jewelry firm of S. J. Rivoire and Son has been established in Monroe since 1891 and has built up an outstanding reputation of selling only the finest in jewelry.

DURRETT DISPLAY PROVIDES THRILL

Williamsburg Galleries Revive Charm Of Early American Setting

What is without doubt one of the most beautiful displays of colonial period furniture in this country, may be seen at any time on the third floor of the Durrett Hardware and Furniture company, 117 St. John street, where within the Williamsburg Galleries, reviving the spirit of the golden age of graciousness, may be seen reproductions of authentic colonial period furniture charmingly displayed as in a real home.

No person who loves beautiful things can afford to forego the pleasure of a visit to the Williamsburg Galleries at the Durrett Hardware and Furniture company, where courteous attendants are only too pleased to show the guests through the beautifully appointed rooms, there to experience a real thrill which beautiful surroundings cannot fail to produce in the hearts of real beauty lovers. The galleries are unique, and once seen, will not soon be forgotten.

Across the threshold of a facade inspired by the Raleigh tavern at Williamsburg, Va., the colonial village which was reconstructed by the Rockefellers at a cost of thirty million dollars—the visitor steps into the "golden age of graciousness," as he views the charming Wren room, a replica of the famous blue room in the Wren building at the college of William and Mary.

To the left is the Gloucester room where, among other beautiful pieces, is a sofa upholstered in antique gold Robert Saunders damask, and named for Governor Alexander Spotswood. The lustrous draperies are named Rebecca Burwell.

Next to be visited is the Berkeley dining room, the Raleigh dining room, the Alice Page room, the Dixon room and the Susanna Allen bedrooms; all beautifully appointed and with their own particular charm.

Small booklets attached to each piece of furniture in the Williamsburg Galleries gives the history of the piece and sheds much interesting light on the colonial period.

Mr. Durrett cordially invites all lovers of beautiful things to visit the Williamsburg Galleries and feast their eyes on the grace and charm of early America.

Nobody pretends that a broad geographical region surrounding any given community is equally cultivatable by each and every type of business concern in that community. Factors vary with types of business, some for competitive reasons, others on account of artificial conditions which often may be overcome.

In some places, wholesale and retail business emanating from the same community cover substantially the same territory, while elsewhere the so-called trading area of one may far exceed that of the other. Energy and individual capacity frequently account for extension of a firm's business territorial limits considerably beyond those of a competitor. By and large, however, the factual information which these pages undertake to present about Ouachita covers a trading area that is Monroe's "by right of service." Some local houses serve a much greater territory than is represented; others operate within much narrower confines.

Any territorial limits, such as those of a trading area established "by right of service," are essentially elastic. As such they are always subject to two-way modification. They can be restricted by a community becoming indifferent to its territory; or, they can be expanded. But more important than "expansion" of a trading area is the matter of extensive cultivation. This is both a common problem shared by all, and an individual one. The more successful concerns anywhere invariably are those with the keenest appreciation of this fact.

Buy it in Monroe from the local firms represented on this page. They are boosters of a greater Monroe and Ouachita parish and merit your patronage and support.

For further information, call or write to the Monroe Chamber of Commerce or the Monroe Morning World. Details on labor, costs, and possibilities will be furnished to all.

"Payroll Builders and Boosters"

Nobody pretends that a broad geographical region surrounding any given community is equally cultivatable by each and every type of business concern in that community. Factors vary with types of business, some for competitive reasons, others on account of artificial conditions which often may be overcome.

In some places, wholesale and retail business emanating from the same community cover substantially the same territory, while elsewhere the so-called trading area of one may far exceed that of the other. Energy and individual capacity frequently account for extension of a firm's business territorial limits considerably beyond those of a competitor. By and large, however, the factual information which these pages undertake to present about Ouachita covers a trading area that is Monroe's "by right of service." Some local houses serve a much greater territory than is represented; others operate within much narrower confines.

Any territorial limits, such as those of a trading area established "by right of service," are essentially elastic. As such they are always subject to two-way modification. They can be restricted by a community becoming indifferent to its territory; or, they can be expanded. But more important than "expansion" of a trading area is the matter of extensive cultivation. This is both a common problem shared by all, and an individual one. The more successful concerns anywhere invariably are those with the keenest appreciation of this fact.

Buy it in Monroe from the local firms represented on this page. They are boosters of a greater Monroe and Ouachita parish and merit your patronage and support.

For further information, call or write to the Monroe Chamber of Commerce or the Monroe Morning World. Details on labor, costs, and possibilities will be furnished to all.

'CLEAVER LINE'

cemetery on the south side of the park once owned by the Bourbons.

Garabitas hill, standing between the two, is the ultimate goal where defense strategists hope their columns, driving from opposite direction, will meet.

About 6 p.m., a squadron of 10 government planes soared over the battlefield in ebbing daylight but apparently found their targets in the dusk.

Watchers from vantage points within the city, just across the river to the east of the fiercest fighting, saw clouds of smoke curl up from trees on El Aguila hill, indicating where the explosives struck.

A few seconds later, huge clouds rose from the insurgents' positions in University City. The dust-laden clouds were so dense at first that fires seemed to have been started.

Rebel anti-aircraft quickly cut the sally short, however, thin wisps of smoke showing where tracer bullets sought range of the squadron. The air fleet hastily wheeled back in safety over the city.

Garabitas hill stood like a silent sentinel between the cemetery and El Aguila hill, with only an occasional shell landing on its wooded slopes. Its fall to the government would force the insurgents to evacuate the entire Casa de Campo—"Argonne" of Spain—and retire from the University City section, model education suburb in northwest Madrid.

Three thousand insurgent soldiers, apparently trapped in University City, clung grimly to their positions despite withering government fire.

They held the war-scarred buildings of the clinical hospital and adjacent structures in the suburb. Government soldiers rained shots across a nearby Manzanares river bridge, preventing the insurgents' escape or the arrival of reinforcements from the Casa de Campo section.

WOMAN

the latter notified all merchants in the city to be on the lookout for the woman.

Shortly after her arrest, Mrs. Clinton was said to have admitted passing forged checks at the Palace Department store, the Auto-Lec store and a local shoe store.

Records at the sheriff's department here show that she was arrested on September 27, 1935, in West Monroe, on a charge of driving an automobile while in an intoxicated condition.

The World's Latest Market News

COTTON

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, April 10.—(AP)—The cotton market today staged a quiet aftermath to yesterday's active dealings and in dull trading prices slipped off from 2 to 6 points.

Sharply colder weather in the cotton belt kept speculators away from the selling side. From nearly all areas reports came of a belated start for this year's crop.

At the end of the two hours of trading here May was 5 points lower at 13.83, July at 13.74, Dec. at 13.37, Jan. at 13.38 and March at 13.44 were all off 6 points on the day.

Reports that only 37,000 bales of loan cotton was sold last week, compared with more than 125,000 bales sold in the preceding week, was assumed to be an indication that the demand for this staple was drying up.

Trading was not active today and most of the business was of routine evening up operations for over the week-end. Most of the market support came from short covering by those who had sold cotton well above 14 cents.

Exports today were 4,306 bales.

New York

NEW YORK, April 10.—(AP)—Cotton moved irregularly in quiet trading today. There was little disposition to make fresh commitments over the week-end. July, which had rallied from 13.82 to 13.92, later eased to 13.80 and closed at that level with final prices showing net losses of 3 to 7 points.

Cotton futures closed steady, 3 to 7 lower.

CHICAGO: Wheat firm; commission house buying. Corn higher; small corn stocks. Cattle nominally steady. Hogs nominally steady.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, April 10.—(AP)—A few specialties managed to crawl forward in today's stock market but the list as a whole was unable to get any place in particular.

Although selling pressure was lacking in most instances, buying forces found little in the news to inspire a wide extension of commitments.

Many commission house customers early adjourned to neutral territory as it was recalled the supreme court may hand down the long-awaited Wagner labor relations decision Monday.

At the same time speculative contingents seemed to feel better as the result of the White House denial of an imminent shift in the government's fiscal program.

Closing trends were indefinite. Dealings were on the quiet side throughout. Transfers were around 550,000 shares.

Stocks found no especial stimulation in the movement of bonds although most of these did better along with major commodities, the French franc again tilted downward in terms of the dollar.

Up moderately the greater part of the session were Republic Steel, Acme Steel, Auburn, Oliver Farm, Pure Oil, Continental Oil, Texas corporation, Santa Fe, New York Central, International Paper and Power preferred, Industrial Rayon, Trans-America and Celanese.

In the background, a few as much as several points, were U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Briggs Manufacturing, Deere, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, Standard Oil of N. J., U. S. Rubber, Johns-Manville, K. C. Southern, Western Union, Southern Pacific, Illinois Central, Bethlehem Steel, Phelps Dodge, General Electric, American Can, Du Pont and Cerro De Pasco. Weakness was shown by Coca-Cola and Westinghouse.

Financial circles continued to cast about for concrete reasons for the general world unsettlement in stock, commodity and foreign currency quotations. Some voiced the thought there may have been underlying circumstances not generally known which promoted much of the selling this week.

Brokerage commentators were at odds on the question of whether the recent liquidation was brought on by an over-bought condition, especially in staples, or whether the nervous relapse was caused principally by rumors of a possible cut in the gold price as a means of stemming an incipient boom. It was argued that if the latter had been the case, a much sharper recovery would have followed the president's denial of any alteration of the government's monetary policy.

The better than average performance of farm implement stocks during the past several sessions was attributed partly to the belief farm purchasing power will expand this year and boost the net of machinery makers substantially. Possibility of a considerable Canadian business if tariffs are lowered was also thought to have been a factor.

It was noted that, with the earnings curve continuing upward, several of the oils, notably Continental, Consolidated, Texas corporation, Phillips Petroleum, Seaboard, Plymouth, Ohio and Skelly moved against the trend to new year highs this week.

Sugar

NEW YORK, April 10.—(AP)—Sugar futures were quiet today and following slight early losses in the No. 4 contract and further liquidation a steadier tone developed on renewed outside buying and covering.

The No. 3 contract held comparatively steady on covering and trade buying against sales in the outside market and reports opposition was developing to the new sugar bill at Washington. July No. 4 which rallied from 1.26 1-2 to 1.27 and Sept. from 1.29 1-2 to 1.31 were unchanged to 1 point net higher with the general list 1-2 lower to 1 higher on sales of 3,400 tons. July No. 3 sold from 2.50 to 2.51 and Sept. from 2.49 to 2.50 with final prices 1 to 2 points net higher. Sales were 4,250 tons.

The Princess Elizabeth

As destined for unbounded popularity as the Princess for whom this all mahogany group is named, it, too, is typically English. Artistically shaped front of the dressing table, slender graceful spiral turned posts of bed and cabinet pieces, rich inlays, hand carved ornamentation, luxurious mirrors, and selected antiqued hardware—all are in keeping with this authoritative design. Mahogany is mellowed by exquisitely soft hand-rubbed finishing.

The Coronation

This truly English dining-room suite of all mahogany is redolent of quiet regality. With its spiral turnings, fine proportions, delicately inlaid panels of Cuban mahogany swirl, and restrained hand carved ornamentation, it bespeaks the dignity and character its name inspires. The richness of the mahogany is accentuated and protected by the finest of finishes, hand-rubbed to impart a soft, mellow patina.

cemetery on the south side of the park once owned by the Bourbons.

Garabitas hill, standing between the two, is the ultimate goal where defense strategists hope their columns, driving from opposite direction, will meet.

About 6 p.m., a squadron of 10 government planes soared over the battlefield in ebbing daylight but apparently found their targets in the dusk.

Watchers from vantage points within the city, just across the river to the east of the fiercest fighting, saw clouds of smoke curl up from trees on El Aguila hill, indicating where the explosives struck.

A few seconds later, huge clouds rose from the insurgents' positions in University City. The dust-laden clouds were so dense at first that fires seemed to have been started.

Rebel anti-aircraft quickly cut the sally short, however, thin wisps of smoke showing where tracer bullets sought range of the squadron. The air fleet hastily wheeled back in safety over the city.

Garabitas hill stood like a silent sentinel between the cemetery and El Aguila hill, with only an occasional shell landing on its wooded slopes. Its fall to the government would force the insurgents to evacuate the entire Casa de Campo—"Argonne" of Spain—and retire from the University City section, model education suburb in northwest Madrid.

Three thousand insurgent soldiers, apparently trapped in University City, clung grimly to their positions despite withering government fire.

They held the war-scarred buildings of the clinical hospital and adjacent structures in the suburb. Government soldiers rained shots across a nearby Manzanares river bridge, preventing the insurgents' escape or the arrival of reinforcements from the Casa de Campo section.

COTTON

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, April 10.—(AP)—The cotton market today staged a quiet aftermath to yesterday's active dealings and in dull trading prices slipped off from 2 to 6 points.

Sharply colder weather in the cotton belt kept speculators away from the selling side. From nearly all areas reports came of a belated start for this year's crop.

At the end of the two hours of trading here May was 5 points lower at 13.83, July at 13.74, Dec. at 13.37, Jan. at 13.38 and March at 13.44 were all off 6 points on the day.

Reports that only 37,000 bales of loan cotton was sold last week, compared with more than 125,000 bales sold in the preceding week, was assumed to be an indication that the demand for this staple was drying up.

Trading was not active today and most of the business was of routine evening up operations for over the week-end. Most of the market support came from short covering by those who had sold cotton well above 14 cents.

Exports today were 4,306 bales.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, April 10.—(AP)—A few specialties managed to crawl forward in today's stock market but the list as a whole was unable to get any place in particular.

Although selling pressure was lacking in most instances, buying forces found little in the news to inspire a wide extension of commitments.

Many commission house customers early adjourned to neutral territory as it was recalled the supreme court may hand down the long-awaited Wagner labor relations decision Monday.

At the same time speculative contingents seemed to feel better as the result of the White House denial of an imminent shift in the government's fiscal program.

Closing trends were indefinite. Dealings were on the quiet side throughout. Transfers were around 550,000 shares.

Stocks found no especial stimulation in the movement of bonds although most of these did better along with major commodities, the French franc again tilted downward in terms of the dollar.

Up moderately the greater part of the session were Republic Steel, Acme Steel, Auburn, Oliver Farm, Pure Oil, Continental Oil, Texas corporation, Santa Fe, New York Central, International Paper and Power preferred, Industrial Rayon, Trans-America and Celanese.

In the background, a few as much as several points, were U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Briggs Manufacturing, Deere, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, Standard Oil of N. J., U. S. Rubber, Johns-Manville, K. C. Southern, Western Union, Southern Pacific, Illinois Central, Bethlehem Steel, Phelps Dodge, General Electric, American Can, Du Pont and Cerro De Pasco. Weakness was shown by Coca-Cola and Westinghouse.

Financial circles continued to cast about for concrete reasons for the general world unsettlement in stock, commodity and foreign currency quotations. Some voiced the thought there may have been underlying circumstances not generally known which promoted much of the selling this week.

Brokerage commentators were at odds on the question of whether the recent liquidation was brought on by an over-bought condition, especially in staples, or whether the nervous relapse was caused principally by rumors of a possible cut in the gold price as a means of stemming an incipient boom. It was argued that if the latter had been the case, a much sharper recovery would have followed the president's denial of any alteration of the government's monetary policy.

The better than average performance of farm implement stocks during the past several sessions was attributed partly to the belief farm purchasing power will expand this year and boost the net of machinery makers substantially. Possibility of a considerable Canadian business if tariffs are lowered was also thought to have been a factor.

It was noted that, with the earnings curve continuing upward, several of the oils, notably Continental, Consolidated, Texas corporation, Phillips Petroleum, Seaboard, Plymouth, Ohio and Skelly moved against the trend to new year highs this week.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 10.—(AP)—Official forecast of a bumper winter wheat crop in the United States this year depressed wheat prices only momentarily early today, and after an early dip the market rallied fractionally.

Opening, 1-8 higher to 5-8 lower, May 1.38 1-2 to 3-4, July 1.25 1-2, wheat then rose about a cent. Corn started 1-4 up to 1-2 off, May 1.29 3-4 to 1.30 July 1.20 3-8 to 1-2, and later advanced.

Wheat closed 5-8 to 1 3-8 cents higher compared with Friday's finish, May 1.39 3-4 to 7-8, July 1.26 5-8 to 3-4, and corn was 5-8 to 2 1-4 up, May 1.31 3-4 to 7-8, July 1.22 1-2 to 3-4. Oats gained 1-8 to 7-8, rye 1 1-2 to 2 5-8, and provisions lost 5 to 10 cents.

Sugar

NEW YORK, April 10.—(AP)—Sugar futures were quiet today and following slight early losses in the No. 4 contract and further liquidation a steadier tone developed on renewed outside buying and covering.

The No. 3 contract held comparatively steady on covering and trade buying against sales in the outside market and reports opposition was developing to the new sugar bill at Washington. July No. 4 which rallied from 1.26 1-2 to 1.27 and Sept. from 1.29 1-2 to 1.31 were unchanged to 1 point net higher with the general list 1-2 lower to 1 higher on sales of 3,400 tons. July No. 3 sold from 2.50 to 2.51 and Sept. from 2.49 to 2.50 with final prices 1 to 2 points net higher. Sales were 4,250 tons.

City Briefs

BALL MANAGERS TO MEET

Managers of all softball teams, sponsored by the Monroe recreation department, are asked to call at the offices of this group in the city hall, Monday before 5 p.m. This is necessary to work out a schedule, according to Mrs. Thelma Carson, director.

METHODISTS TO MEET

The Methodist Men's club will hold its April banquet at the First Methodist church, Monday at 6:45 p.m. Following the dinner, there will be a meeting of the board of stewards.

COUNCIL TO MEET

The Council of Social agencies will meet at the First Presbyterian church, Friday, April 16, for their noon luncheon. Business matters will be discussed.

FIRE ALARM ANSWERED

The Monroe fire department answered a call yesterday afternoon from Pargoud plantation when a one-story frame dwelling was reported on fire. Company No. 5 made the four mile run and arrived on the scene in time to save the property which was reported to be not badly damaged.

CORONATION GROUP

Feature Attraction for Berkey and Gay Week . . April 10 to 17

The Princess Elizabeth

As destined for unbounded popularity as the Princess for whom this all mahogany group is named, it, too, is typically English. Artistically shaped front of the dressing table, slender graceful spiral turned posts of bed and cabinet pieces, rich inlays, hand carved ornamentation, luxurious mirrors, and selected antiqued hardware—all are in keeping with this authoritative design. Mahogany is mellowed by exquisitely soft hand-rubbed finishing.

The Coronation

This truly English dining-room suite of all mahogany is redolent of quiet regality. With its spiral turnings, fine proportions, delicately inlaid panels of Cuban mahogany swirl, and restrained hand carved ornamentation, it bespeaks the dignity and character its name inspires. The richness of the mahogany is accentuated and protected by the finest of finishes, hand-rubbed to impart a soft, mellow patina.

served by all Methodist congregations. On the evening of Friday, April 23, the aldersgate dinner will be held at the country club and those present will be privileged to hear a radio broadcast featuring an address by one of our bishops over a nation-wide hook-up, and, in this way, join with 500,000 other American Methodists in this great observance. The proceeds from this dinner will be used by the board of missions for the liquidation of the indebtedness incurred because of the decreased giving during the depression. Necessity compelled the contracting of this debt when the financial structure collapsed in 1929, and until this debt is entirely liquidated there can be no restoration and no advance. Let us all join our bishops in this great crusade that Methodism may go forward.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

Auburn Avenue and North Second Street

Sunday services 11 a.m., Sunday school 9:30 a.m. Wednesday evening testimony meetings 8 o'clock. Reading room, 602 Ouachita National Bank building, open daily, except Sunday and holidays, 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The public is welcome to all services and the use of the reading room. "Are Sin, Disease and Death Real?" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, April 11, 1937. Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "And God saw everything that He had made, and, behold, it was very good." (Gen. 1) The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy. "Immortal mind makes its own record, but mortal mind, sleep, dreams, sin, disease, and death have no record in the first chapter of Genesis." (p. 505).

GORDON AVENUE METHODIST CHURCH

J. M. Alford, Pastor

All the regular services at the Gordon Avenue Methodist church will be held Sunday at the usual hours. Church school, 9:45, E. K. Reeves, general superintendent. The two Epworth leagues meet at 6:45. The pastor's theme at the morning hour (11:00 a.m.) will be: "The Soul's Longing for Freedom." Verses of suitable songs will be interspersed in the sermon. "God's X-Ray" will be the subject at the evening service. A business meeting of the missionary society was held Tuesday afternoon when Mrs. J. M. Alford gave a report of the state missionary society meeting at Homer, of which she was a delegate.

ASSEMBLY OF GOD

Cypress and Crosley Streets
West Monroe
E. L. Tanner, Pastor

The pastor will bring the message at both services Sunday, 11:00 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Communion will be observed at the close of the morning service. Sunday school meets at 9:45 a.m., D. O. McDaniel, superintendent. Christ Ambassador class meets at 6:30 p.m. Praise service and preaching Tuesday night. Choir practice and orchestra rehearsal Thursday night under the direction of Mr. Budge Bryant.

CHURCH OF CHRIST

South Second and Apple Streets
J. P. Lowery, Minister

Bible study, 10 a.m.; preaching 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.; communion morning and evening. Ladies' Bible class, Tuesday, 2:30 p.m. Prayer meeting, Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. Young people's meeting, Friday, 7:30 p.m. Your absence from church last Sunday made it harder for the preacher to preach. It weakened the effect of church services. It caused others to stay away. Read Heb. 10:24-31.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Grammont at Catalpa
Ernest Holloway, Pastor

"Religion includes the belief in God as the supreme Being; the belief in a divine moral order expressed in the Ten Commandments and in the life of Christ, and the acceptance of the church as the chief, even though imperfect, vehicle of religious truths that are greater than science, and values that are higher than reason." (Henry C. Link, Ph. D.)

The officials and teachers of the Sunday school will be installed at the morning worship. Shall we prove to these faithful workers our appreciation of their labors? This may be done by being present for the service dedicated to them. Jesus authorized a teaching ministry. To this authorization our thoughts will be turned.

The evening worship will be had at 7:45 o'clock. Jeremiah is our teacher. He has given us a theory of life, which is workable, helpful and reasonable. Read Jeremiah 18. Is his philosophy applicable to this age and generation?

A most cordial welcome awaits you at any and all worship periods.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH

Stone Avenue and South Third Street
I. L. Yeager, Pastor

Services of the day begin with Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. Morning service at 11 o'clock. At this service the Lord's supper will be taken. We observe this ordinance as a Christian ordinance and it is not rserved or confined merely to the members of this church. All Christians are invited to participate in the worship. Christian Endeavor at 6:45 p.m. Margurete Perkins will direct the meeting. Evening service at 7:45. Circle No. 1 to meet with Mrs. I. L. Yeager, Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. Circle No. 2 will meet with Mrs. C. W. Martin, Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Bible study Thursday evening at 7:30. The Lord is very gracious to us. He is blessing us with His presence. We invite the public to worship with us.

THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

George H. Dierlamm, Minister

"But God said unto him, thou fool." "Sweet are the uses of adversity," said melancholy Jacques. Adversity chastens and makes wise. We observe how prosperity makes foolish. It diverts attention from the main issues. Abundance of things often makes men and women selfish and gross. It contents them with low aims. And then, so often, just when they think they are entering into the enjoyment of things, they are snatched away. So their labors are made futile and their hopes are disappointed. Then it is seen that they were fools. It is easy to point this parable at the rich. But observe that Jesus spoke the parable in warning against covetousness. Those who envy the rich their enjoyments are also fools; and so are the ones who covet prosperity for the sake of such enjoyments. True wisdom points to higher aims. Life is not enriched by abundance of possessions. Services at Union at 11 a.m., at Mt. Nebo at 7 p.m.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Oak and St. John
Crayton S. Brooks, Pastor

Our Sunday school is increasing. Be there at 9:45. To double the attendance would not be enough. Every teacher present. Every teacher well prepared. Each pupil bring one. We are undoubtedly entering upon a revival. Do we need one? The morning sermon will answer that question. Does the American church need reviving? Come and hear the answer. Two young folks' meetings at 6:30 will interest you. Hear the sermon at 7:30 on "Mortgaging Your Future," and don't do it. A busy week follows. Real supper for board members, Sunday school teachers, officers and wives or husbands Monday evening at 7 o'clock. Rev. W. N. Armstrong, state secretary, will speak. Meeting for all the women of the church Tuesday at 2:30. Refreshments. All children under high school age will be given a party at 4 o'clock. Games, program, refreshments. Reception for all young people, high school age and over, at the church Wednesday evening at 7:30. Games, program, refreshments. Sure enough supper for all the men Friday evening at 7 o'clock. Music, fellowship and address by Rev. Theodore McElroy of Alexandria. It is "Enlistment Week." At least one big meeting for every one. Do not miss anything. A great "Roll Call Sunday" follows.

NAZARENE CHURCH

Thomas at Richmond Streets
G. M. and Ina Lee Akin, Pastors

Sunday school at 9:45 a.m., Mr. S. P. Quigley, superintendent. Rev. C. J. Frost, evangelist, will speak, and Professor L. C. Messer will sing. Preaching at 11 a.m. and 7:45 p.m. by the evangelist. Young peoples' meeting at 6:30 p.m., Mr. O. L. Hoskins, president. Each service will be featured by special singing, with Mr. Messer in charge.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE "GOOFUS" FLOWER—At six o'clock one morning not long ago, Deputy Sheriff Harry Hechler came out of his house and was astounded to behold a huge and pretty orange and chrome tinted flower a few yards from his front door. At 8 p. m. the night before, there was no flower there. Hechler cut it from the stem, which was like that of a toadstool, and took it to town for examination. The most plausible theory for the rapid growth of the plant—20 inches in width and 12 pounds in weight, overnight—is that it was a fungus growth springing out of the procambian strands of an oak tree root near which it was found.

CHURCHES

served by all Methodist congregations. On the evening of Friday, April 23, the aldersgate dinner will be held at the country club and those present will be privileged to hear a radio broadcast featuring an address by one of our bishops over a nation-wide hook-up, and, in this way, join with 800,000 other American Methodists in this great observance. The proceeds from this dinner will be used by the board of missions for the liquidation of the indebtedness incurred because of the decreased giving during the depression. Necessity compelled the contracting of this debt when the financial structure collapsed in 1929, and until this debt is entirely liquidated there can be no restoration and no advance. Let us all join our bishops in this great crusade that Methodism may go forward.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST
Auburn Avenue and North Second Street

Sunday services 11 a.m., Sunday school 9:30 a.m. Wednesday evening testimony meetings 8 o'clock. Reading room, 602 Ouachita National Bank building, open daily, except Sunday and holidays, 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The public is welcome to all services and the use of the reading room. "Are Sin, Disease and Death Real?" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, April 11, 1937. Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "And God saw everything that He had made, and, behold, it was very good." (Gen. 1) The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy. "Immortal mind makes its own record, but mortal mind, sleep, dreams, sin, disease, and death have no record in the first chapter of Genesis." (p. 505).

GORDON AVENUE METHODIST CHURCH
J. M. Alford, Pastor

All the regular services at the Gordon Avenue Methodist church will be held Sunday at the usual hours. Church school, 9:45, E. K. Reeves, general superintendent. The two Epworth leagues meet at 6:45. The pastor's theme at the morning hour (11:00 a.m.) will be: "The Soul's Longing for Freedom." Verses of suitable songs wil be interspersed in the sermon. "God's X-Ray" will be the subject at the evening service. A business meeting of the missionary society was held Tuesday afternoon when Mrs. J. M. Alford gave a report of the state missionary society meeting at Homer, of which she was a delegate.

ASSEMBLY OF GOD
Cypress and Crosley Streets
West Monroe
E. L. Tanner, Pastor

The pastor will bring the message at both services Sunday, 11:00 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Communion will be observed at the close of the morning service. Sunday school meets at 9:45 a.m., D. O. McDaniel, superintendent. Christ Ambassador class meets at 6:30 p.m. Praise service and preaching Tuesday night. Choir practice and orchestra rehearsal Thursday night under the direction of Mr. Budge Bryant.

CHURCH OF CHRIST
South Second and Apple Streets
J. P. Lowery, Minister

Bible study, 10 a.m.; preaching 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.; communion morning and evening. Ladies' Bible class, Tuesday, 2:30 p.m. Prayer meeting, Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. Young people's meeting, Friday, 7:30 p.m. Your absence from church last Sunday made it harder for the preacher to preach. It weakened the effect of church services. It caused others to stay away. Read Heb. 10:24-31.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Grammont at Catalpa
Ernest Holloway, Pastor

"Religion includes the belief in God as the supreme Being; the belief in a divine moral order expressed in the Ten Commandments and in the life of Christ, and the acceptance of the church as the chief, even though imperfect, vehicle of religious truths that are greater than science, and values that are higher than reason." (Henry C. Link, Ph. D.)

The officials and teachers of the Sunday school will be installed at the morning worship. Shall we prove to these faithful workers our appreciation of their labors? This may be done by being present for the service dedicated to them. Jesus authorized a teaching ministry. To this authorization our thoughts will be turned.

The evening worship will be had at 7:45 o'clock. Jeremiah is our teacher. He has given us a theory of life, which is workable, helpful and reasonable. Read Jeremiah 18. Is his philosophy applicable to this age and generation?

A most cordial welcome awaits you at any and all worship periods.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH
Stone Avenue and South Third Street
I. L. Yeager, Pastor

Services of the day begin with Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. Morning service at 11 o'clock. At this service the Lord's supper will be taken. We observe this ordinance as a Christian ordinance and it is not rserved or confined merely to the members of this church. All Christians are invited to participate in the worship. Christian Endeavor at 6:45 p.m. Margurete Perkins will direct the meeting. Evening service at 7:45. Circle No. 1 to meet with Mrs. I. L. Yeager, Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. Circle No. 2 will meet with Mrs. C. W. Martin, Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Bible study Thursday evening at 7:30. The Lord is very gracious to us. He is blessing us with His presence. We invite the public to worship with us.

THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
George H. Dierlamm, Minister

"But God said unto him, thou fool." "Sweet are the uses of adversity," said melancholy Jacques. Adversity chastens and makes wise. We observe how prosperity makes foolish. It diverts attention from the main issues. Abundance of things often makes men and women selfish and gross. It contents them with low aims. And then, so often, just when they think they are entering into the enjoyment of things, they are snatched away. So their labors are made futile and their hopes are disappointed. Then it is seen that they were fools. It is easy to point this parable at the rich. But observe that Jesus spoke the parable in warning against covetousness. Those who envy the rich their enjoyments are also fools; and so are the ones who covet prosperity for the sake of such enjoyments. True wisdom points to higher aims. Life is not enriched by abundance of possessions. Services at Union at 11 a.m., at Mt. Nebo at 7 p.m.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH
Crayton S. Brooks, Pastor

Our Sunday school is increasing. Be there at 9:45. To double the attendance would not be enough. Every teacher present. Every teacher well prepared. Each pupil bring one. We are undoubtedly entering upon a revival. Do we need one? The morning sermon will answer that question. Does the American church need reviving? Come and hear the answer. Two young folks' meetings at 6:30 will interest you. Hear the sermon at 7:30 on "Mortgaging Your Future," and don't do it. A busy week follows. Real supper for board members, Sunday school teachers, officers and wives or husbands Monday evening at 7 o'clock. Rev. W. N. Armstrong, state secretary, will speak. Meeting for all the women of the church Tuesday at 2:30. Refreshments. All children under high school age will be given a party at 4 o'clock. Games, program, refreshments. Reception for all young people, high school age and over, at the church Wednesday evening at 7:30. Games, program, refreshments. Sure enough supper for all the men Friday evening at 7 o'clock. EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE "GOOFUS" FLOWER—At six o'clock one morning not long ago, Deputy Sheriff Harry Hechler came out of his house and was astounded to behold a huge and pretty orange and chrome tinted flower a few yards from his front door. At 8 p. m. the night before, there was no flower there. Hechler cut it from the stem, which was like that of a toadstool, and took it to town for examination. The most plausible theory for the rapid growth of the plant—20 inches in width and 12 pounds in weight, overnight—is that it was a fungus growth springing out of the procambian strands of an oak tree root near which it was found.

SUPREME COURT STORY MOST POPULAR AMONG MEN OF LIBRARY GROUP

BATON ROUGE, La., April 10.—(Special)—"Nine Old Men," the story of the supreme court judges, by R. S. Allen and Drew Pearson, is the most popular current book among men readers of the Louisiana library commission, it was revealed today in a survey of the commission's circulation records made public by Miss Essae M. Culver, executive secretary of the commission.

"Man the Unknown," by Alexis Carrel; "Inside Europe," by John Gunther; "Personal History," by Vincent Sheean, and "American Doctor's Odyssey," by Victor Heiser are other books which have been popular among men readers.

"Gone With the Wind," Margaret Mitchell's best-selling novel of the south, ranked as a favorite book of fiction among men readers, according to reports from other libraries over the state sent to the commission. Fiction is not circulated from the library commission.

"How to Win Friends," by Dale Carnegie; "My 10 Years in a Quandary," by Robert Benchley; "The Hundred Years," by Philip Guedalla, and "Boswell's Journal of a Tour to the Hebrides with Dr. Johnson," were other books read by men.

Lakeside Country Club Scene Of Sparkling Events During The Past Week

Marriage Climax Of Society's Activities

Art Devotees Hear Address By Elizabeth Shortridge; Much Interest Shown In Bridge Tournament

By Eve Bradford

SPRING, like other young ladies, was powder-puffing her face when she carelessly tipped her make-up box, spilling powder all over the place. Fragments of white from spring's boudoir drifted into Lakeside Country club Saturday night where Melba Liner and Dr. Robert Gaston of New Orleans synchronized to the strains of Lohengrin down a white carpeted, candlelit, blossom fringed aisle. Intense vibrations of happiness electrified the guests who watched from the sidelines the wedding pageant moving down the aisle to the altar, dimly lighted and flower banked. Melba was a vision in clouds of tulle and typical wedding gown of satin.

A Niagara of voices rose above the organ when the ceremony was over—everyone seemed determined to be the first to congratulate the smiling bridegroom and to kiss the radiant bride. The backbone of society was there, surging back and forth from the improvised chapel to the dining room where a shimmering bride's table massed with white flowers and the huge spun sugar cake of custom was set in an alcove. Here a smart group foregathered, chatting about the newly wedded pair and especially about the beauty of the bride.

The bride and bridegroom, departing on the first lap of their long- long journey together, took the radiance of the evening with them. The candles were extinguished and the majority of guests found fresh pleasures awaiting them at the Lotus club where a dancing party was in progress.

Where there had been an enormous clatter, now was silence, except for the rapid flip-flap as decks of playing cards were shuffled. Women suffused in the smoke of many cigarettes, leaned tensely forward. Men clamped their teeth solidly around the butts of aging cigars. "Just a minute please!" called out Lily Harrington, game captain. "Nobody start to play yet. Wait for the word." The word was not long in coming, yet the silence grew heavy and nervous as the game got under way. The scene was the Lakeside Country club and the game—can't you guess?—contract bridge. As the playing in the International Bridge Olympic began, few players dared talk, for skill, finesse and scoring points in tournament bridge result only, it seems, from a mixture of silence, smoke and chewing gum. You don't dare forget a card—the trick will be remembered until the next tournament. Lily Harrington tells us that local prizes will be awarded this year in the form of one week's free lodging at a summer resort in Minnesota.

Elizabeth Shortridge, world traveler, art connoisseur and brilliant linguist, addressed a little group of art devotees at the Frances hotel the other evening. So enraptured was the audience with the speaker that two hours had flown ere they were aware of the passing of time. Mrs. Shortridge possesses that divine spark, a sort of sacred fire that flames high and quite electrifies her audiences. It is certainly a privilege to have such a gifted woman in our midst, even for so short a time.

Dolly Dawkins motored over to Natchez last week just to see her lovely cousin, Roane Adams, reign as queen of the court at the sixth annual Garden Pilgrimage. Beauty seems to be the birthright of Dolly's family—every feminine member of the family we have met possesses unusual loveliness.

The old southern custom of serenading 'neath our window is now sadly lacking from our shores. It remained for Blanche Oliver to inspire the negro choristers to revive this custom when they sang their negro spirituals in the radiant moonlight as a tribute to her various philanthropies concerning the colored people. The time was most propitious, as she had for her guest her cherished Aunt Bena, who celebrated her eighty-second birthday anniversary on this particular night. So thin is the gossamer veil separating today from the romantic yesterdays that Aunt Bena (as she is lovingly called by all who know her) needed only the plaintive voices and the twanging guitar to take her back to those happy days when knighthood was in flower. Many an ardent swain endeavored to impress the lady of his choice by means of the serenaders.

The Junior Charity league fashion revue will be launched this month with the same white heat of enthusiasm. So many of those lovely mannekins who came forth with queenly grace during the past, have married and gone elsewhere to live. There is always a fresh crop of young things waiting to do their bit for charity, however. Several of the most successful fashion revues sponsored by the league were in charge of Alma Summer Potts, who is now Mrs. Romain Peters. One of the loveliest models was Elizabeth Biedenharn, who is now Mrs. Haydn Cutler. Elizabeth Platt, now Mrs. John Dubuisson, is still another who added her beauty and grace to the revue. Mary Lee Milam was one of the most striking looking models ever to walk down the electric flooded aisle—we hope she will appear as a mannekin this year.

Miss Dubuc To Wed Richard G. Drown, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Emile Joseph Dubuc announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Olga Elizabeth Dubuc, to Mr. Richard G. Drown, Jr., son of Mr. Richard G. Drown and the late Mrs. Richard G. Drown, the wedding to take place in the late spring.

The announcement will be of interest to a wide circle of friends of the two families in New Orleans as well as in and around Monroe, where Miss Dubec has resided for the past year, and in Virginia, where she attended school.

Miss Dubuc is a graduate of Virginia Intermount college, Bristol, Va., and took post-graduate work at the Louisiana State university medical school. She is a former president of the Theta Delta Tau sorority and a member of the Eoline Literary society. She is engaged in laboratory work with the Ouachita parish public health unit at Monroe.

Mr. Drown is a graduate of Loyola university, where he was a member of the Alpha Delta Gamma fraternity and editor of the Maroon, student weekly.

The date of the wedding will be announced shortly.

A wedding commanding much interest throughout Arkansas and Louisiana is that of Mrs. Ida May Boykin of this city to Mr. Brady L. Coleman, of Vivian, La. The ceremony, of lovely simplicity, took place in Shreveport at the home of Rev. C. W. Culp on Saturday, April 3. Rev. Culp read the marriage sacrament in the presence of a few immediate friends and relatives.

The bride was beautifully attired in a navy blue triple sheer with white accessories. Her only attendant was Miss Lottie Farrar of Monroe, who was also dressed in navy blue with matching accessories. Mr. D. C. Karr, brother-in-law of the groom, acted as his attendant.

Mrs. Boykin is well known in Arkansas and Louisiana, having acted as district manager of the Modern Woodmen of America. Mr. Coleman is connected with the United Gas public service system, production department. The couple will make their home in Monroe.

Mrs. Carl Riggen, member of the West Monroe school faculty, is suffering a severe attack of mumps, to the regret of friends.

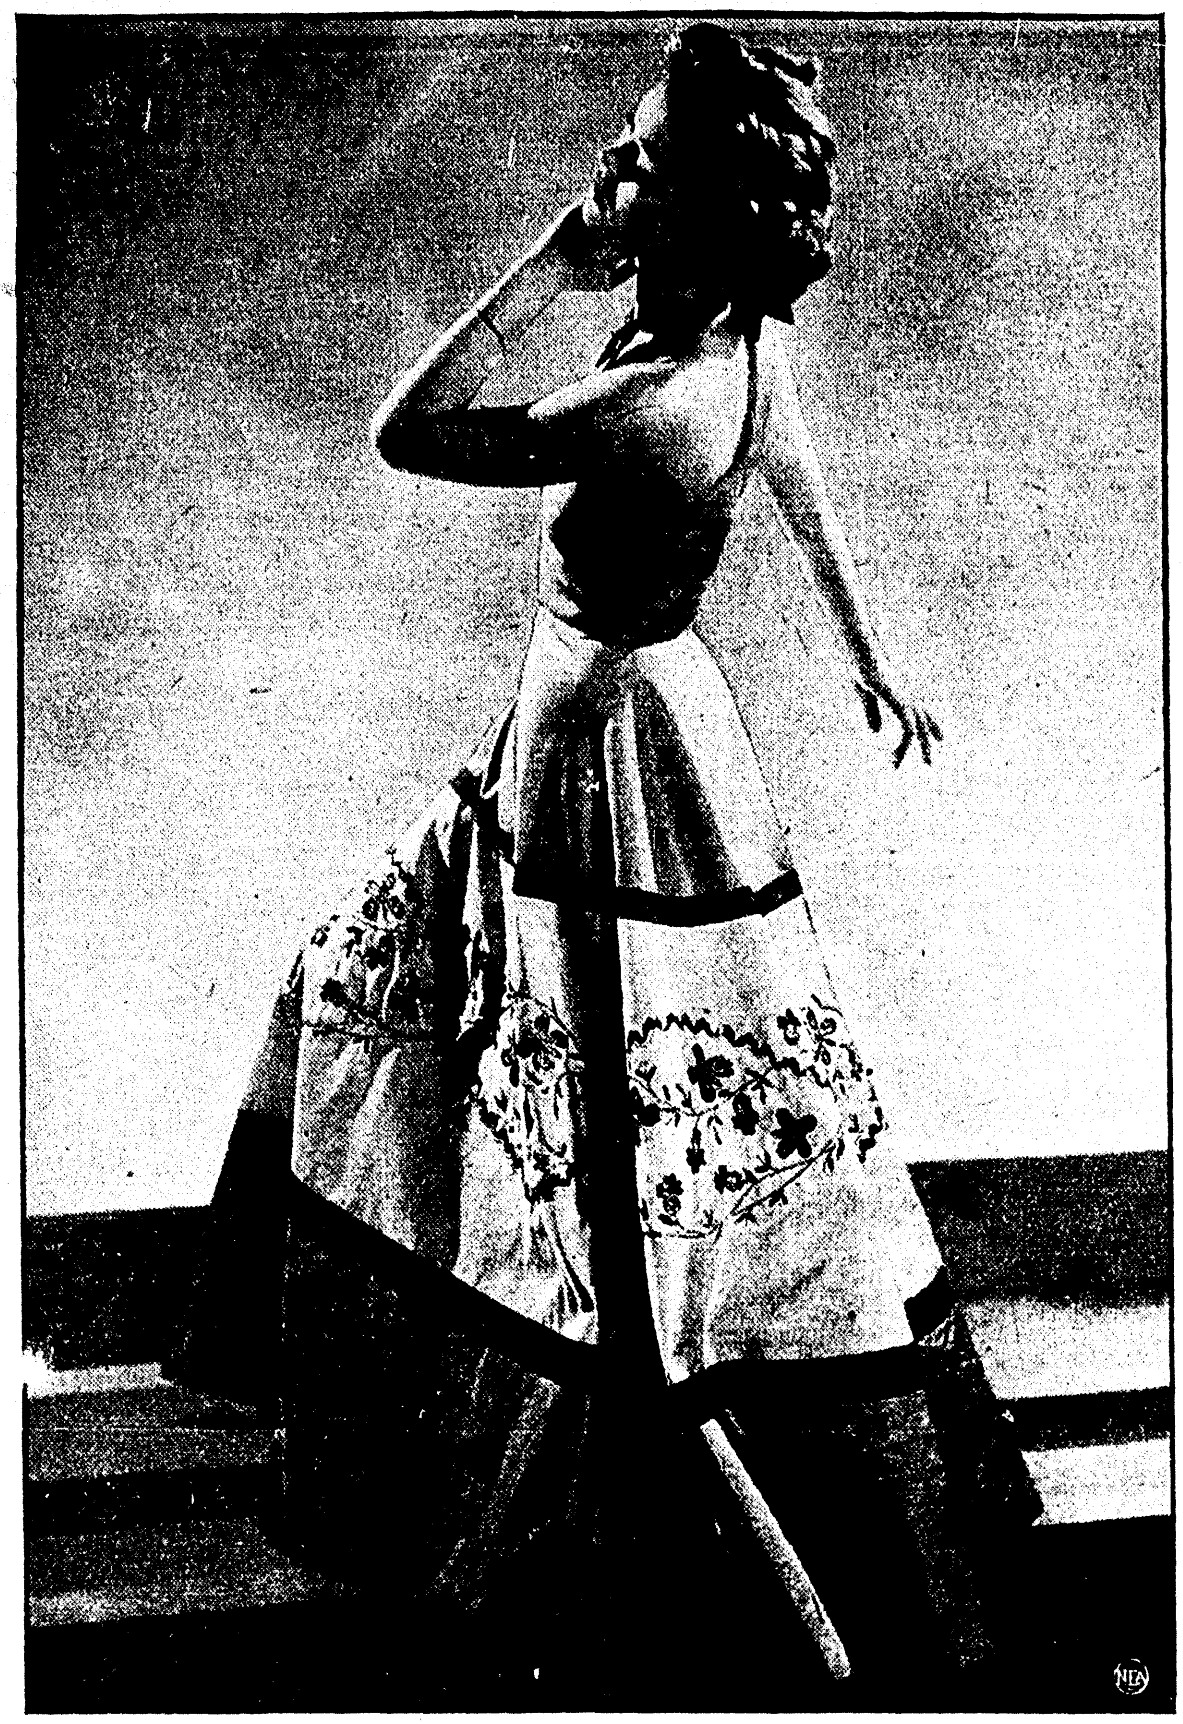
Evening Mode



The close-fitting bodice and free swinging skirt are typical of the romanticism of that group of Paris gowns which shuns the modern sheath silhouette. Created by Lucien Lelong of orange faille, cut by a band of white faille framed in purple, the gown is indeed dramatic. Embroidery in pailletes features all three colors in the materials.

Unit Hears Talks On Better Parent, Child

"The Better Parent, and the Child's Spiritual Welfare" was the topic chosen for discussion by the speakers at the April meeting of Barkdull Faulk Parent-Teacher association.

Mrs. Blanche Collins, speaking on "How the Child Becomes Religious, and His Religious Development," said in part: "Religious development has to do with the way of life; it is a matter of growth; children may think of religious things early in life. Parents watch their physical growth carefully but do not always take as much care of his spiritual life. As his knowledge grows, so does his spiritual experience grow, and he learns how God plans and how the right attitudes help his religious experience. In a home where parents work together for the child's spiritual life, he learns to have an abiding sense of the presence of God and that he is always near and ready to help him with his problems. This gives him a needed sense of security."

Billy Gannaway, a Barkdull Faulk student, spoke briefly on "The Moral Code of Youth." He said in part: "Modern youth is not so different as it used to be. Young people have always had their problems; their lives are only different today because we live in a more complex and ever-changing world. Years ago parents decided what was right and wrong for their children. Today youth makes its own decisions. There are so many cheap and trashy things practically forced on the youth of today, making it hard for them to live right. They have more leisure time. Also, unemployment contributes much to wrong thoughts and lives and makes youth wonder about the future. After all, the basic principles of right and wrong are still the same for modern youth as they were in times past."

Herbert Dickard gave a paper on "Safety in Our Public Schools." He said: "It is a fact, but a true one, that most of us never realize the individual responsibility that each of us should accept, for the absolute safety of our children, until some horrible catastrophe similar to the New London tragedy abruptly places the cold facts plainly before us, and only then does perhaps serious defects in the construction of our school buildings present themselves for our serious attention.

"There is only one solution to the problem—present buildings must be made safe not only from gas leakage but fire and explosion. They can be made explosion-proof immediately, if parents will demand it. No school or public building should have the gas pipes underneath, but on the outside, where in the outside air a leak would not do any damage. We may all give our support to Governor Leche in his state-wide inspection of our schools."

The school band played three selections, assisted by the drum major.

Mrs. Surghnor's room won the prize for most parents present.

Banquet Honors O. E. S. Officers

Mrs. Lovie V. Gregory, grand conductress of the grand chapter of Louisiana, and Mrs. Julia E. Battle, associate grand matron of the grand chapter of Louisiana, O. E. S., were honored with a banquet and special service in the banquet hall of the Masonic temple at 6:30 o'clock.

The beautiful flowers in artistic profusion graced the long, linen covered banquet tables, presided over by Mrs. Mamye Kersh, worthy matron of Louise McGuire chapter, No. 4. Honor guests were Mrs. Julia E. Battle of Shreveport, and Mrs. Lovie V. Gregory of this city.

During the banquet hour a charming program of music was rendered by Miss Eleanor Bennett, soloist, Miss Eileen McKinnon, violinist, and Mrs. Dallas Goss, accompanist. Miss Eloise Gill contributed several humorous readings to the delight of her audience.

Mrs. Lavera Swanson and Mrs. Birdie M. Mulhearn were chairmen of the banquet committee and program committee.

Chapter opened at 8 o'clock, initiation was held and the honor guests were invited to address the chapter. Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Goff, of Arcadia, past grand matron and past grand patron, were present on this occasion and gave interesting talks. Lovely gifts were presented to Mrs. Gregory and Mrs. Battle from the chapter. Mrs. Mulhearn, district deputy grand matron, was presented with a gift from the 10 chapters of district No. 4.

The executive committee of Barkdull Faulk Parent-Teacher association met April 2 for their regular business meeting. It was decided that the council would contribute two numbers to the program of the "amateur hour," sponsored by the Twin City council and held last Friday night. The art chairman, Mrs. B. W. Matthews, reported a goodly sum realized from the Art Exhibit of North American Children's Paintings, recently held at the school.

Trees And Flowers Play Important Part

Trees and flowers play a most important part in our lives, according to Mrs. George B. Simmons, who writes in Good Housekeeping as follows:

I believe that beauty does have a great market value in a garden or in a home. I know how I love trees—and I misuse that word "love" rhetorically with intent and on purpose because to say I like trees is never adequate—and I know how, were I able, I would pay more cash for a home surrounded by strong and beautiful trees. I can remember how when I saw ranch houses set solitary on the plains of some of our western states, the drabness of those houses never seemed so important as the bereavement of having no trees anywhere about.

And so, when we plant our garden of life, I wonder how many of us clearly see that beauty there has economic values also, along with deeper values in fine character. Long ago, did grandmother think of that when always she said, "You must be pretty?"

I remember a September day when I drove across the state of Indiana, and along the roadside saw wild Sweet Williams in such lavish gorgeousness as I had never known before, and how the sight of them stirred my memory of the time my grandmother led me out across the yard at the old home place to the garden gate. As we went through, there on the right was a great bed of the same hardy wild flowers, and she let me gather a whole armful of them! Had she carried the seeds with her from her native Indiana to Iowa, and thence to Missouri, in those old covered-wagon days? I wonder now how many times she must have rested her tired eyes with their beauty, and during how many years their blooming brightened days of dulling care.

To plan and plant, and then to tend and wait for growing, so that in due time there can be the garnering, the gathering in, and the ability to give to others—how all these can be applied to and amplified in our lives!

Breakfast Held For Wedding Personnel

Mrs. Thurmon And Mrs. Thompson Hostesses At Event Honoring Liner-Gaston Nuptial Group

Sparkling crystal, gleaming silver and a beautiful white Wedgwood breakfast service were used exclusively by Mrs. William Thurmon and Mrs. C. E. Thompson when they entertained the Liner-Gaston wedding personnel in the Cameo room of the Virginia hotel at 11 o'clock breakfast Saturday morning.

The guests upon arrival enjoyed a conversational interlude during which aperitifs were served. Miss Liner and Dr. Gaston were the central figures.

The circular breakfast table with its heavy white satin damask was developed in white and silver with a massive antique silver epergne with two immense silver bowls at either side, overflowing with superb white bride's roses and valley lilies forming the central decor. White roses attached to the silver edged place cards formed a floral chain encircling the table.

Following the serving of fruit supreme, several French dishes, first introduced at Antoine's in New Orleans, were served with eggs St. Denis, the piece de resistance. Creme de cocoa concluded the delectable three-course breakfast.

The hostesses presented the guests of honor with a handsome piece of silver in the Chantilly pattern.

The guests, including the hostesses and Miss Liner and Dr. Gaston, were Mr. and Mrs. James C. Liner, Sr., Mr. J. C. Liner, Jr., Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Gaston, Sr., of New Orleans, Dr. and Mrs. Nathan Gaston, Mrs. Briscoe Trousdale, Mr. and Mrs. William Bofinger, Jr., of New Orleans, Mr. and Mrs. Asher Whitley of Baton Rouge, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Grace of New Orleans, Mrs. Virginia Hammond of Memphis, Mr. and Mrs. William Thurmon, Mr. Harry Graham of New Orleans, Mrs. Milling Bernstein, Miss Lela Germany, Mr. P. A. Moore of New Orleans, Mr. Henry O'Connor of New Orleans.

Mrs. White Wins High Club Honor

Mrs. J. R. White, prominent club woman of this city, and officer for the Welcome Branch Book club, was informed by Mrs. Addison Thompson, publicity chairman for the Louisiana Federated clubs, that she had won second place in the contest sponsored by the New York Herald-Tribune.

Mrs. White, a conscientious worker, not only in literary circles but in church circles as well, has accomplished some noteworthy work during the past year.

Mrs. White, in submitting material to the local newspapers for publicity, observed all the rules and in doing so won the everlasting gratitude of the editors. The rules observed so faithfully in reporting club activities were also observed in the copy submitted to the Herald-Tribune and recognized as outstanding work.

Lakeside Country Club Scene Of Sparkling Events During The Past Week

Marriage Climax Of Society's Activities

Art Devotees Hear Address By Elizabeth Shortridge; Much Interest Shown In Bridge Tournament

By Eve Bradford

SPRING, like other young ladies, was powder-puffing her face when she carelessly tipped her make-up box, spilling powder all over the place. Fragments of white from spring's boudoir drifted into Lakeside Country club Saturday night where Melba Liner and Dr. Robert Gaston of New Orleans synchronized to the strains of Lohengrin down a white carpeted, candlelit, blossom fringed aisle. Intense vibrations of happiness electrified the guests who watched from the sidelines the wedding pageant moving down the aisle to the altar, dimly lighted and flower banked. Melba was a vision in clouds of tulle and typical wedding gown of satin.

A Niagara of voices rose above the organ when the ceremony was over—everyone seemed determined to be the first to congratulate the smiling bridegroom and to kiss the radiant bride. The backbone of society was there, surging back and forth from the improvised chapel to the dining room where a shimmering bride's table massed with white flowers and the huge spun sugar cake of custom was set in an alcove. Here a smart group foregathered, chatting about the newly wedded pair and especially about the beauty of the bride.

The bride and bridegroom, departing on the first lap of their long- long journey together, took the radiance of the evening with them. The candles were extinguished and the majority of guests found fresh pleasures awaiting them at the Lotus club where a dancing party was in progress.

Where there had been an enormous clatter, now was silence, except for the rapid flip-flap as decks of playing cards were shuffled. Women suffused in the smoke of many cigarettes, leaned tensely forward. Men clamped their teeth solidly around the butts of aging cigars. "Just a minute please!" called out Lily Harrington, game captain. "Nobody start to play yet. Wait for the word." The word was not long in coming, yet the silence grew heavy and nervous as the game got under way. The scene was the Lakeside Country club and the game—can't you guess?—contract bridge. As the playing in the International Bridge Olympic began, few players dared talk, for skill, finesse and scoring points in tournament bridge result only, it seems, from a mixture of silence, smoke and chewing gum. You don't dare forget a card—the trick will be remembered until the next tournament. Lily Harrington tells us that local prizes will be awarded this year in the form of one week's free lodging at a summer resort in Minnesota.

Elizabeth Shortridge, world traveler, art connoisseur and brilliant linguist, addressed a little group of art devotees at the Frances hotel the other evening. So enraptured was the audience with the speaker that two hours had flown ere they were aware of the passing of time. Mrs. Shortridge possesses that divine spark, a sort of sacred fire that flames high and quite electrifies her audiences. It is certainly a privilege to have such a gifted woman in our midst, even for so short a time.

Dolly Dawkins motored over to Natchez last week just to see her lovely cousin, Roane Adams, reign as queen of the court at the sixth annual Garden Pilgrimage. Beauty seems to be the birthright of Dolly's family—every feminine member of the family we have met possesses unusual loveliness.

The old southern custom of serenading 'neath our window is now sadly lacking from our shores. It remained for Blanche Oliver to inspire the negro choristers to revive this custom when they sang their negro spirituals in the radiant moonlight as a tribute to her various philanthropies concerning the colored people. The time was most propitious, as she had for her guest her cherished Aunt Bena, who celebrated her eighty-second birthday anniversary on this particular night. So thin is the gossamer veil separating today from the romantic yesterdays that Aunt Bena (as she is lovingly called by all who know her) needed only the plaintive voices and the twanging guitar to take her back to those happy days when knighthood was in flower. Many an ardent swain endeavored to impress the lady of his choice by means of the serenaders.

The Junior Charity league fashion revue will be launched this month with the same white heat of enthusiasm. So many of those lovely mannekins who came forth with queenly grace during the past, have married and gone elsewhere to live. There is always a fresh crop of young things waiting to do their bit for charity, however. Several of the most successful fashion revues sponsored by the league were in charge of Alma Summer Potts, who is now Mrs. Romain Peters. One of the loveliest models was Elizabeth Biedenharn, who is now Mrs. Haydn Cutler. Elizabeth Platt, now Mrs. John Dubuisson, is still another who added her beauty and grace to the revue. Mary Lee Milam was one of the most striking looking models ever to walk down the electric flooded aisle—we hope she will appear as a mannekin this year.

Miss Dubuc To Wed Richard G. Drown, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Emile Joseph Dubuc announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Olga Elizabeth Dubuc, to Mr. Richard G. Drown, Jr., son of Mr. Richard G. Drown and the late Mrs. Richard G. Drown, the wedding to take place in the late spring.

The announcement will be of interest to a wide circle of friends of the two families in New Orleans as well as in and around Monroe, where Miss Dubec has resided for the past year, and in Virginia, where she attended school.

Miss Dubuc is a graduate of Virginia Intermount college, Bristol, Va., and took post-graduate work at the Louisiana State university medical school. She is a former president of the Theta Delta Tau sorority and a member of the Eoline Literary society. She is engaged in laboratory work with the Ouachita parish public health unit at Monroe.

Mr. Drown is a graduate of Loyola university, where he was a member of the Alpha Delta Gamma fraternity and editor of the Maroon, student weekly.

The date of the wedding will be announced shortly.

A wedding commanding much interest throughout Arkansas and Louisiana is that of Mrs. Ida May Boykin of this city to Mr. Brady L. Coleman, of Vivian, La. The ceremony, of lovely simplicity, took place in Shreveport at the home of Rev. C. W. Culp on Saturday, April 3. Rev. Culp read the marriage sacrament in the presence of a few immediate friends and relatives.

The bride was beautifully attired in a navy blue triple sheer with white accessories. Her only attendant was Miss Lottie Farrar of Monroe, who was also dressed in navy blue with matching accessories. Mr. D. C. Karr, brother-in-law of the groom, acted as his attendant.

Mrs. Boykin is well known in Arkansas and Louisiana, having acted as district manager of the Modern Woodmen of America. Mr. Coleman is connected with the United Gas public service system, production department. The couple will make their home in Monroe.

Mrs. Carl Riggen, member of the West Monroe school faculty, is suffering a severe attack of mumps, to the regret of friends.

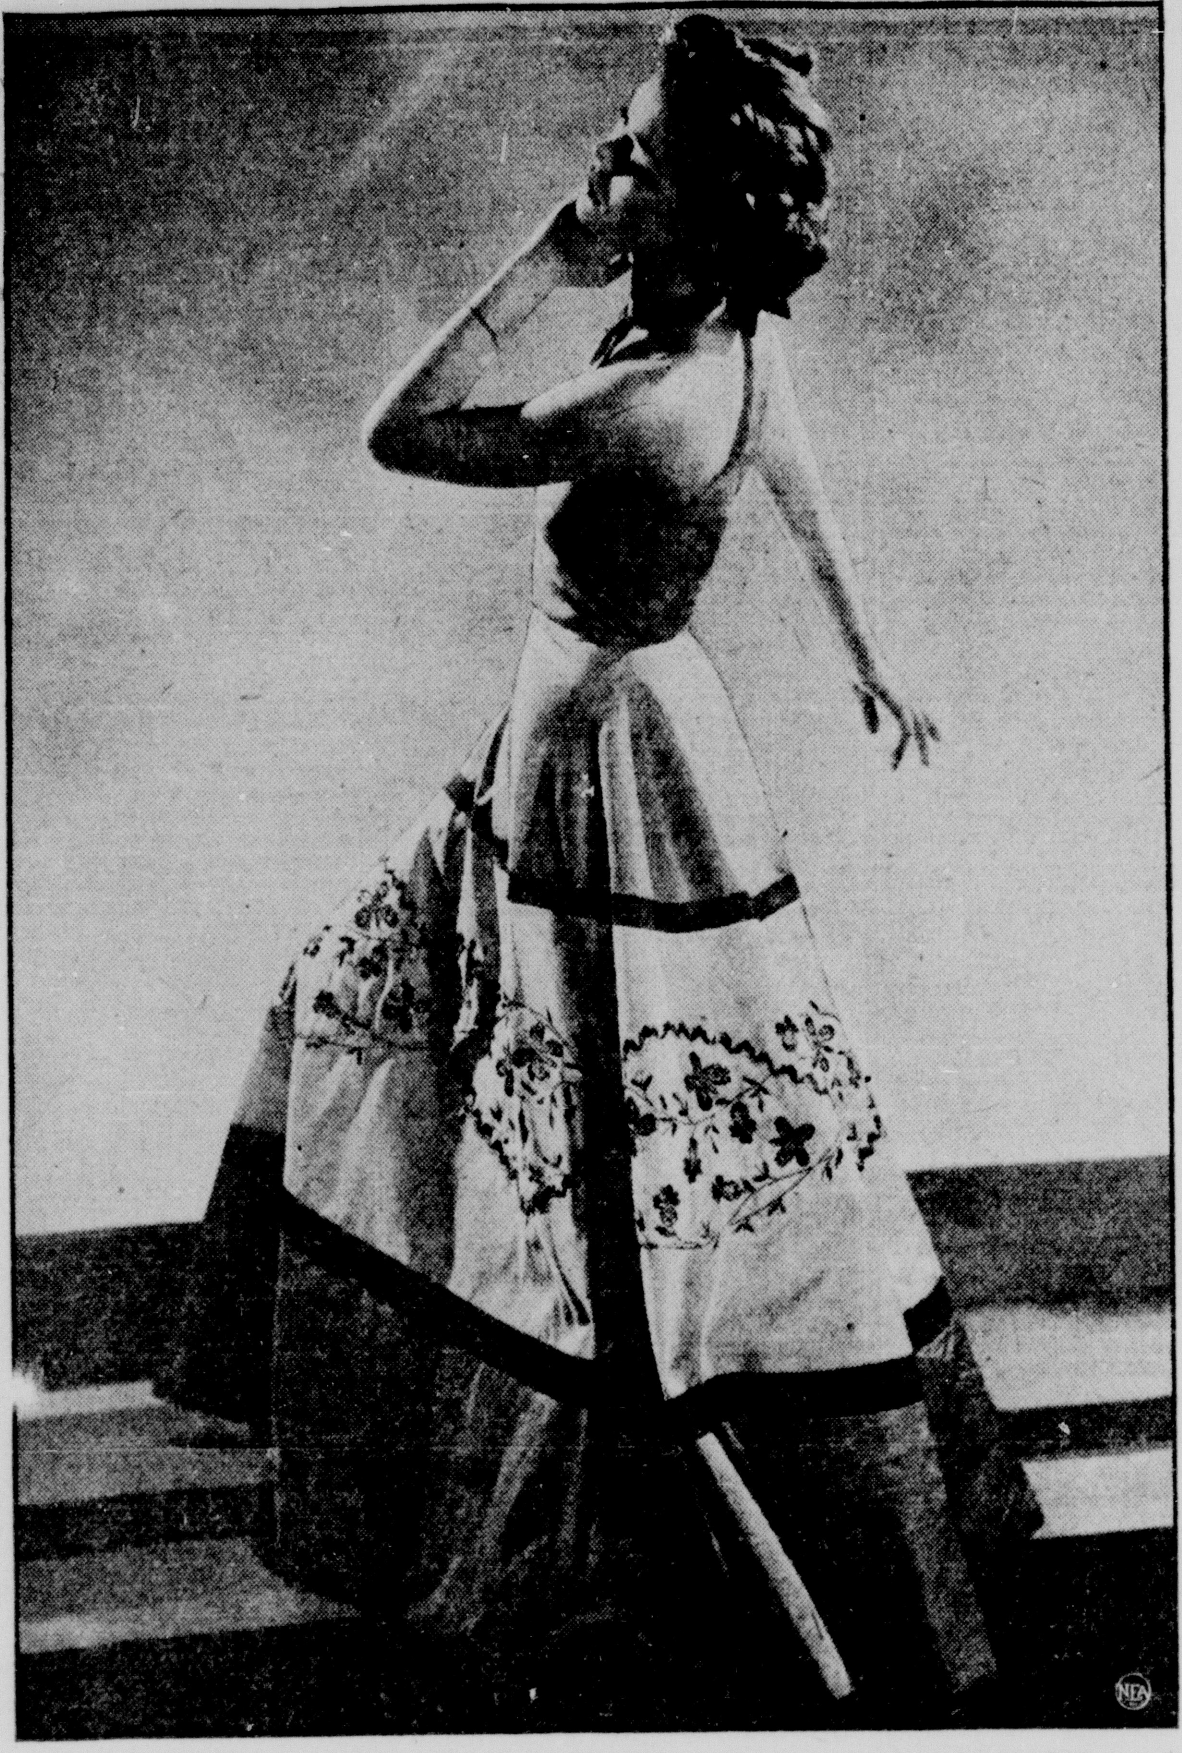
Evening Mode



The close-fitting bodice and free swinging skirt are typical of the romanticism of that group of Paris gowns which shuns the modern sheath silhouette. Created by Lucien Lelong of orange faille, cut by a band of white faille framed in purple, the gown is indeed dramatic. Embroidery in pailletes features all three colors in the materials.

Unit Hears Talks On Better Parent, Child

"The Better Parent, and the Child's Spiritual Welfare" was the topic chosen for discussion by the speakers at the April meeting of Barkdull Faulk Parent-Teacher association.

Mrs. Blanche Collins, speaking on "How the Child Becomes Religious, and His Religious Development," said in part: "Religious development has to do with the way of life; it is a matter of growth; children may think of religious things early in life. Parents watch their physical growth carefully but do not always take as much care of his spiritual life. As his knowledge grows, so does his spiritual experience grow, and he learns how God plans and how the right attitudes help his religious experience. In a home where parents work together for the child's spiritual life, he learns to have an abiding sense of the presence of God and that he is always near and ready to help him with his problems. This gives him a needed sense of security."

Billy Gannaway, a Barkdull Faulk student, spoke briefly on "The Moral Code of Youth." He said in part: "Modern youth is not so different as it used to be. Young people have always had their problems; their lives are only different today because we live in a more complex and ever-changing world. Years ago parents decided what was right and wrong for their children. Today youth makes its own decisions. There are so many cheap and trashy things practically forced on the youth of today, making it hard for them to live right. They have more leisure time. Also, unemployment contributes much to wrong thoughts and lives and makes youth wonder about the future. After all, the basic principles of right and wrong are still the same for modern youth as they were in times past."

Herbert Dickard gave a paper on "Safety in Our Public Schools." He said: "It is a fact, but a true one, that most of us never realize the individual responsibility that each of us should accept, for the absolute safety of our children, until some horrible catastrophe similar to the New London tragedy abruptly places the cold facts plainly before us, and only then does perhaps serious defects in the construction of our school buildings present themselves for our serious attention.

"There is only one solution to the problem—present buildings must be made safe not only from gas leakage but fire and explosion. They can be made explosion-proof immediately, if parents will demand it. No school or public building should have the gas pipes underneath, but on the outside, where in the outside air a leak would not do any damage. We may all give our support to Governor Leche in his state-wide inspection of our schools."

The school band played three selections, assisted by the drum major.

Mrs. Surghnor's room won the prize for most parents present.

Banquet Honors O. E. S. Officers

Mrs. Lovie V. Gregory, grand conductress of the grand chapter of Louisiana, and Mrs. Julia E. Battle, associate grand matron of the grand chapter of Louisiana, O. E. S., were honored with a banquet and special service in the banquet hall of the Masonic temple at 6:30 o'clock.

The beautiful flowers in artistic profusion graced the long, linen covered banquet tables, presided over by Mrs. Mamye Kersh, worthy matron of Louise McGuire chapter, No. 4., Honor guests were Mrs. Julia E. Battle of Shreveport, and Mrs. Lovie V. Gregory of this city.

During the banquet hour a charming program of music was rendered by Miss Eleanor Bennett, soloist, Miss Eileen McKinnon, violinist, and Mrs. Dallas Goss, accompanist. Miss Eloise Gill contributed several humorous readings to the delight of her audience.

Mrs. Lavera Swanson and Mrs. Birdie M. Mulhearn were chairmen of the banquet committee and program committee.

Chapter opened at 8 o'clock, initiation was held and the honor guests were invited to address the chapter. Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Goff, of Arcadia, past grand matron and past grand patron, were present on this occasion and gave interesting talks. Lovely gifts were presented to Mrs. Gregory and Mrs. Battle from the chapter. Mrs. Mulhearn, district deputy grand matron, was presented with a gift from the 10 chapters of district No. 4.

The executive committee of Barkdull Faulk Parent-Teacher association met April 2 for their regular business meeting. It was decided that the council would contribute two numbers to the program of the "amateur hour," sponsored by the Twin City council and held last Friday night. The art chairman, Mrs. B. W. Matthews, reported a goodly sum realized from the Art Exhibit of North American Children's Paintings, recently held at the school.

'Aunt Bena' Granary, Beloved Louisiana Woman, Celebrates 82nd Birthday

Life Of Aged Lady Full Of Interest

Vividly Recalls Adventurous Days Of War Between The States; Keeps Abreast Of Modern Times

To have lived four score and two years is an achievement in itself, but to have so lived through the vicissitudes that your name and deeds are indelibly etched on the hearts of those with whom you have been associated is a monumental accomplishment. Such is the record of "Aunt Bena," whose eighty-second birthday was fittingly and lovingly celebrated at the home of her nieces, Mrs. Harry Oliver and Mrs. C. D. Oakley, in Monroe on April 4.

"Aunt Bena," known formally as Miss Bena Granary, was born in Baton Rouge, and has spent most of her life there, but Monroe has been honored many times by her periodical visits and the occasion of the commemoration of her birthday is of city-wide interest.

The rather remarkable spirit which she manifested on the long trek to Monroe to blow out the 82 candles which had been meticulously placed on her birthday cake, runs like a theme song throughout her life. No understanding has been viewed by her as unsurmountable, and so last Saturday morning, Aunt Bena, with her three Baton Rouge nieces, Mrs. Edna Jolly, Misses Roslyn and Birdie Arbour, and her grandnephew, McVea Oliver, left the capital city by car for Monroe, and "I wasn't even tired," she remarked upon her arrival.

The saga of Aunt Bena's life makes for interesting biography. Born before the War Between the States, Lavinia Elizabeth Granary was destined for a life replete with adventure, thrills, disappointments and achievements. When a small child she helped her mother secret provisions and supplies under her voluminous skirts, exercising a bit of chicanery and sophistry to get through the Federal lines so that her beloved Confederate soldiers encamped nearby might have a bit of tasty food and much needed clothing. At the mere mention of the phrase, "the Yankees are coming," Aunt Bena and the little pickaninny slaves would hide in the cornfields nearby in utter terror of some real or fancied catastrophe. Perhaps her most poignant memory of the war, however, was when General Ben Butler, commonly known as "Beast Butler" on Louisiana shores, came to her home, and in addition to appropriating several cherished heirlooms, was so struck with the beauty of her older sister Julia, that he wanted to take her north to marry his brother. This was adventure plus for a little girl eight years old.

Trained in the gentle arts of the period, music and drawing, she has never lost her magic touch, and often goes to the piano and plays the Angel's Serenade and the Maiden's Prayer "with variations," with all the grace and charm of a concert pianist of today.

Then romance came into her life. Aunt Bena met a gallant youth of French descent, Charles Biberon, who also had a leaning for the arts. Charles wrote poetry too, which he charmingly illustrated, and Aunt Bena's treasured scrap book bears convincing and numerous testimonials of how talented the young man was. His life having been spared through the war young Biberon fell a victim to yellow fever, and his subsequent death robbed her of the culmination of this romance. To this day she has kept his memory green, and the faithfulness she has given him is indicative of that same spirit which so characterizes her life.

When Aunt Bena's nieces and nephews started coming along, it fell to her lot to supervise their upbringing from babyhood on. Here was no harsh disciplinarian—no stern monitor—no demon chaperone—and with her love and rare understanding of youth, she was then and there adopted as Aunt Bena by the younger generation.

With an outstanding geniality and an intellect that would command respect in any circle, she was destined to be revered and honored by many outstanding citizens of her community, or in present day parlance, was "tops" with them. Governor Fuqua was just plain "Henry" to Aunt Bena. In fact the family property on adjacent corners to the Granary home in Baton Rouge has remained the same throughout Aunt Bena's life. The Fuquas, the Blums, the Hubbs, the Gibbens and the Granarys form an indissoluble group.

And what of her views on present day civilization? Extremely modern in many respects, Aunt Bena still holds basiacally to the underlying principles of decorum and behavior of the mauve decade. A cigarette?—well, if one wishes, but it still evokes a blush or gives her a slight shock when one of the nieces indulges. Bobbed hair?—well, it is all right, too, but Aunt Bena's tresses have never had the feel of shears, and she somehow feels that long hair is more ladylike. But there is no desire on her part to go back to crinoline and old lace. She'll take the twentieth century on practically every deal.

And chief among the twentieth century contributions to get her approbation is the radio. She is an ardent and consistent fan, and now that her crocheting and reading activities have had to be temporarily curtailed because of a slight eye ailment, Aunt Bena is growing more and more into a real devotee of the radio. And is she posted on national matters? Just try her!

Her nieces and nephews are legion, for to young and old, anywhere and everywhere she goes, "just as if they were her own blood relations," as one friend expressed it, she is always Aunt Bena.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Turner announce the arrival of their first child, a daughter, at St. Francis sanitarium, April 8. She has been named Susan Margaret for her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Susan Turner Coenen, and her aunt, Mrs. Margaret Brand. Dr. and Mrs. Theodore Brand of Dayton, O., god-parents of Susan Margaret, will arrive in the city the first of the week to be present at her christening. Mrs. Turner will be remembered as Miss Mona May Walters.

Dr. Tiebout Speaks On Child Training

Dr. Carolyn Tiebout of the Louisiana State university appeared Thursday afternoon at the Central Grammar school for the sixth lecture in the series on "Understanding and Training the Child," sponsored by the Twin City P.-T. A. council. On this occasion Dr. Tiebout discussed the topics, "Discipline" and "Truthfulness."

"Each child is motivated both by the impulse to dominate and by the desire for social esteem and tendencies resulting from the former must be redirected into socially acceptable and useful conduct through the latter," the speaker said. "From the standpoint of the home, the process by which social controls become effective is looked upon as discipline, while from the child's standpoint it may be regarded as acquisition of self-control. Discipline is not only a matter of eliminating undesirable modes of behavior but of encouraging and developing desirable modes of behavior."

The home was described as a laboratory in which the child, under the guidance of the adult, experiments with life and learns that some types of action are desirable and some undesirable.

The methods of discipline were discussed in two groupings, those involving praise or reward for successful acts and those involving punishment, that is the attachment of displeasure or unpleasant feelings to undesirable acts. The speaker cited the results of experiments on learning which have shown that both reward and punishment increase in effectiveness the nearer they come in point of time to the commission of correct or incorrect acts.

These experiments also demonstrate that powerful punishments, those causing an unusual amount of pain or discomfort, are less effective than mild ones, she stated, since the former set up emotions which disrupt the entire learning process. Among the milder forms of punishment discussed were isolation, ignoring and withholding pleasures, particularly those of a minor nature on which too much emphasis has not already been placed within the family circle.

In discussing praise as a disciplinary measure, the speaker emphasized the fact that there is much danger of overdoing general praise, but that there is relatively little danger in praise which is generously distributed but attached quite specifically to elements of behavior to be encouraged.

In turning to the topic of "Truthfulness," Dr. Tiebout first discussed the necessity of training the child to distinguish between the "make-believe" and the real. "At the age of two or three years children relate stories woven from their imagination and since they cannot at this age distinguish these make-believe stories from reality, their flights of fancy should not be labeled lies. By the age of five or six the child should have achieved the ability to distinguish between real stories and made up ones," the speaker said.

"Parents often hold children up to standards of truth telling far beyond their stage of development," the speaker further pointed out. "The ability to give a simple, logical account of experience develops late and the child of five or six cannot be expected to give an accurate account of what went on in school, for example."

The lie of exaggeration and the lie which the child resorts to in order to escape punshment were described.

In closing Dr. Tiebout emphasized the importance of a truthful attitude on the part of the parents for the development of truthfulness in the child. "Truthfulness," she asserted, "is not inherited, but is learned through much experience and through imitation of parents."

Mrs. J. R. White told of the interesting things said and done in regard to publicity, by the state superintendent of publicity. Mrs. S. M. McReynolds gave interesting "highlights" of the conference. With reports from officers, the meeting closed with prayer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Mooney announce the marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth Mooney, to Mr. Ishmael Gauthier, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Gauthier of Sunshine, La.

The ceremony was performed at the residence of the pastor of Our Lady of the Lourdes Catholic church in Vidalia, with the Rev. Father Francis X. Kronemeyer performing the ceremony. The wedding was attended by a large gathering of friends.

Mrs. Gauthier is a graduate of Block High school and was a very popular member of the young social set of Jonesville. The groom is a graduate of Louisiana State university and at the present is engaged in the motion picture business in White Castle, La.

Following a short bridal tour Mr. and Mrs. Gauthier left for White Castle, where they will make their home.

Mrs. Innes Millar and son, Innes Millar, III, of New Orleans, are enjoying a visit in the home of Mrs. Millar's mother, Mrs. John Sanders. Mrs. Millar was formerly Miss Mary Sanders.

Book Club Meet Held

Mrs. J. R. White, assisted by Mrs. C. E. Woodham, entertained members of the Welcome branch of the Twentieth Century Book club Wednesday afternoon. A profusion of beautiful spring flowers was placed advantageously throughout the reception suite.

Mrs. Dean Selig gave a descriptive and interesting outline of Germany. She said in part:

"As far back as we have any record, Germans have inhabited the greater part of Germany, but their remote ancesters probably came from the grasslands of southern Russia. Roman and wandering German tribes fought one another in 113 B. C. The Roman historian, Tacitus (98 A. D.), described the Germans as a tough, barbarian people; tall, fair-skinned, and blue-eyed. They lived in rude villages in gloomy forests, wore garments of skins, and the men spent their time warring and hunting.

"The conversion of the Germans to Christianity was the work of Irish monks and then of the Englishman, St. Boniface, the 'Apostle of the Germans.' The Saxons of north Germany, however, remained heathen until the time of Charlemagne, when they were converted by the sword. But the latter part of the eighteenth century brought promise of better times. Frederick the Great increased his kingdom of Prussia at the expense of Austria and Poland. For many years Germany was the land of pedagogy, in which teachers flourished who gave impulse and enthusiasm to its educational arts, promulgated basic principals vital in the education of man, and paved the way for progress in other lands."

Mrs. S. A. Caldwell gave a colorful review of "The Germans" by Shuster. She stated "Germany is the working man's country. The great bulk of the adult population makes a living by hiring out to the state or to somebody else. Each worker is a specialist, no matter how humble the things he does may be, and he is a stickler for regulations. Practically all German laborers belong to a trade union.

"Germany is a multi-newspaper country in which news, as such, are not very salable items. You will find reports of what has occurred during the day summed up in a few colorless lines, or else you dig it out of editorial comments which imbed the object 'event' in a sauce of philosophy. Mr. Shuster states that one should read ten daily papers. The reason for this is that the German press generally reflects party or group points of view. Then by reading a number of papers one might achieve an intellectual puree as free of group bias as is humanly possible. But, of course, the average German reads only one paper, so the man whose paper has the largest circulation influences the most readers.

"German culture will ultimately decide what is to become of Germany. German philosophy is individualism's last stand. Germany is at present experimenting with philosophy as a creative method of getting down to business."

Several musical numbers added a distinctive note to the afternoon's program.

Members present were Mesdames J. Norman Coon, S. A. Caldwell, Henson Coon, H. H. Douglas, C. A. Dunaway, Harold DeLoney, J. T. Eubank, W. C. Faulk, V. S. Garnett, C. S. Gaushell, E. C. Gibson, Warren Gregory, M. R. Hatcher, Marvyn Johnson, John Laest, D. M. Moore, J. D. Petty, J. T. Richardson, Dean Selig, Dudley Stone, H. F. Felix, Charles Swain, L. V. Tarver, J. R. White, C. E. Woodham, John Whitfield, W. E. Sandel. Guests were Mrs. W. C. Scott, Mr. L. W. Kessler, Mrs. E. B. Thompson and Mrs. C. W. Oseland.

In Fashion Parade

You may not need a straw to show you which way the wind's blowing, but you will need one to be at the head of the spring fashion parade. And no matter whether you're fourteen or forty, a turban of natural straw will be becoming when you set out to go places before dark. Natural tuscan straw makes the little model that's held by a band at back. A stiff black veil and black picot-straw flowers relieve its geometrical simplicity.

Hobbs Auxiliary Conducts Meeting

The regular meeting of the ladies auxiliary to the Rodney J. Hobbs post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, was held Thursday night at the club rooms on DeSiard street with 20 members in attendance. President Lena M. Morrow presided.

The national home fund chairman, Aline B. Hunt, announced that ground was broken on April 1 for the playground and athletic field at the V. F. W. national home at Eaton Rapids, Mich. This will climax a campaign of several years by the Military Order of the Cootie, fun degree of the V. F. W., which has been the sponsor of this project which will be completely equipped at an estimated cost of $10,000 and will be known as the Cootie field. Auxiliaries are centering their attention now on the recreation building for the home, being sponsored by the ladies auxiliary and to be erected in the near future.

Mrs. Morrow, department legislative chairman, reported having received a legislative bulletin from national headquarters in which all auxiliary members are asked to write their congressmen urging them to vote for the passage of H. R. [illegible], which calls for pensions for all World war widows. An invitation was extended members of the Hobbs auxiliary to attend the regular meeting of the auxiliary to Christian-Phillips post at Rayville, Monday night, April 12. President Morrow urges all members to attend.

The next regular meeting of the Hobbs auxiliary will be held Thursday night, April 22, at which time the election of a trustee will take place. All members are asked to be present.

'Aunt Bena' Granary, Beloved Louisiana Woman, Celebrates 82nd Birthday

Life Of Aged Lady Full Of Interest

Vividly Recalls Adventurous Days Of War Between The States; Keeps Abreast Of Modern Times

To have lived four score and two years is an achievement in itself, but to have so lived through the vicissitudes that your name and deeds are indelibly etched on the hearts of those with whom you have been associated is a monumental accomplishment. Such is the record of "Aunt Bena," whose eighty-second birthday was fittingly and lovingly celebrated at the home of her nieces, Mrs. Harry Oliver and Mrs. C. D. Oakley, in Monroe on April 4.

"Aunt Bena," known formally as Miss Bena Granary, was born in Baton Rouge, and has spent most of her life there, but Monroe has been honored many times by her periodical visits and the occasion of the commemoration of her birthday is of city-wide interest.

The rather remarkable spirit which she manifested on the long trek to Monroe to blow out the 82 candles which had been meticulously placed on her birthday cake, runs like a theme song throughout her life. No understanding has been viewed by her as unsurmountable, and so last Saturday morning, Aunt Bena, with her three Baton Rouge nieces, Mrs. Edna Jolly, Misses Roslyn and Birdie Arbour, and her grandnephew, McVea Oliver, left the capital city by car for Monroe, and "I wasn't even tired," she remarked upon her arrival.

The saga of Aunt Bena's life makes for interesting biography. Born before the War Between the States, Lavinia Elizabeth Granary was destined for a life replete with adventure, thrills, disappointments and achievements. When a small child she helped her mother secret provisions and supplies under her voluminous skirts, exercising a bit of chicanery and sophistry to get through the Federal lines so that her beloved Confederate soldiers encamped nearby might have a bit of tasty food and much needed clothing. At the mere mention of the phrase, "the Yankees are coming," Aunt Bena and the little pickaninny slaves would hide in the cornfields nearby in utter terror of some real or fancied catastrophe. Perhaps her most poignant memory of the war, however, was when General Ben Butler, commonly known as "Beast Butler" on Louisiana shores, came to her home, and in addition to appropriating several cherished heirlooms, was so struck with the beauty of her older sister Julia, that he wanted to take her north to marry his brother. This was adventure plus for a little girl eight years old.

Trained in the gentle arts of the period, music and drawing, she has never lost her magic touch, and often goes to the piano and plays the Angel's Serenade and the Maiden's Prayer "with variations," with all the grace and charm of a concert pianist of today.

Then romance came into her life. Aunt Bena met a gallant youth of French descent, Charles Biberon, who also had a leaning for the arts. Charles wrote poetry too, which he charmingly illustrated, and Aunt Bena's treasured scrap book bears convincing and numerous testimonials of how talented the young man was. His life having been spared through the war young Biberon fell a victim to yellow fever, and his subsequent death robbed her of the culmination of this romance. To this day she has kept his memory green, and the faithfulness she has given him is indicative of that same spirit which so characterizes her life.

When Aunt Bena's nieces and nephews started coming along, it fell to her lot to supervise their upbringing from babyhood on. Here was no harsh disciplinarian--no stern monitor—no demon chaperone—and with her love and rare understanding of youth, she was then and there adopted as Aunt Bena by the younger generation.

With an outstanding geniality and an intellect that would command respect in any circle, she was destined to be revered and honored by many outstanding citizens of her community, or in present day parlance, was "tops" with them. Governor Fuqua was just plain "Henry" to Aunt Bena. In fact the family property on adjacent corners to the Granary home in Baton Rouge has remained the same throughout Aunt Bena's life. The Fuquas, the Blums, the Hubbs, the Gibbens and the Granarys form an indissoluble group.

And what of her views on present day civilization? Extremely modern in many respects, Aunt Bena still holds basiacally to the underlying principles of decorum and behavior of the mauve decade. A cigarette?—well, if one wishes, but it still evokes a blush or gives her a slight shock when one of the nieces indulges. Bobbed hair?—well, it is all right, too, but Aunt Bena's tresses have never had the feel of shears, and she somehow feels that long hair is more ladylike. Dr. Tiebout Speaks On Child Training

Dr. Carolyn Tiebout of the Louisiana State university appeared Thursday afternoon at the Central Grammar school for the sixth lecture in the series on "Understanding and Training the Child," sponsored by the Twin City P.-T. A. council. On this occasion Dr. Tiebout discussed the topics, "Discipline" and "Truthfulness."

"Each child is motivated both by the impulse to dominate and by the desire for social esteem and tendencies resulting from the former must be redirected into socially acceptable and useful conduct through the latter," the speaker said. "From the standpoint of the home, the process by which social controls become effective is looked upon as discipline, while from the child's standpoint it may be regarded as acquisition of self-control. Discipline is not only a matter of eliminating undesirable modes of behavior but of encouraging and developing desirable modes of behavior."

The home was described as a laboratory in which the child, under the guidance of the adult, experiments with life and learns that some types of action are desirable and some undesirable.

The methods of discipline were discussed in two groupings, those involving praise or reward for successful acts and those involving punishment, that is the attachment of displeasure or unpleasant feelings to undesirable acts. The speaker cited the results of experiments on learning which have shown that both reward and punishment increase in effectiveness the nearer they come in point of time to the commission of correct or incorrect acts.

These experiments also demonstrate that powerful punishments, those causing an unusual amount of pain or discomfort, are less effective than mild ones, she stated, since the former set up emotions which disrupt the entire learning process. Among the milder forms of punishment discussed were isolation, ignoring and withholding pleasures, particularly those of a minor nature on which too much emphasis has not already been placed within the family circle.

In discussing praise as a disciplinary measure, the speaker emphasized the fact that there is much danger of overdoing general praise, but that there is relatively little danger in praise which is generously distributed but attached quite specifically to elements of behavior to be encouraged.

In turning to the topic of "Truthfulness," Dr. Tiebout first discussed the necessity of training the child to distinguish between the "make-believe" and the real. "At the age of two or three years children relate stories woven from their imagination and since they cannot at this age distinguish these make-believe stories from reality, their flights of fancy should not be labeled lies. By the age of five or six the child should have achieved the ability to distinguish between real stories and made up ones," the speaker said.

"Parents often hold children up to standards of truth telling far beyond their stage of development," the speaker further pointed out. "The ability to give a simple, logical account of experience develops late and the child of five or six cannot be expected to give an accurate account of what went on in school, for example."

The lie of exaggeration and the lie which the child resorts to in order to escape punshment were described.

In closing Dr. Tiebout emphasized the importance of a truthful attitude on the part of the parents for the development of truthfulness in the child. "Truthfulness," she asserted, "is not inherited, but is learned through much experience and through imitation of parents."

This will climax a campaign of several years by the Military Order of the Cootie, fun degree of the V. F. W., which has been the sponsor of this project, which will be completely equipped at an estimated cost of $10,000 and will be known as Cootie field. Auxiliaries are centering their attention now on the recreation building for the home, being sponsored by the ladies auxiliary and to be erected in the near future.

Mrs. Morrow, department legislative chairman, reported having received a legislative bulletin from national headquarters, in which all auxiliary members are asked to write their congressmen urging them to vote for the passage of H. R. 2005, which calls for pensions for all World war widows. An invitation was extended members of the Hobbs auxiliary to attend the regular meeting of the auxiliary to Christian-Phillips post at Rayville, Monday night, April 12. President Morrow urges all members to attend.

The next regular meeting of the Hobbs auxiliary will be held Thursday night, April 22, at which time the election of a trustee will take place. All members are asked to be present.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Myrtle Fairbanks to Mr. Richard S. Wilds, both of Wildsville, La.

The marriage was solemnized at the residence of the pastor of Our Lady of the Lourdes Catholic church in Vidalia, with the Rev. Father Francis X. Kronemeyer officiating in the presence of close friends.

The bride is a graduate of the Ferriday High school. The groom received his education at the Cathedral High school in Natchez, Miss., and attended Jefferson college at Convent, La.

Following a honeymoon in Texas, Mr. and Mrs. Wilds will be at home in Wildsville.

Younger Set Enjoys Two Dances At Lakeside Country Club During Past Week

Gay Noe Entertains For Delta Kappa Pi

Members Of Phi Omega Sigma, Neville High School Sorority, Stage Interesting Event

Springtime is playtime for youth. A joyous life is romping in their blood and finds expression in the dance. Like the children who followed the Pied Piper of Hamlin out of the city, members of the younger set followed the strains of music to Lakeside country club last week where two events claimed major interest.

Miss Gay Noe's entertainment of the Delta Kappa Pi sorority members, pledges and their friends, was the initial springtime event for the younger set at Lakeside.

The feminine guests, dancing in their summery frocks, assumed full responsibility for the success of the evening, as it was a backward dance. Members and their "dates" present were:

Gay Noe and James Moore, Mary Eleanor Coverdale and Leorge LeBlanc, Jean Terzia and James Folsom, Doll Hudson and Sackman Marx, Gloria Major and Thomas Wyatt, "Chicken" Inabnet and Sonny Johnson, Dottie White and A. G. McHenry, Jr., Jean Graves and Rhodes Savell, Nell de Lee and B. B. The younger set danced again at Lakeside Country club when Phi Omega Sigma, Neville High school sorority, entertained members and guests. A typical springtime setting was achieved by a variety of flowers in colorful masses placed in the background. The picturesque fireplace was flanked by immense baskets overflowing with yellow jasmine and wood ferns, sustaining the sorority colors, yellow and green. Great branches of dogwood festooning the orchestral balcony and outlining the ball room, created additional beauty.

Iced fruit punch was served throughout the evening by Miss Dorothy Carter and Miss Roberta Stewart. The chaperones were: Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gottlieb, Mrs. Charles Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Ballard, Mrs. Jessie Royce and the sorority mother, Mrs. H. C. Mize.

Largest Assembly In History Of Organization Expected At Convention To Be Held At Shreveport

The largest assembly of Parent-Teacher association members in the history of the state organization is expected to assemble at Shreveport for the fourteenth annual convention of the Louisiana Parent-Teacher association next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The theme of the convention, "Onward Education," will be developed through sessions of the three days with addresses, discussions and conferences.

Mrs. Howard L. Brown, fourth district P.-T. A. director, is general chairman of the convention. She has as her assistant, Mrs. W. Youngblood, president of the Shreveport P.-T. A. council.

Mrs. Albert L. Smith of Winnfield, president of the state organization, and other members of the state board of directors, form the convention program committee. Mrs. Lawrence A. Mailhes of Shreveport is chairman of this committee.

Among the speakers of the convention will be Pat Neff, former governor of Texas, and now president of Baylor university, Waco, Tex.; Mrs. Noyes Darling, third vice-president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers; and Mrs. Scott Wood, past president of the Arkansas Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The convention banquet will be held Friday night. At the close of the banquet the Shreveport Choral club will present "Carmen" before the assembly.

Members of the Twin Cities P.-T. A. council who will take part in panel discussions at the convention are Miss Myrtle Rodgers, state chairman of motion pictures, and Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, state chairman of correspondence courses.

Winnsboro P.-T. A. Elects Officers

WINNSBORO, La., April 10.—(Special)—A safety program and election of officers featured the monthly meeting of the Winnsboro P.-T. A. on Monday, April 5, in the Winnsboro High school auditorium. The attendance at this meeting was one of the largest of the entire year.

The high school band gave the two opening numbers on the program, followed by the reading of the essay, "Training for Safety," by Routhe Merle Brackett, who won the local prize and also the fifth district prize in the P.-T. A. safety contest. Helen Word gave a reading entitled: "Ma and the Auto." The high school glee club rendered two selections and Mr. James DeMoss gave a talk on "Safety Attitudes."

During the business session new officers were elected for terms of two years, as follows: Mrs. C. C. McCarty, president; Mrs. V. J. Funderburk, vice-president; Mrs. C. L. Lang, secretary; Mrs. Ed Randall, treasurer; Mrs. W. B. Glover, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. C. C. McCarty and Mrs. A. L. Price were elected delegates to the state convention which meets in Shreveport April 15-16-17.

Betty Ruth Ward, representing the 5-A grade, presented Mrs. Price, the retiring president, with a purse. Mrs. V. J. Funderburk, on behalf of the entire membership, presented Mrs. Price with a past president's pin. Mrs. Price expressed her appreciation for the gifts and voiced her thanks to the faculty and entire membership for their loyal cooperation and support during her term of office.

Dr. Tiebout's lecture was announced for Monday, April 19, at 2 p.m.

Veasey Home Scene Of Enjoyable Party

Mrs. W. J. Veasey's attractive apartment at the Layton place, banked with colorful spring flowers, was the setting for members of the Parker Memorial Sunday school class who enjoyed a social evening as the guests of Mrs. Veasey, Mrs. D. W. Caldwell, Mrs. J. R. Pumphrey, Mrs. W. K. Savelle, Mrs. Horace Fluker, Mrs. K. D. Golson, Miss Ladelle Duke and Miss Bertha Pierce.

A feature of the evening was the talk delivered by Mrs. Addie Holloway, who recently arrived home from the Houma missionary school.

Interesting games, introduced by the hostesses, offered amusement during the evening and were enjoyed to the fullest by the fifty-one members present.

Delicious refreshments, assorted canapes, sweet confections, fruit salad, and Russian tea, were served buffet fashion from a beautifully appointed table.

The names of the following persons were drawn to serve as hostesses for the next party, which will be the first Wednesday in May: Mrs. D. H. Marshall, Mrs. C. C. Rainwater, Mrs. Addie Holloway, Mrs. McKenzie, Mrs. R. W. Hair, Mrs. D. H. Jackson, Mrs. Zell Smith and Mrs. A. W. Wilkins.

Mrs. A. L. Harrington, local captain of the National Bridge Olympic played at Lakeside Country club last week, reports that the Vacation Land Bridge league is offering free vacations to the winners of each individual Olympic game.

The following information just received by Mrs. Harrington, will be of interest to those who participated in last week's tournament:

Winning the greatest number of pars will entitle the successful pair to free accommodations for the week beginning May 14 at one of the resorts in the beautiful lake region of Minnesota.

In addition to the regular hunting, boating and fishing there will be a bridge tournament that week—pairs, teams-of-four, etc., in duplicate, and progressive for those who prefer that type of tournament.

About April 15 the winners will receive from the Vacation Land Bridge league (Hackensack, Minn.) a list of available accommodations. For the most part these will be rustic lodges but there will be some more urban accommodations for those who prefer them. Some accommodations will include meals, others merely the lodges, cooking facilities and boats.

Review Club Meets At Colbert Home

The Review club met Monday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Henry Colbert, with the president, Mrs. Ben Breard, presiding.

At the request of the president, Mrs. E. R. Strahan and Mrs. C. V. McGimsey, delegates to the district federation meeting, rendered interesting reports on work accomplished. Mrs. Chester Nenney, treasurer, reported on the finances of the organization.

After the disposal of business, Mrs. McGimsey presented a current event with the life of Walter Winchell as her topic. Mrs. T. C. Rowland, who served as chairman of the afternoon's program, which was devoted to "The Bronte Sisters in Drama and Fiction," reviewed "Moor Born," a powerful one-act play based on an episode in the life of three of the Bronte sisters.

"This is the first of plays about the tragic Bronte sisters to be presented in America," said Mrs. Rowland. "The theme of 'Moor Born' by Dan Fotheroh is one of ironical sacrifice made by three of the sisters for their dissolute brother Branwell, who shares none of their native genius."

Life in the bleak parsonage at Haworth, the home of the Brontes, is recreated in Elsie Thornton Cook's biographical novel, "They Lived," Mrs. A. R. Holloway said in a review of the book.

"This is a novel of tragic note depicting a home ruled by the stern hand of a curate whose tyrannical, puritanical ways brought gloom and desolation to the five Bronte girls, all of whom possessed great ability as writers," Mrs. Holloway continued.

Members who attended the meeting were Mesdames Henry Colbert, C. B. Braun, Ben Breard, E. P. Cudd, Fred Fudickar, Allen Givens, Roy Hale, A. R. Holloway, B. W. Leigh, Reese Major, Sr., C. V. McGimsey, Chester Nenney, T. C. Rowland, Walter Rhodes, E. R. Strahan, V. H. Spinks, Crawford Young, DeWitt Henry.

Miss Bristow Gives Interesting Lecture

Miss Gwen Bristow, whose novel on Louisiana, "Deep Summer," was released on March 30, was guest speaker of the L. S. U. book circle for the tenth and final lecture in the circle's current series at the Lotus club last week.

Miss Bristow is well known throughout the state for her work on the Times-Picayune, where she was the star woman reporter for eight years, and she and her husband, Bruce McManning, have collaborated to write four successful mystery novels, one of which was dramatized into a successful Broadway play, "The Ninth Guest." Her novel of Louisiana is one in a trilogy which will contain in fictional form the history and development of this state from 1774 until the present.

Miss Bristow talked about the interesting research involved in writing the historical novel, and also included some of the amusing facts incident to such work. She traced for members of the book circle the development of an idea from its beginning into a finished book. Members of the circle were extended the privilege of inviting a guest for this lecture.

Miss Annette Duchein, who conducts the L. S. U. book circle, introduced Miss Bristow.

Miss Duchein stated at this time that plans are being made for next year's work, when club programs will be furnished to clubs who want them, and mimeographed weekly book reviews sent to those ladies in towns to which the book circle cannot reach. Miss Duchein will extend an additional five lectures to the larger centers, including Alexandria, Monroe, Shreveport, Natchitoches and one other. The second series of five lectures will begin the middle of April and be concluded at the end of May. In the alternate weeks Miss Duchein plans to visit many towns and cities which the university has been unable to reach this year to bring the work of the L. S. U. book circle. These towns are Rayville, Bastrop, DeRidder, Jonesboro, St. Joseph, Tallulah. Miss Duchein would like club presidents who wish to discuss this work in any towns where she has not lectured to get in touch with her by letter immediately.

P.-T. A. PRESIDENT

MRS. R. F. M'COOK

Unit Leader Prominent

Mrs. R. F. McCook, president of Barkdull Faulk school P.-T. A., has done outstanding work with her organization this year. Mrs. McCook took over the organization in December, replacing Mrs. Taylor Jones, who moved to Alexandria to live. She has continued the work begun under Mrs. Jones' leadership and launched and carried through a very definite program on her own initiative.

Her work in cooperation with the library committee appointed by Mrs. Jones has enabled them to add substantially to their book fund, and to succeed in the plans for the establishment of a central library in the school building as a memorial to Mrs. Bertha Kaliski, who was for many years chairman of the school library committee.

An innovation of Mrs. McCook's planning is the bringing to the school of the exhibit of North American children's paintings by the P.-T. A. art committee. So successful was the exhibition as an educational project that application has been made for the exhibition of children's art from five continents for next spring. A result of the exhibition just closed is a greatly increased interest on the part of children of the school in their art work. They asked and received permission to replace the loaned pictures with their own productions. Other schools in Monroe, and the demonstration school of Louisiana Tech plan to use the same exhibit for the benefit of their children.

The music committee's project for last year, the purchase of instruments for the band, was completed this year with the payment of the final amount due this spring. Mrs. McCook was chairman of the music committee when the undertaking was begun last year and is president at its completion.

Mrs. McCook is active in other clubs of the city. She is a member of the Fine Arts club, and is state chairman of opera for the organization. As a member of the Twin Cities P.-T. A. council, she is responsible for the success of the health puppet show in the schools, and as chairman of Mother Singers, for the organization and training of that group.

Members of circle No. 7 of the First Baptist church, Monroe, entertained with a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Jack Morrison on North Seventh street, Tuesday afternoon, honoring Mrs. Samuel Antelone, member of the circle, who recently moved into her new home.

Mrs. Morrison placed spring blossoms throughout the reception rooms.

The hostesses introduced a number of clever games in which Mrs. Bannister, leader of the circle, was successful in winning the prize and in turn presented to the honor guest.

Bulajac Morrison, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morrison, attired in party frock, presented the gifts to Mrs. Antelone. Mrs. Antelone in charming manner acknowledged receipt of the many beautiful and useful gifts.

Those present were Mrs. Antelone, Mrs. W. H. Bannister, Mrs. E. N. Cooper, Mrs. Bettye Duncan, Mrs. M. E. Etheridge, Mrs. J. L. Jacks, Mrs. W. L. Stevens, Mrs. F. S. Nelson, Mrs. D. K. Oppenheimer, Mrs. C. D. Smith, Mrs. W. H. Steen, Mrs S. W. Tucker, Mrs. Byron Vaughan, Mrs. J. C. Liles. Others invited were Mesdames R. H. Heacock, W. C. Curry, D. M. Doughty, L. T. Hastings, W. B. Mangham, John Spatafora, Joe Vorso, Mildred Gooser, Georgia Stacy, Miss Dee Morgan, Miss Faye Phillips and Miss Ezelle Jeffcoats.

The younger set danced again at Lakeside Country club when Phi Omega Sigma, Neville High school sorority, entertained members and guests. A typical springtime setting was achieved by a variety of flowers in colorful masses placed in the background. The picturesque fireplace was flanked by immense baskets overflowing with yellow jasmine and wood ferns, sustaining the sorority colors, yellow and green. Great branches of dogwood festooning the orchestral balcony and outlining the ball room, created additional beauty.

Iced fruit punch was served throughout the evening by Miss Dorothy Carter and Miss Roberta Stewart. The chaperones were: Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gottlieb, Mrs. Charles Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Ballard, Mrs. Jessie Royce and the sorority mother, Mrs. H. C. Mize.

The dancers were: Emily McGee, Bob Underwood, Katherine Pence, Johnny Reitzell, Jean Hale, Rheece McCook, Betty Jane Pierce, Harry Fernandez, J. O. McCook, Tommy Mulhearn, R. Review Club Meets At Colbert Home

The Review club met Monday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Henry Colbert, with the president, Mrs. Ben Breard, presiding.

At the request of the president, Mrs. E. R. Strahan and Mrs. C. V. McGimsey, delegates to the district federation meeting, rendered interesting reports on work accomplished. Mrs. Chester Nenney, treasurer, reported on the finances of the organization.

After the disposal of business, Mrs. McGimsey presented a current event with the life of Walter Winchell as her topic. Mrs. T. C. Rowland, who served as chairman of the afternoon's program, which was devoted to "The Bronte Sisters in Drama and Fiction," reviewed "Moor Born," a powerful one-act play based on an episode in the life of three of the Bronte sisters.

"This is the first of plays about the tragic Bronte sisters to be presented in America," said Mrs. Rowland. "The theme of 'Moor Born' by Dan Fotheroh is one of ironical sacrifice made by three of the sisters for their dissolute brother Branwell, who shares none of their native genius."

Life in the bleak parsonage at Haworth, the home of the Brontes, is recreated in Elsie Thornton Cook's biographical novel, "They Lived," Mrs. A. R. Holloway said in a review of the book.

"This is a novel of tragic note depicting a home ruled by the stern hand of a curate whose tyrannical, puritanical ways brought gloom and desolation to the five Bronte girls, all of whom possessed great ability as writers," Mrs. Holloway continued.

Members who attended the meeting were Mesdames Henry Colbert, C. B. Braun, Ben Breard, E. P. Cudd, Fred Fudickar, Allen Givens, Roy Hale, A. R. Holloway, B. W. Leigh, Reese Major, Sr., C. V. McGimsey, Chester Nenney, T. C. Rowland, Walter Rhodes, E. R. Strahan, V. H. Spinks, Crawford Young, DeWitt Henry.

State P.-T. A. Meeting Will Open Thursday

Largest Assembly In History Of Organization Expected At Convention To Be Held At Shreveport

The largest assembly of Parent-Teacher association members in the history of the state organization is expected to assemble at Shreveport for the fourteenth annual convention of the Louisiana Parent-Teacher association next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The theme of the convention, "Onward Education," will be developed through sessions of the three days with addresses, discussions and conferences.

Mrs. Howard L. Brown, fourth district P.-T. A. director, is general chairman of the convention. She has as her assistant, Mrs. W. Youngblood, president of the Shreveport P.-T. A. council.

Mrs. Albert L. Smith of Winnfield, president of the state organization, and other members of the state board of directors, form the convention program committee. Mrs. Lawrence A. Mailhes of Shreveport is chairman of this committee.

Among the speakers of the convention will be Pat Neff, former governor of Texas, and now president of Baylor university, Waco, Tex.; Mrs. Noyes Darling, third vice-president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers; and Mrs. Scott Wood, past president of the Arkansas Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The convention banquet will be held Friday night. At the close of the banquet the Shreveport Choral club will present "Carmen" before the assembly.

Members of the Twin Cities P.-T. A. council who will take part in panel discussions at the convention are Miss Myrtle Rodgers, state chairman of motion pictures, and Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, state chairman of correspondence courses.

Scott Will Speak At P.-T. A. Meeting

Mrs. P. A. Poag, program chairman of the Neville Parent-Teacher association, announces that Rev. W. C. Scott will address the organization on the subject, "The Better Parent and the Child's Spiritual Welfare," Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the school.

Delegates and alternates will be selected at the meeting to attend the state convention to be held at Shreveport April 15, 16, 17, at the Washington-Youree hotel.

Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, president of the Neville P.-T. A., will take part in the panel discussion of "Our Health Department," to be held Saturday morning during the convention.

The executive committee of the association met Monday afternoon at the school for the purpose of discussing matters of business. Executive board members who were present at this meeting were Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, Mrs. Louis Masur, Mrs. S. Beasley, Mrs. S. C. Wimbish, Mrs. Minnie Ruffin, Mrs. L. F. Grigsby, Mrs. E. G. Waring and Mrs. H. F. Felix.

Winnsboro P.-T. A. Elects Officers

WINNSBORO, La., April 10.—(Special)—A safety program and election of officers featured the monthly meeting of the Winnsboro P.-T. A. on Monday, April 5, in the Winnsboro High school auditorium. The attendance at this meeting was one of the largest of the entire year.

The high school band gave the two opening numbers on the program, followed by the reading of the essay, "Training for Safety," by Routhe Merle Brackett, who won the local prize and also the fifth district prize in the P.-T. A. safety contest. Helen Word gave a reading entitled: "Ma and the Auto." The high school glee club rendered two selections and Mr. James DeMoss gave a talk on "Safety Attitudes."

During the business session new officers were elected for terms of two years, as follows: Mrs. C. C. McCarty, president; Mrs. V. J. Funderburk, vice-president; Mrs. C. L. Lang, secretary; Mrs. Ed Randall, treasurer; Mrs. W. B. Glover, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. C. C. McCarty and Mrs. A. L. Price were elected delegates to the state convention which meets in Shreveport April 15-16-17.

Betty Ruth Ward, representing the 5-A grade, presented Mrs. Price, the retiring president, with a purse. Mrs. V. J. Funderburk, on behalf of the entire membership, presented Mrs. Price with a past president's pin. Mrs. Price expressed her appreciation for the gifts and voiced her thanks to the faculty and entire membership for their loyal cooperation and support during her term of office.

Dr. Tiebout's lecture was announced for Monday, April 19, at 2 p.m.

Veasey Home Scene Of Enjoyable Party

Mrs. W. J. Veasey's attractive apartment at the Layton place, banked with colorful spring flowers, was the setting for members of the Parker Memorial Sunday school class who enjoyed a social evening as the guests of Mrs. Veasey, Mrs. D. W. Caldwell, Mrs. J. R. Pumphrey, Mrs. W. K. Savelle, Mrs. Horace Fluker, Mrs. K. D. Golson, Miss Ladelle Duke and Miss Bertha Pierce.

A feature of the evening was the talk delivered by Mrs. Addie Holloway, who recently arrived home from the Houma missionary school.

Interesting games, introduced by the hostesses, offered amusement during the evening and were enjoyed to the fullest by the fifty-one members present.

Delicious refreshments, assorted canapes, sweet confections, fruit salad, and Russian tea, were served buffet fashion from a beautifully appointed table.

The names of the following persons were drawn to serve as hostesses for the next party, which will be the first Wednesday in May: Mrs. D. H. Marshall, Mrs. C. C. Rainwater, Mrs. Addie Holloway, Mrs. McKenzie, Mrs. R. W. Hair, Mrs. D. H. Jackson, Mrs. Zell Smith and Mrs. A. W. Wilkins.

Mrs. A. L. Harrington, local captain of the National Bridge Olympic played at Lakeside Country club last week, reports that the Vacation Land Bridge league is offering free vacations to the winners of each individual Olympic game.

The following information just received by Mrs. Harrington, will be of interest to those who participated in last week's tournament:

Winning the greatest number of pars will entitle the successful pair to free accommodations for the week beginning May 14 at one of the resorts in the beautiful lake region of Minnesota.

In addition to the regular hunting, boating and fishing there will be a bridge tournament that week—pairs, teams-of-four, etc., in duplicate, and progressive for those who prefer that type of tournament.

About April 15 the winners will receive from the Vacation Land Bridge league (Hackensack, Minn.) a list of available accommodations. For the most part these will be rustic lodges but there will be some more urban accommodations for those who prefer them. Some accommodations will include meals, others merely the lodges, cooking facilities and boats.

Miss Bristow Gives Interesting Lecture

Miss Gwen Bristow, whose novel on Louisiana, "Deep Summer," was released on March 30, was guest speaker of the L. S. U. book circle for the tenth and final lecture in the circle's current series at the Lotus club last week.

Miss Bristow is well known throughout the state for her work on the Times-Picayune, where she was the star woman reporter for eight years, and she and her husband, Bruce McManning, have collaborated to write four successful mystery novels, one of which was dramatized into a successful Broadway play, "The Ninth Guest." Her novel of Louisiana is one in a trilogy which will contain in fictional form the history and development of this state from 1774 until the present.

Miss Bristow talked about the interesting research involved in writing the historical novel, and also included some of the amusing facts incident to such work. She traced for members of the book circle the development of an idea from its beginning into a finished book. Members of the circle were extended the privilege of inviting a guest for this lecture.

Miss Annette Duchein, who conducts the L. S. U. book circle, introduced Miss Bristow.

Miss Duchein stated at this time that plans are being made for next year's work, when club programs will be furnished to clubs who want them, and mimeographed weekly book reviews sent to those ladies in towns to which the book circle cannot reach. Miss Duchein will extend an additional five lectures to the larger centers, including Alexandria, Monroe, Shreveport, Natchitoches and one other. The second series of five lectures will begin the middle of April and be concluded at the end of May. In the alternate weeks Miss Duchein plans to visit many towns and cities which the university has been unable to reach this year to bring the work of the L. S. U. book circle. These towns are Rayville, Bastrop, DeRidder, Jonesboro, St. Joseph, Tallulah. Miss Duchein would like club presidents who wish to discuss this work in any towns where she has not lectured to get in touch with her by letter immediately.

Luncheon Hour At Lakeside Enjoyed

The luncheon hour on Wednesday found feminine members of Lakeside Country club seated at the long, flower-adorned table, enjoying to the fullest the informality of the occasion and the pleasure of welcoming several charming visitors.

Due to the exceeding beauty of the weather, golfers were on the greens at 9:30, ready for the weekly tournament with luncheon at 12:30 and bridge during the afternoon rounding out a day of unusual pleasure.

Mrs. Henry Biedenharn and Mrs. C. C. Boardman were presented with the golf trophies by Mrs. Travis Oliver, golf chairman.

Noted among the guests enjoying luncheon were Mrs. D. I. Garrett, Mrs. A. T. Shotwell, Mrs. Flood Madison, Mrs. F. B. Winberry, Mrs. S. J. Rogers, Mrs. Glenn Neighbors, Mrs. Wilson Ewing, Mrs. James Ewing, Miss Margaret Ewing, Mrs. T. H. Ewing, Mrs. Claude Harrison, Mrs. John Gordon, Mrs. C. C. Boardman, Mrs. A. G. McHenry, Mrs. Louis Buckner, Mrs. G. B. Cooley, Mrs. Bernard Biedenharn, Mrs. John Lathram, Mrs. Frank Farmer, Mrs. Ben Downing, Mrs. June McDowell, Mrs. Haydn Cutler of Rochester, Minn., Mrs. Jack Parrish of Pine Bluff, Ark., Mrs. Carl McHenry, Mrs. Henry Biedenharn, Mrs. A. K. Kilpatrick, Mrs. John Fox, Mrs. Travis Oliver.

P.-T. A. PRESIDENT

MRS. R. F. M'COOK

Unit Leader Prominent

Mrs. R. F. McCook, president of Barkdull Faulk school P.-T. A., has done outstanding work with her organization this year. Mrs. McCook took over the organization in December, replacing Mrs. Taylor Jones, who moved to Alexandria to live. She has continued the work begun under Mrs. Jones' leadership and launched and carried through a very definite program on her own initiative.

Her work in cooperation with the library committee appointed by Mrs. Jones has enabled them to add substantially to their book fund, and to succeed in the plans for the establishment of a central library in the school building as a memorial to Mrs. Bertha Kaliski, who was for many years chairman of the school library committee.

An innovation of Mrs. McCook's planning is the bringing to the school of the exhibit of North American children's paintings by the P.-T. A. art committee. So successful was the exhibition as an educational project that application has been made for the exhibition of children's art from five continents for next spring. A result of the exhibition just closed is a greatly increased interest on the part of children of the school in their art work. They asked and received permission to replace the loaned pictures with their own productions. Other schools in Monroe, and the demonstration school of Louisiana Tech plan to use the same exhibit for the benefit of their children.

The music committee's project for last year, the purchase of instruments for the band, was completed this year with the payment of the final amount due this spring. Mrs. McCook was chairman of the music committee when the undertaking was begun last year and is president at its completion.

Mrs. McCook is active in other clubs of the city. She is a member of the Fine Arts club, and is state chairman of opera for the organization. As a member of the Twin Cities P.-T. A. council, she is responsible for the success of the health puppet show in the schools, and as chairman of Mother Singers, for the organization and training of that group.

The P.-T. A. which Mrs. McCook heads is one of the superior organizations of the state with a 10 per cent increase in membership this year over last year's number.

Members of circle No. 7 of the First Baptist church, Monroe, entertained with a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Jack Morrison on North Seventh street, Tuesday afternoon, honoring Mrs. Samuel Antelone, member of the circle, who recently moved into her new home.

Mrs. Morrison placed spring blossoms throughout the reception rooms.

The hostesses introduced a number of clever games in which Mrs. Bannister, leader of the circle, was successful in winning the prize and in turn presented to the honor guest.

Bulajac Morrison, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morrison, attired in party frock, presented the gifts to Mrs. Antelone. Mrs. Antelone in charming manner acknowledged receipt of the many beautiful and useful gifts.

Those present were Mrs. Antelone, Mrs. W. H. Bannister, Mrs. E. N. Cooper, Mrs. Bettye Duncan, Mrs. M. E. Etheridge, Mrs. J. L. Jacks, Mrs. W. L. Stevens, Mrs. F. S. Nelson, Mrs. D. K. Oppenheimer, Mrs. C. D. Smith, Mrs. W. H. Steen, Mrs S. W. Tucker, Mrs. Byron Vaughan, Mrs. J. C. Liles. Others invited were Mesdames R. H. Heacock, W. C. Curry, D. M. Doughty, L. T. Hastings, W. B. Mangham, John Spatafora, Joe Vorso, Mildred Gooser, Georgia Stacy, Miss Dee Morgan, Miss Faye Phillips and Miss Ezelle Jeffcoats.

Mrs. A. L. Sevier, Mrs. G. L. Garrison, Mrs. T. W. Jackson, Mrs. R. L. Baily, Mrs. R. T. Starrett, Mrs. C. E. Hester and Miss Lillie Mae Long represented the Tallulah Book club at the annual meeting of the fifth district convention of the Louisiana Federation of Women's clubs, held in Lake Providence.

The monthly joint meeting of the circles of the Methodist Missionary society was held in the community room of the church. Mrs. A. C. Thompson presided over the business session, when reports of the various activities were given. Mrs. Thompson gave an interesting report of the state conference held last week at Homer.

The Madison Parish Garden club met at the home of Mrs. Jerome Post on Tuesday afternoon with the election of officers featuring the business session. Mrs. Albert Sevier was elected president; Mrs. R. K. Boney, first vice-president; Mrs. F. D. Naylor, second vice-president; Mrs. Clarence Crow, recording secretary; Miss Bertha Keller, corresponding secretary; Mrs. A. H. Hurd, treasurer; Mrs. S. B. Bettis, parliamentarian.

Miss Annette Beers presided over the session when plans were made for the rose display to be given at the Book club building the latter part of April and catalogs distributed. There was a discussion of the state garden club convention to be held in Monroe in May but the appointment of delegates was deferred until a future meeting.

Mrs. E. T. Purnell was leader of the program and presented Mrs. J. S. Agee who gave a talk on a visit to the Bellengraft gardens in Mobile. Miss Nan Tarwater of Baton Rouge, district home demonstration agent of the L. S. U. extension department, gave a demonstration of planting and pruning of roses. An exhibit of individual flower arrangement proved to be an interesting feature of the program.

The hostess served delicious refreshments during the social period which followed to the guests, who were Mrs. D. H. Allen, Mrs. H. N. Alexander, Mrs. W. M. Murphy, Mrs. E. T. Purnell, Mrs. Horace Maxwell, Mrs. Fred McDuff, Mrs. F. D. Naylor, Mrs. A. J. Sevier, Mrs. Clarence Crow, Mrs. J. A. Gilbert, Mrs. A. H. Hurd, Miss Amy Holmes, Mrs. Davis Whitfield, Miss Bertha Keller, Mrs. W. R. Gilfoil, Mrs. Charles Goltharp, Mrs. Albert Sevier, Miss Nan Tarwater and Mrs. J. S. Agee.

A joint meeting of the various circles of the Baptist Missionary society was held at the church with the members of circle No. 4 in charge of the program on a study of French Americans under the leadership of Mrs. Clarence Crow. Mrs. A. J. Boswell gave the devotional. Talks were made by Mrs. M. P. Miller, Mrs. J. O. Womble and Mrs. Albert Sevier. Mrs. Albert Sevier presided over a brief business session and Mrs. Boswell gave the secretary's report. There was a large attendance.

A circle meeting of the Presbyterian auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. J. S. Agee, when plans were made for the new year's work. Mrs. J. S. Agee was leader and Mrs. R. E. Gilbert gave the devotional. An enjoyable social hour followed when refreshments were served to Mrs. John Nisbet, Mrs. R. E. Gilbert, Mrs. H. N. Alexander, Mrs. Henry Sevier, Mrs. J. H. Collins, Mrs. E. E. Wallace, Miss Amy Holmes, Mrs. W. T. Fairly and Mrs. W. C. Malone.

The Wednesday club was delightfully entertained at the Starrett home on Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. J. A. Gilbert winning the high score prize for bridge games. She received a novelty flower container on a stand and for low score, Mrs. G. L. Garrison was presented with a similar gift. Mrs. W. H. Pierson cut consolation prize, narcissus bulbs.

A two-course supper was attractively served at the conclusion of the games to Mrs. Akers, Mrs. W. K. Rountree, Mrs. G. L. Garrison, Mrs. J. A. Gilbert, Mrs. A. L. Sevier, Mrs. H. W. Lee, Mrs. W. H. Pierson, Mrs. Neal Holt, Mrs. Alex Blanche, Mrs. R. E. Gilbert and Mrs. Mason Spencer.

Miss Georgette Ziegler, Miss Elizabeth Holt, Mrs. H. S. Provine and Miss Dorothy Fairly attended a bridge party given by Mrs. F. H. Schneider in Lake Providence, complimentary to Miss Ziegler, a bride-elect of Tallulah.

Mrs. Herbert Woods and little son left here for their home in Anniston, Ala., after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Patterson and Miss Georgette Ziegler. Mrs. Woods was, before her marriage, Miss Madge Morton of Tallulah.

Mrs. Jesse Anderson was hostess to the members of her bridge club. The games resulted in Mrs. H. C. Brown capturing the high score prize and Mrs. Harry Anderson receiving the low score. A refreshing salad course was enjoyed after the games by the guests, Mrs. Paul Schwartz, Mrs. Carpenter, Mrs. Herman Lancaster, Mrs. T. Ed Williams, Mrs. H. C. Brown, Mrs. G. L. Smith and Mrs. J. W. Huckabay.

Shopping with Irene –

WALGREEN'S DRUG Store scores again! I wonder if many of you have ever used that hauntingly fragrant perfume called Triomphe. It is an extract taken from a tiny flower growing on the mountainside close to the Mediterranean. The flower itself is yellow and quite small and the scent has a quality to it that is quite intriguing—not sweet and yet not spicy. To really appreciate it, it should be tried and after that most of you will never want to be without a bottle of it on your dressing table. Walgreen's has just imported a shipment of it from Grasse and is selling it for only $1.00 a dram. Try a bottle and see if you don't find it a nice perfume change.

IF THIS ITEM doesn't make a hit with the menfolk I don't know what will. In the Bakery of Jitney Jungle on N. Fourth. It's a luscious butterscotch cream pie made of caramelized brown sugar and butter mixed with a delicious cream custard. Delicately browned meringue tops it off and the filling is held by flaky old time pie crust. It will be a big event of your dinner, I know. Better have Dad stop and get one on his way home. In case you miss out now, however, you'll find them at this shop every week. Have this shop bake your specials for a party that will be the envy of your friends. Believe me, they can do tricks with cake batter or bread batter.

PERHAPS YOU feel I've told you of too many dresses lately, but it's because such bargains are whispered in my ear I'd feel guilty not passing them on. This time I ferreted out a group of dresses—new for spring in Ruth Sheps Budget Dept. priced at $5.95, $7.95, $10.95. Dresses you would ordinarily pay all the way up to $16.75, so you can see they are worth an early trip to town. Styles and colors are numerous, little dark jacket dresses relieved with touches of lace, springy prints, soft pastels and countless others. As sizes run from 12 to 40 and styles in accordance, all from 16 to 60 can be fitted at quite a saving. In fact, just while standing taking notes I picked out three without half trying which I wished could grace my wardrobe. However, you know how fast good buys like these go, so let a word to the wise be sufficient and hurry down.

WHAT is more appealing to the appetite than a perfectly broiled steak served piping hot with the juices oozing out? We of today are fortunate, for it is now possible to bring this popular dish right to the table still sizzling—that is if you go to the smart Hotel Frances Coffee Shop for your steaks. They are brought to you on one of those special platters. They are of hammered aluminum and are used for the actual broiling so none of the essence can escape. When ready to serve there are two wooden handles to slip on, and presto, it becomes a serving dish. The Frances Coffee Shop is truly "The" place to dine and where practically all eating engagements are kept. Just because it is the smartest place in town, do not mean it is the highest . . . No sir . . . Food is most reasonable.

FOR the woman who likes a good corset but feels she can only afford one I have the best sort of news today from Bella Scherck Davidson corset department. It's a corselette, made by ARTIST MODEL, that has all the attributes of a practical every day foundation garment but has a low-cut back to make it suitable for evening wear. The front which affords perfect diaphragm control is of a sturdy brocade as is the back, while there are panels of elastic at the sides. The beautifully fitted brassiere is of lace and I say beautifully fitted advisedly, because it elevates the bust and controls the flesh under arm, yet disappears in some magical fashion to create the low back. Ends of brassiere are of elastic that cross and fasten to garment. This corselette is recommended especially for the woman who wears size 34 to 44. There is also an expert corsetiere in this department to fit you.

GOING away for the summer? . . . Better give that moving or storing of your furniture some thought. The Monroe Transfer and Warehouse company is as close as your telephone and is most competent of handling the important task for you. Across the street or across the country . . . they are equipped to take care of not only the moving but the packing of your valuables as well. Phone [illegible] . . . Just leave it to them . . . it's cheaper and safer in the long run.

YOU can't beat a good Uncle Sam for [illegible] . . . I dropped into the Durrett Hardware and Furniture store yesterday and Mr. Durrett related some interesting facts about the WESTINGHOUSE that I feel I must pass on to you . . . The United States public works administration housing division was in the market to purchase thousands of Electric Refrigerators on a bid basis. After making a severe test of practically every known Electric Refrigerator, the United States government placed an order for [illegible] Westinghouse Refrigerators. One of the main points in the government's decision to select Westinghouse was "The After-Cost Operation." In fact, that was the principal reason why Westinghouse was chosen. The refrigerators were to be installed in government houses for families of moderate means. Economy of operation was the major factor.

Tallulah

The monthly meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution took place at the home of Mrs. E. E. Warrick, at Tendal. Mrs. Alex Clark gave a review of the D. A. R. magazine and Mrs. Alexander read an article on the D. A. R. pin. Several letters of appreciation were received from guests who attended the recent state conference here. At the close of the session the hostess served refreshments. Those in attendance were Mrs. George Yerger, Mrs. Alex Clark, Mrs. J. Harris Baughman, Mrs. H. N. Alexander, Mrs. Horace Lee, Miss Peggy Clark and Miss Charlotte Sevier.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Taylor entertained with a turkey supper followed by bridge games. The prizes for high score were won by Mrs. Horace Lee and Mr. Taylor. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Baily, Mr. and Mrs. Lee, Mrs. A. L. Sevier and Mr. J. E. Neill.

Trinity chapter of the Episcopal church met with Mrs. Colvin Todd, with Mrs. W. L. Rountree presiding at the business session. A social period followed when ice cream, cake and coffee were served to Mrs. George Kimbrough, Mrs. E. A. Buckner, Mrs. W. C. Starrett, Mrs. W. L. Rountree, Mrs. M. A. Phillips, Mrs. Fred McDuff, Mrs. George Yerger, Jr., Miss Alma Maxwell, Mrs. R. T. Campbell and Mrs. R. C. Gaines.

Mrs. A. L. Sevier, Mrs. G. L. Garrison, Mrs. T. W. Jackson, Mrs. R. L. Baily, Mrs. R. T. Starrett, Mrs. C. E. Hester and Miss Lillie Mae Long represented the Tallulah Book club at the annual meeting of the fifth district convention of the Louisiana Federation of Women's clubs, held in Lake Providence.

The monthly joint meeting of the circles of the Methodist Missionary society was held in the community room of the church. Mrs. A. C. Thompson presided over the business session, when reports of the various activities were given. Mrs. Thompson gave an interesting report of the state conference held last week at Homer.

The Madison Parish Garden club met at the home of Mrs. Jerome Post on Tuesday afternoon with the election of officers featuring the business session. Mrs. Albert Sevier was elected president; Mrs. R. K. Boney, first vice-president; Mrs. F. D. Naylor, second vice-president; Mrs. Clarence Crow, recording secretary; Miss Bertha Keller, corresponding secretary; Mrs. A. H. Hurd, treasurer; Mrs. S. B. Bettis, parliamentarian.

Miss Annette Beers presided over the session when plans were made for the rose display to be given at the Book club building the latter part of April and catalogs distributed. There was a discussion of the state garden club convention to be held in Monroe in May but the appointment of delegates was deferred until a future meeting.

Mrs. E. T. Purnell was leader of the program and presented Mrs. J. S. Agee who gave a talk on a visit to the Bellengraft gardens in Mobile. Miss Nan Tarwater, of Baton Rouge, district home demonstration agent of the L. S. U. extension department, gave a demonstration of planting and pruning of roses. An exhibit of individual flower arrangement proved to be an interesting feature of the program.

The hostess served delicious refreshments during the social period which followed to the guests, who were Mrs. D. H. Allen, Mrs. H. N. Alexander, Mrs. W. M. Murphy, Mrs. E. T. Purnell, Mrs. Horace Maxwell, Mrs. Fred McDuff, Mrs. F. D. Naylor, Mrs. A. J. Sevier, Mrs. Clarence Crow, Mrs. J. A. Gilbert, Mrs. A. H. Hurd, Miss Amy Holmes, Mrs. Davis Whitfield, Miss Bertha Keller, Mrs. W. R. Gilfoil, Mrs. Charles Goltharp, Mrs. Albert Sevier, Miss Nan Tarwater and Mrs. J. S. Agee.

A joint meeting of the various circles of the Baptist Missionary society was held at the church with the members of circle No. 4 in charge of the program on a study of French Americans under the leadership of Mrs. Clarence Crow. Mrs. A. J. Boswell gave the devotional. Talks were made by Mrs. M. P. Miller, Mrs. J. O. Womble and Mrs. Albert Sevier. Mrs. Albert Sevier presided over a brief business session and Mrs. Boswell gave the secretary's report. There was a large attendance.

A circle meeting of the Presbyterian auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. J. S. Agee, when plans were made for the new year's work. Mrs. J. S. Agee was leader and Mrs. R. E. Gilbert gave the devotional. An enjoyable social hour followed when refreshments were served to Mrs. John Nisbet, Mrs. R. E. Gilbert, Mrs. H. N. Alexander, Mrs. Henry Sevier, Mrs. J. H. Collins, Mrs. E. E. Wallace, Miss Amy Holmes, Mrs. W. T. Fairly and Mrs. W. C. Malone.

The Wednesday club was delightfully entertained at the Starrett home on Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. J. A. Gilbert winning the high score prize for bridge games. She received a novelty flower container on a stand and for low score, Mrs. G. L. Garrison was presented with a similar gift. Mrs. W. H. Pierson cut consolation prize, narcissus bulbs.

A two-course supper was attractively served at the conclusion of the games to Mrs. Akers, Mrs. W. K. Rountree, Mrs. G. L. Garrison, Mrs. J. A. Gilbert, Mrs. A. L. Sevier, Mrs. H. W. Lee, Mrs. W. H. Pierson, Mrs. Neal Holt, Mrs. Alex Blanche, Mrs. R. E. Gilbert and Mrs. Mason Spencer.

Miss Georgette Ziegler, Miss Elizabeth Holt, Mrs. H. S. Provine and Miss Dorothy Fairly attended a bridge party given by Mrs. F. H. Schneider in Lake Providence, complimentary to Miss Ziegler, a bride-elect of Tallulah.

Mrs. Herbert Woods and little son left here for their home in Anniston, Ala., after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Patterson and Miss Georgette Ziegler. Mrs. Woods was, before her marriage, Miss Madge Morton of Tallulah.

Mrs. Jesse Anderson was hostess to the members of her bridge club. The games resulted in Mrs. H. C. Brown capturing the high score prize and Mrs. Harry Anderson receiving the low score. A refreshing salad course was enjoyed after the games by the guests, Mrs. Paul Schwartz, Mrs. Carpenter, Mrs. Herman Lancaster, Mrs. T. Ed Williams, Mrs. H. C. Brown, Mrs. G. L. Smith and Mrs. J.W. Huckabay.

St. Joseph

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lynch entertained the Night Card club. During the evening, a buffet supper was served at the table to Mr. and Mrs. John Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Levy, Mrs. Thomas M. Wade and Mrs. Richard Whitney.

Mrs. Blanton Evans, Mrs. Richard H. Whitney and Mrs. Richard Moore Whitney made up a party motoring to New Orleans for the week-end. Mrs. Evans will visit friends on the gulf coast and will join the rest of the party in New Orleans for the drive back to St. Joseph.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Gray, of Rossville, Ga., and their little son, James Nichols Gray, are visiting Mrs. Gray's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Drake. Mrs. Gray was, before her marriage, Miss Claire Drake.

Calhoun

The Calhoun Study club met at the home of Mrs. James E. Bryan. Music was the feature of the afternoon. The story of the "Tales of Hoffman" was told by Mrs. Louis O'Quinn, with a rendition of "Barcarolle" played by Mrs. Sidney Stewart.

An added feature of the program was a song, "In the Gloaming," sung by Mrs. Bryan and Mrs. O'Quinn. The story, "The Romance of 'In the Gloaming,'" written by Myrtle T. Wilkins, was read by Mrs. Claude Roberts. This feature appealed to the audience especially because a number of our members are familiar with the setting of the song and the romance that inspired it at Marion, La.

At the close of the meeting, the hostess served refreshments to Mrs. Clemmie Watson, Miss Rupert Perry, Mrs. Elmo Hale, Mrs. Sidney Stewart, Mrs. Jake Humble, Mrs. Louis O'Quinn, Mrs. Homer Hale, Mrs. Clara Hodge and Mrs. Max Hamilton.

Shopping with Irene

WALGREEN'S DRUG Store scores again! I wonder if many of you have ever used that hauntingly fragrant perfume called Triomphe. It is an extract taken from a tiny flower growing on the mountainside close to the Mediterranean. The flower itself is yellow and quite small and the scent has a quality to it that is quite intriguing—not sweet and yet not spicy. To really appreciate it, it should be tried and after that most of you will never want to be without a bottle of it on your dressing table. Walgreen's has just imported a shipment of it from Grasse and is selling it for only $1.00 a dram. Try a bottle and see if you don't find it a nice perfume change.

IF THIS ITEM doesn't make a hit with the menfolk I don't know what will. In the Bakery of Jitney Jungle on N. Fourth. It's a luscious butterscotch cream pie made of caramelized brown sugar and butter mixed with a delicious cream custard. Delicately browned meringue tops it off and the filling is held by flaky old time pie crust. It will be a big event of your dinner, I know. Better have Dad stop and get one on his way home. In case you miss out now, however, you'll find them at this shop every week. Have this shop bake your specials for a party that will be the envy of your friends. Believe me, they can do tricks with cake batter or bread batter.

PERHAPS YOU feel I've told you of too many dresses lately, but it's because such bargains are whispered in my ear I'd feel guilty not passing them on. This time I ferreted out a group of dresses—new for spring in Ruth Shops Budget Dept. priced at $5.95, $7.95, $10.95. Dresses you would ordinarily pay all the way up to $16.75, so you can see they are worth an early trip to town. Styles and colors are numerous, little dark jacket dresses relieved with touches of lace, springy prints, soft pastels and countless others. As sizes run from 12 to 40 and styles in accordance, all from 16 to 60 can be fitted at quite a saving. In fact, just while standing taking notes I picked out three without half trying which I wished could grace my wardrobe. However, you know how fast good buys like these go, so let a word to the wise be sufficient and hurry down.

WHAT is more appealing to the appetite than a perfectly broiled steak served piping hot with the juices oozing out? We of today are fortunate, for it is now possible to bring this popular dish right to the table still sizzling—that is if you go to the smart Hotel Frances Coffee Shop for your steaks. They are brought to you on one of those special platters. They are of hammered aluminum and are used for the actual broiling so none of the essence can escape. When ready to serve there are two wooden handles to slip on, and, presto, it becomes a serving dish. The Frances Coffee Shop is truly "The" place to dine and where practically all eating engagements are kept. Just because it is the smartest place in town, doesn't mean it is the highest. . . . No, sir. . . . Food is most reasonable.

FOR the woman who likes a good corset but feels she can only afford one I have the best sort of news today from Bella Scherck Davidson corset department. It's a corselette, made by ARTIST MODEL, that has all the attributes of a practical every-day foundation garment but has a low-cut back to make it suitable for evening wear. The front, which affords perfect diaphragm control, is of a sturdy brocade as is the back, while there are panels of elastic at the sides. The beautifully fitted brassiere is of lace and I say beautifully fitted advisedly, because it elevates the bust and controls the flesh under arm, yet disappears in some magical fashion to create the low back. Ends of brassiere are of elastic that cross and fasten to garment. This corselette is recommended especially for the woman who wears size 34 to 44. There is always an expert corsetiere in this department to fit you.

YOU can't beat your "Uncle Sammy" for buying wisely. . . . I dropped into the Durrett Hardware and Furniture store yesterday and Mr. Durrett related some interesting facts about the WESTINGHOUSE that I feel I must pass on to you! . . . The United States public works administration housing division was in the market to purchase thousands of Electric Refrigerators on a bid basis. After making a severe test of practically every known Electric Refrigerator, the United States government placed an order for 16,697 Westinghouse Refrigerators. One of the main points in the government's decision to select Westinghouse was: "The After-Cost Operation." In fact, that was the principal reason why Westinghouse was chosen. The refrigerators were to be installed in government houses for families of moderate means. Economy of operation was the major factor.

PREMIUM PAYING MORTGAGES SHOW MILLIONS WEEKLY

FHA Has Approximate Income Of $500,000 A Month, Figures Indicate

Premium-paying mortgages insured by the federal housing administration are being recorded at the rate of about $8,000,000 a week and by April 1 should reach close to the half-billion-dollar mark. On February 28 they amounted to $463,135,000.

These figures, however, do not adequately describe the volume of business transacted under the insured mortgage system. Mortgages accepted for insurance, which provide a more accurate measure of federal housing administration transactions under title II of the national housing act, totaled $667,467,957 on February 28, 1937. The difference is accounted for chiefly by the fact that under the law mortgages accepted for insurance on new construction cannot be converted into premium-paying mortgages until the construction has been completed and finally approved by federal housing administration inspectors. The lapse of time between the issuance of a commitment on new construction and the recording of a premium-paying mortgage may run as long as one year, although the average period is about five and a half months.

Procedure Simplified

On existing construction, however, applications for mortgage insurance are handled in less time under procedure that has been considerably simplified since the federal housing administration began operations. Mortgages selected for appraisal on existing construction are frequently made premium paying within two weeks.

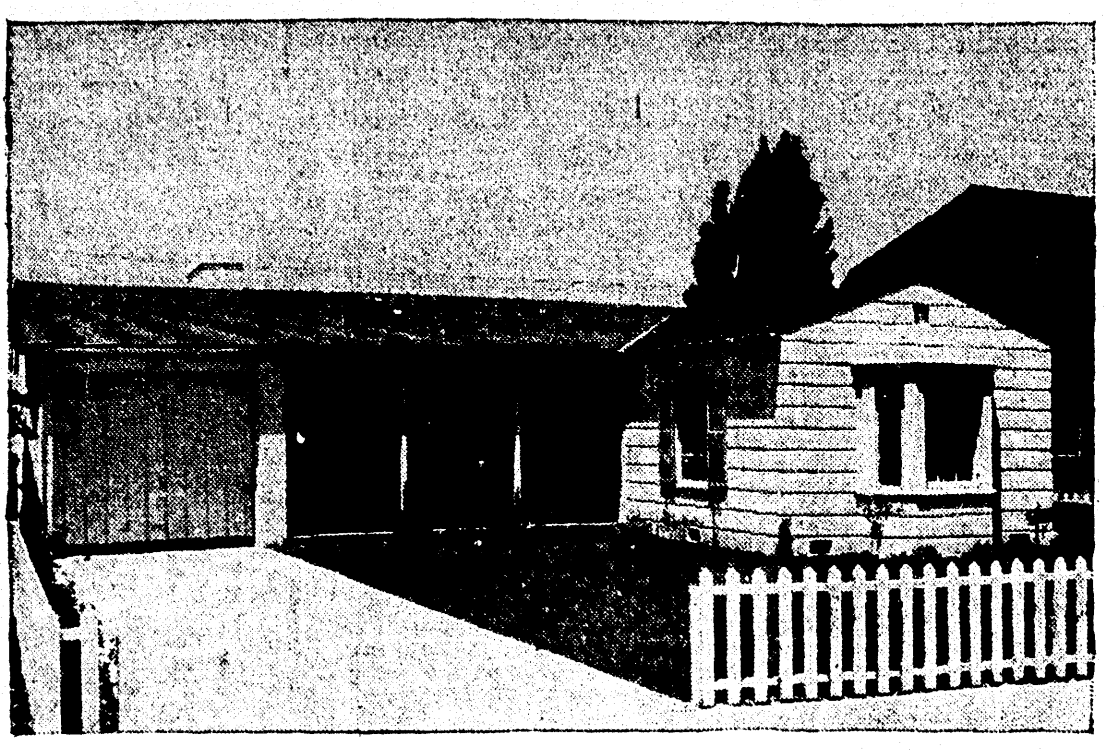
The expansion of the insured mortgage system is illustrated by the fact that premium-paying mortgages a year ago amounted to around $100,000,000.

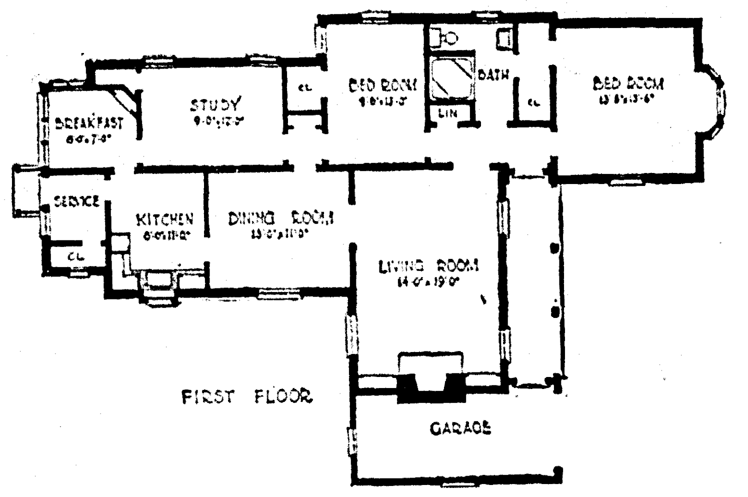
Business Doubles

The rate at which premium-paying mortgages are now being entered upon the books of the federal housing administration is more than double that of a year ago.

From these premium-paying mortgages and appraisal fees the federal housing administration now has an income of approximately $500,000 a month. This income goes into the mutual mortgage-insurance fund in the treasury. At the present time this fund amounts to over $16,000,000. As the volume of federal housing administration business increases the income, of course, will also increase to a point where it is believed it will be sufficient to pay the expenses of the administration and provide sufficient reserves to meet any losses which may occur on foreclosed mortgages.

California Home





Thoroughly modern in design, this house can trace its ancestry back to the architecture of the old California ranch houses. The clever use of materials and restrained ornament makes it neat and effective.

The wide joints in the surface of the extension emphasize the horizontal line of the house. A heavy lintel over the garage door, the slender posts on the porch, a bay window, and grill in the gable are all details which make a satisfactory whole. The picket fence is the ultimate touch which arouses a sense of ownership.

The plan shows a comfortable and informally arranged group of rooms. The kitchen is separated from the living area and has its own entrance and service arrangement. The study, although isolated from the bath, could be used as a children's bedroom or playroom. The garage is an integral part of the house, convenient in plan and a unit in the design.

The house is valued at $3,800 and the land an additional $1,200. The property is covered by a $4,000 mortgage insured by the Federal Housing Administration. The architect was Robert Dennis Murphy.

MIRRORS HELPFUL

The small garden enclosed by a brick or stone wall may be given the appearance of spaciousness through the use of mirrors. Glass panels will give the appearance of a garden beyond. Careful installation and tightly leaded rims will protect the mirrors against winter storms.

Housing Question Box

Q. Is it better to build the garage attached to the house or separate?

A. If it can be located where it does not obstruct necessary light and air, it is better to build it as a part of the house. Separate garages cut up the yard and make it difficult to develop any scheme of yard layout. An attached garage is more convenient and often improves the architectural appearance of the house. Placing the garage at the back of the lot is merely a habit inherited from the days of horses and carriages.

Q. We are going to install a new bathroom in our house, and I should like to know if there isn't some way to prevent that unsightly crack that always occurs where the plaster meets the tub.

A. Yes; there is. Have the contractor screw a small steel angle of metal about one-eighth inch thick to the studs where the tub comes against the wall, and hang the tub on that instead of on a wooden bracket, as is usually done. Use wire lath for the plaster and let the lath overlap the angle. The plaster should be Keene's cement.

Q. What is the best type ceiling light for a dining room?

A. That is largely a matter of choice. However, the tendency is away from the old umbrella type that hangs just over the table. A small cluster at the ceiling serves for general illumination, or the center light may be eliminated entirely and candles used on the table. Candle light is pleasant and kind and is used extensively.

Q. I want to build myself a work shop down in the cellar. Can you suggest some way I can protect my tools from the dampness?

A. That would be difficult. If your cellar is damp, why not build your work shop above ground? If you have a garage or any sheds on the place, build it either as an extension to one of these or fix up a shed. It can be heated quite comfortably with an oil or electric stove.

Q. Someone told me of attic stairs that can be folded up into the ceiling. Is that so, and are they already made or do they have to be made to order?

A. Yes, there are such stairs and they are made all ready to install. There are several companies manufacturing them. Ask your local lumber dealer to get you quotations and determine the size necessary.

Q. Where can I get nice plans for a five or six-room house, and how much will they cost?

A. There are several sources of plans, and the costs run from a dollar to 10 per cent of the cost of the house. There are some magazines that sell plans, and there are books of stock plans that can be obtained from most building-material dealers. The next step is a plan-service concern that furnishes fuller plans for a few dollars more. Then come the architects. And these vary according to their ability and the amount of service they give. While the services of a competent architect cost what may seem a lot of money, they are worth it, for not only will you have a house planned for your special needs but it will be planned for the particular location on which it is to set and will be so designed as to take advantage of prevailing winds, sunlight, etc. A well-designed house has a higher sales value than just a house. And bear in mind also that part of the services which the architect renders is inspection of the construction while it is in progress. This is one of his most important functions, for there are problems coming up constantly that must be solved, and since the contractor is not a trained architect, if the decision is left to him, it is hardly probable that he will get the proper answer from an architectural point of view.

Q. Our house is of brick, painted white. We have a lot of trouble with discoloration of the paint under the windows. It turns yellow. Can you suggest the cause?

A. It may be from the screens or it may be from dirt accumulating on the sills and washing down with the rain. It sounds more like the former, and you may be able to correct it by using a different type of paint. Certain types of paint are affected by the wash from some types of metal in screens. Ask an experienced painter to examine your particular case to see if he cannot diagnose the trouble.

Q. Do you think it would improve my house if I took off the wooden front porch and had a brick porch built, with brick sidepieces?

A. It depends upon the design of your present porch. If it is well designed, it might be a mistake to take it down. Be careful about the brick "sidepieces." Many now being built are too heavy and cumbersome. It would be well to consult a competent architect and follow his advice.

STAFF JUDGMENT FACTOR IN PLAN

Integrity Of Valuators Behind Soundness Of Federal Housing System

WASHINGTON.—The soundness of the mutual mortgage insurance plan of the federal housing administration rests upon the judgment and integrity exercised by the administration's underwriting staff in passing upon the qualifications of home mortgages presented for insurance. In exercising this function, the underwriting staff has won wide commendation for a major contribution to good practice in home-mortgage lending. The aim is to recognize good loans, which means that the borrower must be undertaking to pay a debt within his reasonable capacity to pay, and that the loan must be adequately secured by the home which serves as collateral. Further, every effort must be made to reject or suggest suitable modifications in loans which fail to meet either or both of these qualifications.

The practical effect of the thoroughgoing review given to each mortgage and the adoption of similar methods by private lending institutions in their own operations is to give added security both to the lender and to the borrower. In the long run this must mean lower costs to borrowers, and increased confidence in home ownership, with consequent strengthening of the demand for good new homes.

Improved mortgage-lending practice should also help to stabilize homebuilding activity and to reduce the extreme ups and downs in the home real estate market. To this end the administration is engaged in economic studies and statistical activities which it hopes will give clear indications when unsound situations are developing locally or through the nation. Excessive costs of construction, the prevalence of high financing charges, other evidences of unsound financing, and building of an excessive number of houses in the upper price ranges all represent hazards to be avoided.

CONSERVATIVE DESIGN AIDS RESALE OF HOME

Marketability of a house is affected by its design. Good architecture is never out of date. Freakish and tricky styles in architecture "date" a house and hasten obsolescence of its design. Modifications and adaptations of established styles are less to be desired than pure design.

The federal housing administration insures home mortgages made by private financial institutions.

STORE LIGHTING

Modern methods of store lighting quickly pay for themselves in increased sales of merchandise more effectively displayed. The purchase and installation of modern lighting effects may be financed through private financial institutions approved by the federal housing administration.

To Be Lived In

This room is in a new home which was built under the insured mortgage system of the Federal Housing Administration. It is spacious and well lighted. The large fireplace is both practical and decorative. The plain walls are in keeping with the simple furnishings.

Fireplace Should Be Useful As Well As Focal Point In Room

When planning a new fireplace, consideration should be given to its use for heating in spring and fall and as accessory heating in wintertime. To further this end, several manufacturers have developed hollow steel units to be bricked in when the fireplace is built and which serve as a warm-air heating chamber.

The steel unit takes cold air from the floor of the room in which the fireplace is located, or from the out-of-doors through a grilled opening, heats the air much as would a warm-air furnace, and discharges the heated air through grilled openings into the room.

The heating of the room air, in addition to the pleasing radiant heat from the open fire, converts the usual fireplace into a heating unit of considerable capacity. Further, the unit being factory fabricated of steel acts as a form for the brickwork of the fireplace and thus aids in the building of a fireplace of good design.

Loose Wires Prove Menace Around House

Electric wiring, dangling, frayed, or left lying on floors may prove dangerous. It is particularly hazardous in rooms frequented by children or elderly persons who are thereby exposed to electric shocks or tripping and perhaps falling and sustaining serious injuries.

In the majority of cases the introduction of sufficient outlets for the use of lamps, radios, etc., may overcome this danger. Electric wiring should be inspected carefully and often and obsolete wiring obviated as a safety measure and for a possible reduction in fire insurance premiums.

Funds for modernization of wiring systems may be obtained under the modernization credit plan of the federal housing administration.

PORCH OR TERRACE ADDITION TO HOME

A porch or terrace is a valuable adjunct to the new or modernized house. The opportunity of spending time in the open air, or serving meals out of doors, is too pleasant and healthful to be neglected.

This is a consideration when a new home is planned. Homes may be financed under the terms of the insured mortgage system of the federal housing administration.

PREMIUM PAYING MORTGAGES SHOW MILLIONS WEEKLY

FHA Has Approximate Income Of $500,000 A Month, Figures Indicate

Premium-paying mortgages insured by the federal housing administration are being recorded at the rate of about $8,000,000 a week and by April 1 should reach close to the half-billion-dollar mark. On February 28 they amounted to $463,135,000.

These figures, however, do not adequately describe the volume of business transacted under the insured mortgage system. Mortgages accepted for insurance, which provide a more accurate measure of federal housing administration transactions under title II of the national housing act, totaled $667,467,957 on February 28, 1937. The difference is accounted for chiefly by the fact that under the law mortgages accepted for insurance on new construction cannot be converted into premium-paying mortgages until the construction has been completed and finally approved by federal housing administration inspectors. The lapse of time between the issuance of a commitment on new construction and the recording of a premium-paying mortgage may run as long as one year, although the average period is about five and a half months.

Procedure Simplified

On existing construction, however, applications for mortgage insurance are handled in less time under procedure that has been considerably simplified since the federal housing administration began operations. Mortgages selected for appraisal on existing construction are frequently made premium paying within two weeks.

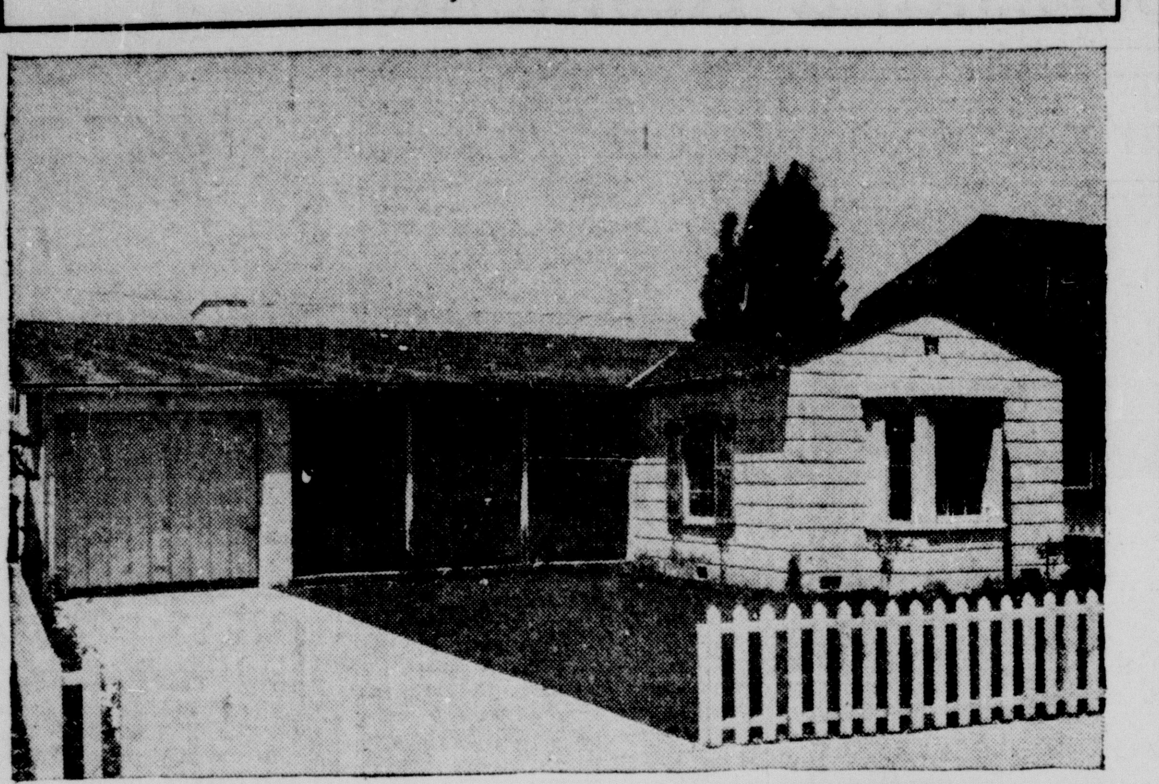
The expansion of the insured mortgage system is illustrated by the fact that premium-paying mortgages a year ago amounted to around $100,000,000.

Business Doubles

The rate at which premium-paying mortgages are now being entered upon the books of the federal housing administration is more than double that of a year ago.

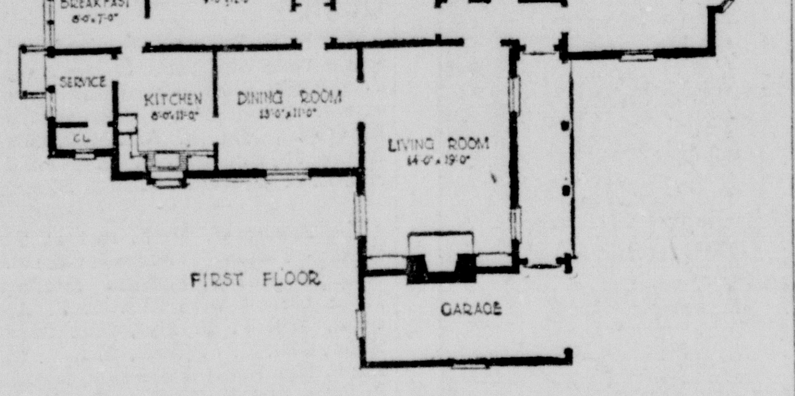
From these premium-paying mortgages and appraisal fees the federal housing administration now has an income of approximately $500,000 a month. This income goes into the mutual mortgage-insurance fund in the treasury. At the present time this fund amounts to over $16,000,000. As the volume of federal housing administration business increases the income, of course, will also increase to a point where it is believed it will be sufficient to pay the expenses of the administration and provide sufficient reserves to meet any losses which may occur on foreclosed mortgages.

California Home



Thoroughly modern in design, this house can trace its ancestry back to the architecture of the old California ranch houses. The clever use of materials and restrained ornament makes it neat and effective.

The wide joints in the surface of the extension emphasize the horizontal line of the house. A heavy lintel over the garage door, the slender posts on the porch, a bay window, and grill in the gable are all details which make a satisfactory whole. The picket fence is the ultimate touch which arouses a sense of ownership.



The plan shows a comfortable and informally arranged group of rooms. The kitchen is separated from the living area and has its own entrance and service arrangement. The study, although isolated from the bath, could be used as a children's bedroom or playroom. The garage is an integral part of the house, convenient in plan and a unit in the design.

The house is valued at $3,800 and the land an additional $1,200. The property is covered by a $4,000 mortgage insured by the Federal Housing Administration. The architect was Robert Dennis Murphy.

MIRRORS HELPFUL

The small garden enclosed by a brick or stone wall may be given the appearance of spaciousness through the use of mirrors. Glass panels will give the appearance of a garden beyond. Careful installation and tightly leaded rims will protect the mirrors against winter storms.

Housing Question Box

Q. Is it better to build the garage attached to the house or separate?

A. If it can be located where it does not obstruct necessary light and air, it is better to build it as a part of the house. Separate garages cut up the yard and make it difficult to develop any scheme of yard layout. An attached garage is more convenient and often improves the architectural appearance of the house. Placing the garage at the back of the lot is merely a habit inherited from the days of horses and carriages.

Q. We are going to install a new bathroom in our house, and I should like to know if there isn't some way to prevent that unsightly crack that always occurs where the plaster meets the tub.

A. Yes; there is. Have the contractor screw a small steel angle of metal about one-eighth inch thick to the studs where the tub comes against the wall, and hang the tub on that instead of on a wooden bracket, as is usually done. Use wire lath for the plaster and let the lath overlap the angle. The plaster should be Keene's cement.

Q. What is the best type ceiling light for a dining room?

A. That is largely a matter of choice. However, the tendency is away from the old umbrella type that hangs just over the table. A small cluster at the ceiling serves for general illumination, or the center light may be eliminated entirely and candles used on the table. Candle light is pleasant and kind and is used extensively.

Q. I want to build myself a work shop down in the cellar. Can you suggest some way I can protect my tools from the dampness?

A. That would be difficult. If your cellar is damp, why not build your work shop above ground? If you have a garage or any sheds on the place, build it either as an extension to one of these or fix up a shed. It can be heated quite comfortably with an oil or electric stove.

Q. Someone told me of attic stairs that can be folded up into the ceiling. Is that so, and are they already made or do they have to be made to order?

A. Yes, there are such stairs and they are made all ready to install. There are several companies manufacturing them. Ask your local lumber dealer to get you quotations and determine the size necessary.

Q. Where can I get nice plans for a five or six-room house, and how much will they cost?

A. There are several sources of plans, and the costs run from a dollar to 10 per cent of the cost of the house. There are some magazines that sell plans, and there are books of stock plans that can be obtained from most building-material dealers. The next step is a plan-service concern that furnishes fuller plans for a few dollars more. Then come the architects. And these vary according to their ability and the amount of service they give. While the services of a competent architect cost what may seem a lot of money, they are worth it, for not only will you have a house planned for your special needs but it will be planned for the particular location on which it is to set and will be so designed as to take advantage of prevailing winds, sunlight, etc. A well-designed house has a higher sales value than just a house. Crosby And Burns Head Cast Of 'Waikiki Wedding'

"Mama Steps Out" and how! Starring that new comedy team Alice Brady and Guy Kibbee, with Betty Furness and Stanley Morner, Mary Garden's singing protege, "Mama Steps Out," is at the Capitol today and Monday.

Those old cow-hands from the Rio Grande are turned loose in a hula heaven. "Waikiki Wedding" brings to you Bing Crosby, Bob Burns, Martha Raye and Shirley Ross in a gay and goofy romance-comedy of Hawaii. In Bob Burns' arms is one of the coming stars in the person of "Walford," a genuine Van Buren razorback. This attraction plays the Paramount today and Monday.

"No Man of Her Own" tells the [illegible] seeking refuge meets a [illegible] Gable and Carole Lombard, at the Paramount Thursday [illegible]

Victor McLaglen smashes through with another of his stirring portrayals in "Nancy Steele Is Missing," with sinister Peter Lorre, Walter Connolly, June Lang and Robert Kent, at Paramount Tuesday and Wednesday.

One of the greatest human dramas ever conceived is M-G-M's "The Devil Is a Sissy." Starring the three greatest boy actors of the cinema world, Freddie Bartholomew, Jackie Cooper and Mickey Rooney. "The Devil Is a Sissy" is a gripping portrayal of the pitfalls that beset youth and of youthful courage and faith. Ian Hunter, Peggy Conklin and Katharine Alexander are featured. At the Capitol Thursday.

Comedy Hit Showing At Paramount

Martha Raye And Shirley Ross Also In Big Cast Of New Musical Film

HIGH comedy, music and romance in glamorous Waikiki, enacted by a splendid cast including some of the best known names of the radio and screen, and splendidly conceived and directed, make "Waikiki Wedding," which opened at the Paramount theater last night, as brilliant and thoroughly enjoyable an evening's entertainment as could be hoped for.

The cast is headed by Bing Crosby and includes Bob Burns, Martha Raye, Shirley Ross, George Barbier and Leif Erikson in the main roles, with background and atmosphere provided by 250 native dancers, drummers and musicians. Among the latter are Miri Rei, the dancing girl who proved the sensation of the Ziegfeld Follies a few years ago, and Kuulei and Nalani de Clerq, Honolulu dancing girls.

"Waikiki Wedding" is the story of a smart publicity man, played by Crosby, who outsmarts himself. As the representative of a pineapple cannery, he organizes a contest for pineapple recipes, the winner of which is to receive a vacation in glamorous Waikiki. Miss Ross wins the contest, comes to Waikiki, becomes bored with the place and decides to return home, ruining the publicity campaign.

Much of the rest of the picture is taken up with Crosby's attempts to keep Miss Ross thrilled. He succeeds but falls in love with her. When she learns that he had provided a synthetic Waikiki for her she leaves him but he wins her back by employing the unique methods which made of him the great publicity man he is.

Interwoven in this plot is the romance of Bob Burns and Martha Raye. It is very much like the romance they had in "Rhythm on the Range," hilarious and robust.

Crosby outdoes himself in "Waikiki Wedding." Not only does he sing several charming melodies in his own distinctive manner but he plays the part of the livewire press agent with great verve and elan. Burns and Miss Raye, of course, are excellent and Miss Ross takes a big step forward as an accomplished actress.

The team of Robin and Rainger, responsible for the excellent music in "The Big Broadcast of 1937," "College Holiday," "Champagne Waltz" and other hit pictures, comes through with another batch of sure-fire hits. Notable among these are "Blue Hawaii," "Sweet Is the Word for You," "In a Little Hula Heaven" and "Okolehao." The picture was masterfully directed by Frank Tuttle.

Crosby And Burns Head Cast Of 'Waikiki Wedding'

"Mama Steps Out" and how! Starring that new comedy team Alice Brady and Guy Kibbee, with Betty Furness and Stanley Morner, Mary Garden's singing protege, "Mama Steps Out," is at the Capitol today and Monday.

Those old cow-hands from the Rio Grande are turned loose in a hula heaven. "Waikiki Wedding" brings to you Bing Crosby, Bob Burns, Martha Raye and Shirley Ross in a gay and goofy romance-comedy of Hawaii. In Bob Burns' arms is one of the coming stars in the person of "Walford," a genuine Van Buren razorback. This attraction plays the Paramount today and Monday.

"No Man of Her Own" tells the story of how a wise guy seeking refuge meets a hick damsel and goes domestic, with Clarke Gable and Carole Lombard, at the Paramount Thursday and Friday.

Victor McLaglen smashes through with another of his stirring portrayals in "Nancy Steele Is Missing," with sinister Peter Lorre, Walter Connolly, June Lang and Robert Kent, at Paramount Tuesday and Wednesday.

Despite the title "Murder Goes to College," this amusing yarn is a comedy. With Rosco Karns and Lynne Overman forming a comedy duo of reporter and cop, the cast also includes Marsha Hunt, Larry Crabbe and Purnall Pratt. At the Capitol Friday.

One of the greatest human dramas ever conceived is M-G-M's "The Devil Is a Sissy." Starring the three greatest boy actors o fthe cinema world, Freddie Bartholomew, Jackie Cooper and Mickey Rooney. "The Devis Is a Sissy" is a gripping portrayal of the pitfalls that beset youth and of youthful courage and faith. Ian Hunter, Peggy Conklin and Katharine Alexander are featured. At the Capitol Thursday.

Comedy Hit Showing At Paramount

Martha Raye And Shirley Ross Also In Big Cast Of New Musical Film

HIGH comedy, music and romance in glamorous Waikiki, enacted by a splendid cast including some of the best known names of the radio and screen, and splendidly conceived and directed, make "Waikiki Wedding," which opened at the Paramount theater last night, as brilliant and thoroughly enjoyable an evening's entertainment as could be hoped for.

The cast is headed by Bing Crosby and includes Bob Burns, Martha Raye, Shirley Ross, George Barbier and Leif Erikson in the main roles, with background and atmosphere provided by 250 native dancers, drummers and musicians. Among the latter are Miri Rei, the dancing girl who proved the sensation of the Ziegfeld Follies a few years ago, and Kuulei and Nalani de Clerq, Honolulu dancing girls.

"Waikiki Wedding" is the story of a smart publicity man, played by Crosby, who outsmarts himself. As the representative of a pineapple cannery, he organizes a contest for pineapple recipes, the winner of which is to receive a vacation in glamorous Waikiki. Miss Ross wins the contest, comes to Waikiki, becomes bored with the place and decides to return home, ruining the publicity campaign.

Much of the rest of the picture is taken up with Crosby's attempts to keep Miss Ross thrilled. He succeeds but falls in love with her. When she learns that he had provided a synthetic Waikiki for her she leaves him but he wins her back by employing the unique methods which made of him the great publicity man he is.

Interwoven in this plot is the romance of Bob Burns and Martha Raye. It is very much like the romance they had in "Rhythm on the Range," hilarious and robust.

Crosby outdoes himself in "Waikiki Wedding." Not only does he sing several charming melodies in his own distinctive manner but he plays the part of the livewire press agent with great verve and elan. Burns and Miss Raye, of course, are excellent and Miss Ross takes a big step forward as an accomplished actress.

The team of Robin and Rainger, responsible for the excellent music in "The Big Broadcast of 1937," "College Holiday," "Champagne Waltz" and other hit pictures, comes through with another batch of sure-fire hits. Notable among these are "Blue Hawaii," "Sweet Is the Word for You," "In a Little Hula Heaven" and "Okolehao." The picture was masterfully directed by Frank Tuttle.

'Mama Steps Out' Shows At Capitol

Guy Kibbee And Alice Brady Head Cast Of Comedy Hit Opening Today

RARE as it is, the combination of chuckling humor, effervescing melody and a really amusing story plot is discovered in the new Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer picture, "Mama Steps Out," which comes to the Capitol theater today.

Guy Kibbee is seen with Alice Brady in a new screen pairing. Stanley Morner, the young discovery of Mary Garden, the Metropolitan opera star, plays his first feature lead, with Betty Furness opposite.

The balance of the cast is competent in every way, particularly good work being contributed by Gene Lockhart, Edward Norris, Gregory Gaye, Ivan Lebedeff and Heather Thatcher.

"Mama Steps Out" harpoons the proverbial American housewife who goes to Europe to acquire what she calls culture, or the better things. In this instance, as in many others, what she actually gets is a burden of penniless would-be artists who descend on the family in the manner of locusts on a wheat field.

The picture is based on the stage play, "Ada Beats the Drum," by John Kirkpatrick, and the screen medium again allows for better interpretation. The music is tuneful and Stanley Morner sings two melodies, 'Burnt Fingers" and "Be Careful of My Heart," which pleases the audience.

The story describes the trials of Len Cuppy, an American business man, played inimitably by Kibbee, who takes his wife and daughter to Europe. Ada, the wife, portrayed by Miss Brady, seeks foreign culture. She acquires a fake authoress, a musician and an artist and they move in on the Cuppy family. Len becomes understandably belligerent when he discovers the artist trying to make love to Ada, but it is Len who lands in jail, not the artist. The daughter, played by Betty Furness, falls in love with Morner, who enacts the role of a crooner. The situation eventually is straightened out and harmony prevails on the screen and in the audience.

NEW MUNICIPAL BUILDING AT WINNFIELD OCCUPIED

WINNFIELD, La., April 10.—(Special)—Winnfield's new $30,000 city hall, recently completed, is now occupied by municipal offices and departments. Demolishment of the old city hall by a tornado about two years ago, necessitated the construction of a new building which was erected with the aid of WPA funds.

The building, a two story structure, houses all the city officials' offices, the jail, the fire department and a community hall. The offices of Mayor R. W. Buce, City Clerk R. D. Campbell and City Attorney A. A. Marshall and the community hall are located on the second floor.

AMATEURS STAGE VARIETY PROGRAM

More Than 1,500 People Attend Entertainment Sponsored By P.-T. A.

A fiesta of music, dancing, skits and monologues was presented before an audience of more than fifteen hundred persons Friday evening when the annual amateur hour program sponsored by the Twin Cities council of Parent-Teacher associations was presented at the Ouachita Parish High school.

More than forty contestants competed, with the first prize being awarded to the Ouachita Parish High school band, directed by Walter Minniear, and the second prize going to Mary Wilbur McKee, acrobatic dancer representing the Millsaps school of West Monroe.

Much comment was made on the splendid rendition of "Japanese Sunset," given by the band. Miss McKee's number, a chair dance of exceeding difficulty, was executed with spritely grace and ease bordering on the professional.

Of unusual beauty was the selection by the Ouachita Parish High school Glee club, directed by Mrs. George Moffett, with a tableau depicting a colorful gypsy scene, being given during the rendition of the song.

The evening's performance was opened by selections by the Brown Safety Harmonica boys, led by Philip Bernhardt, who were guest artists on this occasion.

Numbers of unusual musical merit were given by Ben Downing, vocalist, S. C. Wimbish, saxaphonist, Christine Galloway, singer and dancer, Wilson Abraham, clarinetist, Willie Nettles, whistler, the Barkdull Faulk Glee club and the Mother Singers of the Twin Cities council.

Dancers of exceptional ability appearing on the program were Aulcy Burgess, Elizabeth Ann Gibbs, Sharon Anderson, Joy Anthony. A number in which Brooks Hamilton both played the piano and danced at the same time was also well received. A tap dance by Christine Jacola and her brother was also of special merit.

Amusing rube dances were given by a group of girls from the Monroe Recreation department and by Mary Louise Marine and Evelyn Marine, accompanied by Mrs. Joe Marine.

Pickaninny dances were given by groups from the Sherrouse school and from St. Matthews school. A stately minuet was presented by pupils from the Georgia Tucker school, and a playlet was given by members of the Central Grammar school.

An interesting feature during the evening was the chalk talk by Dorothy Louise Felix.

Other numbers given during the evening were presented by Burdelle Jones, Marvin Gleason, Floryce Leonard, Claudine Taylor, Jack Ansell, Mrs. F. C. Cummings, Louise Wood, Jack McCook, Cecil Blanchard, Joseph Mickel, Shirley McKinney and the Ouachita Valley trio.

"The Twin Cities council wishes to especially thank Mr. Jack Hayes of the parish school and his co-workers for the use of the auditorium and assistance, and the Monroe News-Star and Morning World for the splendid cooperation shown the organization in the project," an official of the Twin Cities P.-T. A. council said after the performance.

BIG SUM SPENT BY PACKING CO.

Total Of $12,635.63 Expended For Purchase Of Livestock In This Area

A total of $12,635.53 was expended during March, 1937, for livestock purchased by C. I. Stafford and Sons, meat packers, according to a report made known by the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe.

There were 289 head of cattle purchased at a cost of $6,052.47, while purchases of hogs, of which there were 814 head bought, totaled an expenditure of $6,586.06 or a grand total as previously stated. During the same month, March, the company's payroll was $1,500.

The company has been in operation here only since the first of the present year and it is said the volume of business will be greatly increased month by month.

Farmers and stock raisers of Ouachita parish and adjacent parishes are finding a ready market for surplus stock through this company.

Surplus stock is being sent to the company's plant in Pine Bluff, Ark., by truck and the market for cattle and hogs is greatly expanded through the last named plant which is well established and one of the larger ones in the south.

Mr. Stafford stated that because of bad weather and road conditions existing in many places the past few weeks the volume of business was less than it would have otherwise have been, as many were unable to transport stock to the market here.

The Stafford firm maintains its local headquarters in the plant of the old Monroe Packing company, west of West Monroe.

R. E. ELLINGTON GETS PROMOTION

Assistant Postmaster Of Monroe To Become Postal Inspector

Robert E. Ellington, assistant postmaster of Monroe, has been advised by telegram from Senator John H. Overton that he has been appointed a postoffice inspector, having been named to this post by the postmaster general.

Mr. Ellington will assume his new duties shortly but until he receives his commission and further instructions he will not know where his assignment will cause him to move.

His promotion will leave vacant the office of assistant postmaster here until his successor is named.

Mr. Ellington is a native of McGee, Miss. He received his high school education in the Dermott (Arkansas) High school, graduating from there in 1924. A short time after graduating he took a civil service examination and as a result was assigned to a position as clerk in the Monroe postoffice in April, 1925.

With the retirement of Andrew Carter, who had served as assistant postmaster for many years, he became acting assistant postmaster May 15, 1934. He was given the appointment as assistant postmaster, November 16, 1934, and has served in that capacity to the present time.

Appointment as postoffice inspector was resultant from a civil service examination which he took a few months ago. He is regarded as a highly efficient officer and a wide circle of friends on Saturday expressed pleasure at his most recent appointment.

AMATEURS STAGE VARIETY PROGRAM

More Than 1,500 People Attend Entertainment Sponsored By P.-T. A.

A fiesta of music, dancing, skits and monologues was presented before an audience of more than fifteen hundred persons Friday evening when the annual amateur hour program sponsored by the Twin Cities council of Parent-Teacher associations was presented at the Ouachita Parish High school.

More than forty contestants competed, with the first prize being awarded to the Ouachita Parish High school band, directed by Walter Minniear, and the second prize going to Mary Wilbur McKee, acrobatic dancer representing the Millsaps school of West Monroe.

Much comment was made on the splendid rendition of "Japanese Sunset," given by the band. Miss McKee's number, a chair dance of exceeding difficulty, was executed with spritely grace and ease bordering on the professional.

A wealth of talent was revealed during the program, which included many eccentric and entertaining features—girls tap dancing on roller skates, girls dancing on stilts and girls dancing with jumping ropes. A small boy, a whistler of real ability, gave a whistling solo, while he nonchalantly munched a stick of candy.

Of unusual beauty was the selection by the Ouachita Parish High school Glee club, directed by Mrs. George Moffett, with a tableau depicting a colorful gypsy scene, being given during the rendition of the song.

DICK TRACY
By Chester Gould
SH--SH! HERE GOES!
LISTENING AT OUR DOOR, EH?
??
SEE? I TOLD YOU A KID WAS FOLLOWING ME! WHEN I CALLED AT OUR OLD HOTEL TO PICK UP THE MAIL - HE STARTED TRAILING ME.
WHO ARE YOU? WHAT KIND OF A LITTLE MORON ARE YOU, ANYWAY?
IF HE WAS A LITTLE OLDER, I'D CALL THE COPS.
HEY! DON'T LET HIM GET OUT TILL WE FIND WHO HE IS!
WHY YOU LITTLE--!!
GRAB HIM!
NOW YOU'VE DONE IT- YOU'VE KILLED HIM!
DON'T KID YOURSELF HE'S JUST STUNNED A BIT.
A LITTLE LATER
WHY, YES, MR. TRACY. THE BOY WAITED HERE IN THE LOBBY TILL MARGE DENTON-THAT'S THE TALLEST ONE OF THE GIRLS-CAME IN AND PICKED UP THE MAIL, THEN HE FOLLOWED HER!
THAT'S FINE. SHE DIDN'T TALK WITH YOU OR TELL YOU WHERE THEY ARE LIVING NOW, DID SHE?
SHE DIDN'T SAY A WORD - AND I DIDN'T TRY TO PUMP HER.
BY THE WAY- JUST WHAT DO YOU SUSPECT THOSE 3 GIRLS OF BEING UP TO?
NOT A THING, JOHN - FOR SURE THEY JUST LOOK A LITTLE SUSPICIOUS AND I FIGURE THEY'RE WORTH WATCHING.
YOU DON'T SUPPOSE HE'S WITH THE COPS OR ONE OF THOSE STORES THAT WE'VE BEEN-SHUT UP- YOU FOOL!
LOOK! I TOLD YOU--- BLOOD!
HA! CRUSHING THIS CAPSULE OF MERCUROCHROME UNDER MY HEAD - HAS GOT 'EM SCARED. NOW IF I CAN JUST KEEP 'EM THINKING I'M "OUT" - THEY MAY SAY SOMETHING WORTH HEARING.

DICK TRACY
SH--SH! HERE GOES!
By Chester Gould
LISTENING AT OUR DOOR, EH?
SEE? I TOLD YOU A KID WAS FOLLOWING ME! WHEN I CALLED AT OUR OLD HOTEL TO PICK UP THE MAIL--HE STARTED TRAILING ME.
WHO ARE YOU? WHAT KIND OF A LITTLE MORON ARE YOU, ANYWAY?
IF HE WAS A LITTLE OLDER, I'D CALL THE COPS.
HEY! DON'T LET HIM GET OUT TILL WE FIND WHO HE IS!
WHY YOU LITTLE--!!
GRAB HIM!
NOW YOU'VE DONE IT--YOU'VE KILLED HIM!
DON'T KID YOURSELF HE'S JUST STUNNED A BIT.
A LITTLE LATER
WHY, YES, MR. TRACY, THE BOY WAITED HERE IN THE LOBBY TILL MARGE DENTON--THAT'S THE TALLEST ONE OF THE GIRLS--CAME IN AND PICKED UP THE MAIL, THEN HE FOLLOWED HER.
THAT'S FINE. SHE DIDN'T TALK WITH YOU OR TELL YOU WHERE THEY ARE LIVING NOW, DID SHE?
SHE DIDN'T SAY A WORD--AND I DIDN'T TRY TO PUMP HER.
BY THE WAY--JUST WHAT DO YOU SUSPECT THOSE 3 GIRLS OF BEING UP TO?
NOT A THING, JOHN--FOR SURE THEY JUST LOOK A LITTLE SUSPICIOUS AND I FIGURE THEY'RE WORTH WATCHING.
YOU DON'T SUPPOSE HE'S WITH THE COPS OR ONE OF THOSE STORES THAT WE'VE BEEN-- SHUT UP--YOU FOOL!
LOOK! I TOLD YOU--- BLOOD!
HA! CRUSHING THIS CAPSULE OF MERCUROCHROME UNDER MY HEAD--HAS GOT 'EM SCARED. NOW IF I CAN JUST KEEP 'EM THINKING I'M "OUT"--THEY MAY SAY SOMETHING WORTH HEARING.

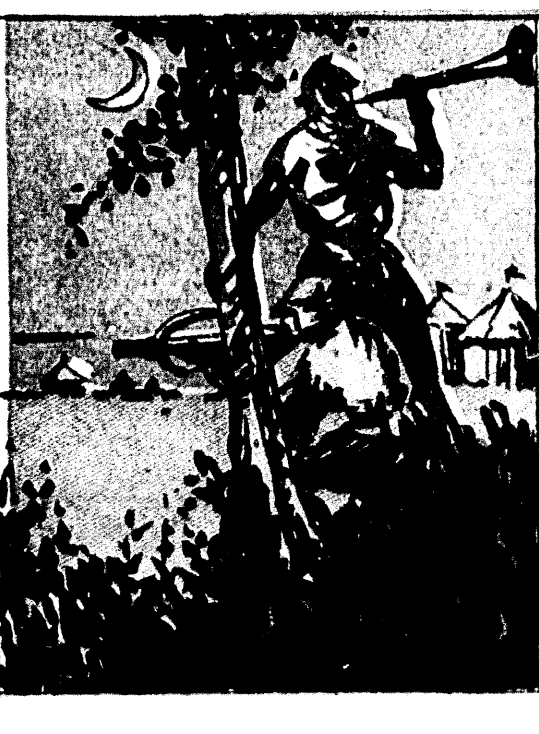
TWICE the wealthy and powerful Medicis had been expelled from Florence by popular revolt. Again in 1529 they sought a comeback, and a new attack was made on Italy's great city, under the leadership of the Prince of Orange. The Florentians, however, were too formidable for the invading imperialists, and so the attackers settled back for a siege of starvation.

The ring around Florence was tightening and the last link to the city's food source was threatened, when out of the gates rode a small army of patriots led by young Francesco Ferrucci, bold fighter and swashbuckler. By a series of rapid marches and sudden attacks, he opened the supply gap.



While he was away, the imperialists captured the village of Empoli, near Florence, and cut off an important approach to the city. Ferrucci, hearing of this, decided on attacking the enemy from the rear. But his plans leaked out, and as he and his men rode up, they were surprised by the imperialists.

The battle was furious, but short and decisive. Ferrucci's men were routed. Their leader was wounded fatally. As he lay bleeding to death, Fabrizio Maramaldo, an imperialist officer, strode up and thrust his sword into the helpless captive.

This tragic episode is pictured on one of a series of stamps issued by Italy in 1930 on the fourth centenary of Ferrucci's death.

YA BETTER LEARN SOME MANNERS- YE EATS LIKE A PIG!
LIKE A PIG, HUH? I MUST BE IMPROVIN'- YE USED TO SAY I ET LIKE A HIPPOPEEPOTERMUS
LISTEN! LISTEN! SAY, LISTEN! I'LL GIVE YOU THE SHIRT OFF MY BROTHER'S BACK FOR A HAMBURGER
NO!
SAY- DOES YE KNOW WHERE I KIN FIND SOMEBODY TO GIVE ME EATIN' LESSONS? I'BEEN EMBARRISKING ME SON WHEN I EATS
EATING LESSONS? HMM-
MY GOOD MAN, COME INTO THE BACK ROOM!!
BRING US TWO BIG JUICY T-BONE STEAKS
OKAY, MISTER POOPDECK
YOU COULDN'T HAVE FOUND A BETTER TEACHER- I'LL TEACH YOU THE ART OF EATING, BUT IT MAY TAKE MONTHS AND MONTHS
THERE NOW I HAVE FINISHED MY STEAK AND I PAT MY LIPS LIGHTLY WITH MY NAPKIN- I HOPE YOU WATCHED CLOSELY AND NOTICED MY PERFECT ACTIONS
KIN I EAT ME STEAK NOW? I SURE AM HUNGRY!
WHY, YES- YES, OF COURSE
NO! NO! NO!
NOT LIKE THAT! HERE, GET UP! LET ME SHOW YOU!
SEE- LIKE THIS- NOW JUST WATCH ME
WELL, CRACK ME KONK FOR A OYSKER, HE'S EATIN' ALL ME STEAK!!
WELL, HE KIN HAVE IT, I'M LEAVIN'!
THAT'S RIGHT- STAND CLOSE- I WANT YOU TO ESPECIALLY NOTICE HOW I HANDLE MY LAST BITE
WHO'S GONNA PAY?
- POOPDECK PAPPY! OOOH. POOOPDECK!
AND THERE'S A FEW DISHES, TOO
